MAY 19, 1860,—Elles 3; set. 28, single, never was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rhoumanism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks and subsequently from a relapse fer four more. She has been well since then till last Batur day, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back felt cold, hot had no decided chill. Two days later her ankles began so swell, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. She has now dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, me a case of acute rhounsaimm, or, as it is now fashionably called, rhoumstic fever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the various symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheomatism. Im an propylamins. Dr. Awensrius, of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms, having derived great conefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. In must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specifies; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial. [FROM OPPICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.]

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER! SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

May 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was these laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in does of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I ound her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, justing from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The mprovement has steadily pregressed, and you caused it to notice a marked change in the appearance of her inits, which are new nearly all of their natural size.—nue har our experiment would have seemed very successful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a little while better to the present.

he result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of ...s same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from c broule rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her otherwise affection. The writes and knuckles were massh swollen and tense. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain doses every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminathed.

THREE DAYS LATER !!

THREE DAYS LATER!!

MAY 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism ested with propylamine, the first of those to which I alted your attendon at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very estian factory results. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well? I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rhaumatism, and if the result be astfactory, I think, as good jurymen, we snall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamino.

He is a seaman, set. 26, who was admitted a few days ago. Has had occasional rheumatic pams, but not see as to keep his bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the joints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swollen, tense and tender. His tougue is furred, its pain, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 90.—He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours.

This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of scate rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a faciling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fover and the profuse sweating, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism. I did not bring this pation before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points consected with rheumatism, but to again give a tried to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it, than which there co did not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, and the points congected with rheumatism, but to again give a tried to the only of the medicine in question. We are, therefore, and the points congected with rheumatism but to again give a tried to the only of the medicine in question.

THE RESULT.

A FAVORABLE VERDIOT.

JUMP 9, 1860.—The next of our convelencents is the case of acute rhoumaism before you at our clinic of May 28th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth ni our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doese every two hours for four days. The patient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to a ty that I have never soon as gravers a see of acute there is the set. want about, as you see. I no not necleate to say that it have neves seen as severe a case of acute rheumatism so soon restored to bealth as this man has been, and without being prepared to decide positive by as to the value of the remedy we have used. I feel bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chloride o their superiority, and the advantage they are Propylamine, the patients have regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily parused. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves and report the results. in keeping Horses and Cattle healthy and in
