MAY 19, 1880.—Ellos S., sek 28, single, hever was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rheumanism, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks and subsequently from a relapse for four more. She has been well since then till last Batur day, while engaged in house ideaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, felt cold, hot had so decided chill: Two days later her ankles began so swell, which was followed by swelling of the tince joints and of the hands. She has now dull pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the dase, and from time to time call your attention to the various byten town time to time call your attention to the various byten town the before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean propylamize. Dr. Awenarius, of St. Petersburg, recommends in the highest terms, having derived great benefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always moredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specific; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial. (FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORCE.)

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER! SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

MAY 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in deese of three grains every two hours (latermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, botter than she expected to be for a week or more, justing from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The marowement has steadily progressed, and you cannot dit to noting a marked change in the appearance of her linus, which are new nearly all of their natural size.—aur far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a little while believes in the result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of ... a same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from a bronic rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knuckles were much swollen and tense. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain doses every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diministed.

THREE DAYS LATER!!

MAY 26, 1860.—This is the case of acuto rheumatism eases with propylamine, the first of those to which I alled your attention at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory results. The secondra-se to which your attention was called at our last tecture, has also continued to do were. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of agree theumation, and if the result here the tion was called at our last tecture, has also continued to do webr. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satfactory, I think, as good jurymen, we shall justly render our verdict in favor of peopy jamin.

He is a seaman, st. 26, who was admitted a few days ago. Has had occasional rheumatic pams, but not so as to keep his bed, until sight days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and after, the joints of the upper extremittes. These joints are all swollen, tanse and tender. His tongue is furred; his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 90.—He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours. This gentleman is what may be called a strickly typical case of acute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this arthours its followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fewer and the profuse syeating, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism. I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points conuccted with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the implication, and all the points conuccted with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the implication, we are, therefore, avoiding the medicine in question. We are, therefore, avoiding the use of all other medicines, even anodynes, that there may be no misgivings as to which was the efficient remedy. You that see the case of a future clinic.

THE RESULT.

June 9, 1860.—The next of our convalencents is the dase of acute rhounstian before you at our cliuic of May 28th, which I: then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the work of our new remedy. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doses every two hours for four days. The petient has got along very nicely, and is now able to walk about, as you see. I do not hesitate to say that I have neves never a case of acute rheimstism so; you restored, to health as this man has leen, and without being prepared to decide positive by as to the vale of the remedy; we have used, I feel bound to state that in the cases in which we have tried the Chloride of Propylamine, the patients have regained their health much earlier than under the treatment ordinarily purved. I wish gentlemen, you would yourselves my it, and report the results.
