HARRISBURG, P. A. Saturday Afternoon, September 20, 1862.

GEORGE LANDON.

In the Congressional District composed of Bradford, Columbia, Montour, Wyoming and Sullivan counties, Hon. Geo. Landon, of Bradford, has been nominated for Congress. To his many friends throughout the Commonwealth, and particularly to those who came in contact with him in this city, during his legislative term, this will be gratifying news. It will be gratifying because a good man is thus recognized and endorsed for a high position, and because, too, the country will thus secure one of the ablest and most practical men in the State, at a time when legislation will be invoked to assist in restoring order to all its sources of prosperity. While Mr. Landon occupied a seat in the State Senate, he was regarded as one of its ablest members—able not only in debate and the displays of the floor, but able in the preparation and details of legislation, the work of all others which most tests the powers of a legislator.

In Congress, Senator Landon will have a wider field for the exercise and test of his powers than was afforded him in the Legislature, but we doubt whether he can more faithfully serve his constituents in that body than he did in the body from which he has just retired. Of course his election is a certainty.

THE TORY ORGAN insists that Frank Hughes is a Pennsylvanian and not a North Carolinian, and attempts to advance the evidence of "a respectable citizen" to prove that Hughes was born in Bucks county. If the witness was the witness on the occasion, the testimony may be accepted for consideration. If not, it is worthless, and must be rejected. We know that Hughes was born in North Carolina—that he married his wife there—that his nearest kin reside there—and that he remains in this state only because he believes he can best serve his Southern friends in Pennsylvania. But still, this does not explain how much money has been collected from the deluded partisans of the tory organ, to pay for the publication of Hughes' matter in that sheet.

While Hughes is engaged preparing his usual matter for the tory organ, he might as well enlighten the public on this subject, and no doubt the organ would publish the explanation gratis, to the relief of the democracy of this county.

IT HAS BEEN the boast and glory of the Democratic party heretofore that they have kept aloof from all petty "entanglements." It is a pity that their first essay in that direction should have been with the dilapidated flag of an organization whose proscription oaths forbid all fellowship or association with those who constitute the backbone of the Democracy.—What do the Democracy of Pennsylvania think of the alliances of their partisan friends in N. York? In that State, in order to carry an election, the Democracy have united with the "Know Nothings." In this Commonwealth, to achieve the same end, they have made a bargain with the Knights of the Golden Circle. Truly the shade and the difference of the Democracy are as marked and as numerous as their excesses and their friends.

PROMOTION FOR SERVICE IN THE FIELD.

Some time since an order was issued by the Secretary of War, that from the date of said order, promotions in the volunteer army of the country, would only be made for meritorious action in the field, or for such other services as would at once establish the soldier's merits and claim to distinction. The announcement gave great satisfaction to the army and the people. It was hailed as the inauguration of a new policy in the army, from which victory to the army, glory to the soldier and benefit to the country could only and would most assuredly accrue. But we have a notion of our own that the War Department has overlooked some of those, at least, who have earned such promotion. We are not prepared to write whether this has been from carelessness, or whether it is the result of the vigor and energy which have lately distinguished the operations of the army, making it impossible for the Department to recognize and reward those who have won distinction on the field. But we are prepared to claim that Col. Joseph F. Knipe of the Forty-sixth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, has earned this promotion—earned it amid carnage and death—and made his claim good in many honorable wounds, from which he now suffers. He is entitled to a commission as Brigadier General. He dare claim it on the authority of the War Department. His friends and the remnant of his shattered regiment demand that he be at once promoted, that he may increase the services which he has already rendered, and add still further to the chances and the certainty of our eventual glorious triumph over rebellion. Let the retreating army of the Shenandoah valley speak in favor of the promotion. Let the gallant band which, under the lead of Col Knipe, covered that retreat, answer whether their leader is not worthy of promotion? Let Winchester, Middletown, Slaughter Mountain, Sharpsburg answer. And the reply will be unanimously in favor of promotion.

WHAT ARE THE FARMERS AT HOME DOING?

Have they decided on the extent of the seeding they intend to put into the ground for next year's crop? These are important questions. We, as a nation, must depend on the earth, on the crops, on the labor of the husbandmen, to extricate us from our present difficulties. Hard fighting is supposed to be all that is essential to stop the war. But blows and blood—mangled bodies, maimed limbs and slaughtered armies, will not revive the national credit, pay the national debt, stimulate enterprise and reward industry. The nation, after having achieved the overthrow of rebellion and plunged the avenging sword up to the hilt in human gore, must resolve at once to turn its attention to labor, real, honest, substantial and productive labor. War and its excruciating charms must not be allowed to allure a single man from the path of patient duty. The men who left the plough in the furrow, must make up their minds to return to it with hand and sturdy toil. Those who quenched the forge fire must rekindle his flames. Those who threw down the hammer and the plane must resume both, and resolve again to make them the soles of their living. We must, as a nation, henceforth be content to labor—labor with our hands and our brains, that the debt of the war may be removed—that the incumbrance left by the struggle for liberty may be destroyed—and that the people thus disenfranchised and emancipated, may once more rise to national power, dignity, prosperity and happiness.

But to return to the farmer. Whether or not the war be ended, we will require a large crop. If the war is prolonged, so much the more need for breadstuffs at home and grain abroad. If the great struggle in the field is closed by the glorious triumph of our arms, we will still need all the earth can yield. From its bowels, the present year, little, in comparison to past years, will be gathered, because the laborer is not engaged in that business. Therefore, we must see that its bosom makes up the difference. Every hand, then, that can scatter a seed, should be invoked to the soil. Women and children can take the field in this labor, while in the front and brunt of battle, men are struggling on the field of war. Heed it farmers, heed this counsel, while the propitious season invites you to the discharge of the duty which it suggests. Plant every inch of ground in your possession. Look to it, that it is well sown. Be mindful of the quality of seed you sow—forget not the care it requires before its crops can be harvested. And when the harvest does come, abundance will bless you, provided you are not gathered in that other harvest where the reaper is the angel DEATH. And even then, your labor will go to bless those who you have left behind—bless the nation, contribute to its revival, assist in the payment of its debts, and make America what God designed it should be, great, glorious and free!

"AFTER THE RETURN OF THE P. M." in the exclamation of the tory organ, in one of its flings at the Postmaster of Harrisburg, during which it quotes from Bill Rigler's organ one of the honorable statements with which the tory press of the state seek to bring every federal officer into disgrace. Why did not the tory organ state exactly where Postmaster Berger was? We answer because it would not suit its conception of frankness to let its readers know that Mr. Berger was in the army, serving as a high private—doing duty in the ranks of a regiment, instead of giving orders from the rear for us men to halt.

LEE'S proclamation to the people of Maryland sounds familiar. We have lately read a great many editorials in papers in this State, and we heard a great many speeches in political conventions, pitched upon the same key. The coincidence is remarkably striking. Has Frank Hughes resolved to write the proclamations of the rebel chiefs as well as the editorials of the doughface sympathizing rebel organs in this State? The question is entirely pertinent. In accordance with an order recently issued by direction of the President, the several army corps will now stand as follows:—1st corps, Hooker; 2d, Sumner; 8d, Heintzelman; 4th, Keyes; 5th, Fitz John Porter; 6th, Franklin; 7th, Dix; 8th, Wool; 9th, Burnside; 10th, Mitchell; 11th, Sedgwick; 12th, Sigel.

A GOOD JOKE.—There being some probability of a heavy draft in Boston, many weak-backed persons were examined last week, with the hope of being exempted; among them a large number of policemen presented themselves and obtained certificates of their physical inability from the good-natured surgeons. On learning this fact, the city authorities promptly discharged all thus exempted, on the ground that, if they were not able to carry a gun, they were not fit to do police duty.

THE PEOPLE of Pennsylvania are fairly aroused. Two hundred fully armed companies reported themselves at Harrisburg within forty hours after the call was issued. Can such a people be conquered?—Albany Evening Journal.

THE MANGLED remains of some of those killed by the Allegheny Arsenal explosion, have been since then found two, three and four hundred yards from the scene of the disaster.

From Gen. McClellan's Army

THE RETREAT OF THE REBELS. OUR MEN RAPIDLY PURSUING Gen Burnside Re-crossed the Potomac The Rebels Forced to Destroy their Trains. CANNON ABANDONED. THE HARPER'S FERRY BRIDGE BURNED BY THE REBELS.

Rebel Loss from 18,000 to 20,000 in Killed and Wounded.

The Rebel Gen. Starke Killed.

GENERALS RIPLEY AND HAY WOUNDED.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20. The following dispatch has just been received from the special army correspondent of the American:

KENNESVILLE, Va. FRIDAY, September 19. The rebel army retreated during Thursday night towards the Potomac river. Gen. McClellan's army was all in motion at an early hour this morning, prepared to renew the offensive operations against the enemy. By 10 o'clock every road was crowded with our troops and trains moving towards the Potomac.

The enthusiasm and spirits of the troops indicated a determination to push the enemy in retreat, and to make the work of to-day a final contest on the soil of Maryland.

Free of all obstructions until about three o'clock in the afternoon, heavy firing of artillery could be heard at intervals, seemingly across the river.

Occasionally a shell could be seen bursting in the air, though no musketry could be heard. Meanwhile our wagon and ammunition trains were moving steadily towards the Potomac across Antietam creek bridge, while our troops from the position they occupied appeared to be moving mainly along the Sharpsburg and Williamsport roads.

Many conflicting reports prevailed here during the day of skirmishing with the rear of the enemy, who were in full flight towards the Potomac.

A gentleman who left Gen'l. McClellan's Headquarters before the General started, informed me that at 4 o'clock, Gen'l. Burnside had crossed the Potomac and was harassing the rebels' rear.

The latest reports received are, that the rebels were forced to destroy a large portion of their trains and spike and abandon much of their artillery in order to prevent from falling into our hands, so closely were they pursued by the Union army.

Gen. McClellan rode out towards the front at about 11 o'clock. The cheering of the troops as he rode along could be heard a great distance.

LATER. FREDERICK, Sept. 20.—A gentleman who left Boonsboro last night, says the firing heard was occasioned by our batteries and those of the rebels across the river, the latter endeavoring to check our pursuit at the river bank.

Conflicting reports were received here during the day of skirmishing with the rear of the enemy, who were in full flight towards the Potomac.

After our forces occupied the whole field, the rebel loss was found to be far greater, particularly in killed, than it was at first supposed.

Fully 2500 were found lying on the field, while a larger number had been buried the day before by their friends.

THE VERY LATEST

HEAD QUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC. Saturday Sept. 20. The rebel army has succeeded in making its escape from Maryland. They commenced to leave at about dusk on Thursday evening and by day light yesterday morning were all over except a small rear guard, they saved all their transportation and carried off all their wounded but about 300; between three and four hundred rebel stragglers were taken during the day by Gen'l. Pleasanton's cavalry, who took the advance.

Their loss from killed and wounded will not come far from 18,000 to 20,000. Gen. Starke, of the rebel forces, was killed, and Gen. Ripley and Hay were wounded.

The rebels on Thursday night burned the R. R. bridge at Harper's Ferry. The citizens of Sandy Hook were fleeing into the country on Thursday night, to avoid being impressed into the rebel army, and carried into Virginia.

Large details of men were made this morning to bury the remaining dead bodies, which have become offensive.

The troops are all in excellent spirits over the result. The rebels are still visible on the opposite shore in force. A large amount of artillery has been posted by the enemy to prevent our troops from crossing.
