THE BATTLE OF ANTIETAM. Official Report of Brig. Gen Kimball.

HEADQUARTERS KIMBALL'S BRIGADE, French's Division, Sumner's Corpe, Army of the Potomac, On the field of Battle near Sharpsburg, Md.

GENERAL: On the morning of the 17th inst. in obedience to your order, my brigade crossed Antietam Creek, and was formed into line of battle on the left of Gen. Sedgwick's division, and in the third line, Gens. Weber and Morris forming the first and second lines. In this position I moved directly forward about three-fourth of a mile, when Gen. Weber encountered the enemy's pickets and drove them back, and soon came inton the element in force restricted. SURGIPARITA.

ditches, and upon the hill sides.

At this moment, in obedience to your command, I moved my brigade forward and formed my line in front, on the left of Gen. Weber. My right wing consisting of the Fourteenth Regiment Indiana Volunteers, Col. Harrow, and the Eighth Regiment Onio Volunteers, Lieut. hillside in front of the Orchard, their left resting on a lane running in the direction of Sharpsburg. My left wing consisting of the Seventh Virginia Volunteers, Col. Sinyder, and the One-Hundred and Thirty second Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, Col. Oakford commanding, resting on an extension of the same line, their right resting on the lane running towards Sharpsburg, and their left extending towards the creek. Directly on my front, in a narrow road, running parallel with my line, and being washed by water, forming a natural rifle-pit between my line and a large comfield, I found the enemy in great force, as also in the corn. the enemy in great force, as also in the cornfield in the rear of the ditch.

As my line advanced to the crest of the hill, a murderous fire was opened upon it from the entire force in front. My advance further was checked, and for three hours and thirty minutes the battle raged incessantly, without either party giving way. The enemy having been reinforced, made an attempt to turn my left flank, by throwing three regiments forward entirely to the left of my line, which I met and repulsed with loss by extending my left wing—the Seventh Virginia and One Hundred and Thirty second Permyslywing Voluntees. Thirty second Permsylvania Volunteers—in that direction. Being foiled in this he made a heavy charge on my centre, thinking to break my line, but was met by my command, and remy line, but was met by my command, and repulsed with great slaughter. I then, in turn, ordered a charge, which was promptly responded to, and which resulted in driving the anemy entirely from the ditches, and some distance into the cornfield beyond. In this charge my command captured about 300 prisoners, and the enemy in his flight leaving on the field several stand of colors, which were taken by some narties ontside of my brigade while we were parties outside of my brigade while we were pursuing them. At this time a brigade of Gen. Richardson's Division advanced to my relief on the left of my line, securing that flank from further assaults.

In the meantime, the line on my right having been abandoned, the enemy made an attempt to turn that flank, and by that, to gain my rear, and succeeded in gaining a cornfield directly on my right. To repulse them a change of front was made by the Fourteenth Indiana Volunteers and Eighth Ohio, which resulted in determine the anguly from my right and restored driving the enemy from my right and restored the line, which was afterward occupied by smith's division of Gen. Franklin's corps.

For four hours and a half my command was under a most galling fire, and not a mau faltered or left the ranks until the field tered or left the ranks until the field was left by the rebels in our possession, those who were sent with wounded to the rear quickly return-ing to their places in line. For three and a half hours of this time we were upon the field and maintained our position without any sup-port whatever. My men having exhausted all their ammunition, the fight was maintained some time with the supplies stripped from the bodies of their dead and wounded comrades. Every man of my command behaved in the most exemplary manner, and as men who had letermined to save their country or die. The 14th Indiana and 8th Ohio Volunteers, in the hange of front which saved our right, executed it as veterans, and as only brave men could. The battle was fought under your own eyes General, and I need not tell you how terrible was the conflict. The loss in my command is a lasting testimony of the sanguinary nature of the conflict, and a glance at the position held by the rebels tells how terribly was the pun-isliment indicted on them. The cornfields in bodies are so numerous that they seem to have fallen dead in line of battle, for there is a battallon of dead rebels. We maintained our ground, and drove the enemy from his.

After the firing had ceased on my front, the foe seemed to have concentrated his force on Gen. Richardson's command. Col. Brooks, commanding a brigade, sent to me for assistance, you having previously ordered Colonel Morris, commanding second brigade, to take orders from me, I ordered him to Colonel Brook!a assistance
