[FROM OFFICIAL HOSTIAL REFORM.]

MAY 19, 1860,—Ellen S., set. 28, single, never war very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute recoming the recoming the strong of the set of the set of the weeks and subsequently from a relapse for four more. Such as been well single then till tast Satur day, while engaged in tones eleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, fell cold not had so decided chill. Two days later her anxies being any swell, which was followed by swelling of the line; joints and of the hands. She has now duly pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very lender red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumaism, or, as it is now fashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the versions symptoms which present themselves. My chief obeying there before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean propylamine. Dr. Awenarius, of St. Petersburg, recommended in the ingleet terms, having derived great benefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always increduous as to the worth of new remedies; which are vaunted as specifica; but this comes to us recommended so highly, that we are bound to give it a trial. [FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.]

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER ! SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER |

May 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I presoribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of acute rheumaism. She has steadily taken it in doseo of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I found her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The mprovement has steadily progressed, and you cansed ill to notice a marked change in the appearance of her inter, which are new nearly all of their natural size.—nur far our experiment would have seemed very successful; but, gentimen, we must wait a little while before we can give a decided opinion as to what is to be the result.

the result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of Las same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from a hronic rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her chronic affection. The wrists and knuckes were much swollen and tense. She took the chloride of Propytamine to three grain does overy two mount, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THREE DAYS LATER!!

THREE DAYS LATER!!

MAY 20, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism cated with propylamine, the first of those to which I alled your attention at our last clinic. Sinc is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory results. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well. I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satisfactory, I think, as good jurymen, we shall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamin.

He is a scamma, set. 25, who was admitted a few days ago. Has had ocasional rheumatic pams, but not so as to keep his bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in his right knes, subsequently affected the left knee, and inter, the joints of the upper extremities. These joint are all swollen, tense and tender. His tongue is furred; his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 90.—He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours. This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical base of goute rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually deen, in the lower joints. There is lover and the profuse sweating, so generally attiendant on acute rheumatism.

I did not bring this patient before you with the intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you the trypical case, as I have called it, than which there could not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine of entering and entering the endicine of entering and entering the patient of the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you the stypical case, as I have called it, than which there could not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine of all other medicines, even a
