essed a great revival in the oil market. Crude $1 75 and $2 00 per barrel, and a correspond ing increase has been experienced in refined oil. Two months since, the latter was a drug in the Pittsburg market at 18 and 20 cents-it now is in demand at 40 and 45; and at Philadelphia brings 50 and 55, and even higher prices in New York. The refineries on Oil delphia brings 50 and 55, and even higher prices in New York. The refineries on Oil creek—of which there are between forty and fifty, with ten or twelve more scattered through fifty, with ten or twelve more scattered through by Caldwell's brigade, consisting of the 5th Crawford and Venango counties—are running by Caldwell's brigade, consisting of the 5th New Hampshire, Col. Cross, the 71st, 61st and in full blast; and shippers from the east are running to and fro among them, and buying their products at prices that pay good profits to the operators. At present the demand is merely for exportation to different parts of Europe, where this new light appears to be as welcome as at home; and it no doubt pays the importers well, as in the matter of exchange, if nothing is realized on the oil, they will make a profit of 40 per cent. As the winter season is approaching, the demand will still increase, and we may look for prices running up to a line of the Sth New York, under Col. Brown—Meagher's brigade following.

and we may look for prices running up to a still higher figure, than rules at present. We may safely estimate the demand as double what it was one year ago, and the supply of crude oil we may safely estimate at not more than one-half what it was a year since. Drilling has commenced again, however, in good earnest, and we may soon expect to hear of more monster wells being struck.

ster wells being struck.

A number of new refineries are going up at different points along and adjacent to the creek, and in some cases companies who have been refining at points hundreds of miles distant, have torn down their works and are removing them to where the crude material is produced We believe that others will find this step neces-sary, in order to compete with those located there, and that before another year rolls round, the refineries will, with rare exceptions, be located near the wells .- Mercer Dispatch, Oct. 31.

GATHERING AND KEEPING APPLES.—In order to secure soundness and preservation, it is indis-pensably necessary that the fruit should be gathered by hand. For winter fruit, the gath-ering is delayed as long as possible, avoiding severe frosts, and the most successful practise with our most extensive orchardists is to place the good fruit directly, in a careful manner, in new, tight flour barrels, as soon as gathered from the tree. These barrels should be gently shaken while filling, and the head closely present in; they are then placed in a cool, shady exposure, under a shed open to the air, or on the court, side of a building protected by a court north side of a building, protected by a cover-ing of boards over the top, where they remain for a fortnight, or until the cold becomes too severe, when they are carefully transferred to a cool, dry cellar, in which the air can be admitted occasionally in brisk weather. A cellar for this purpose should be dug in dry, gravelly or sandy soil; with, if possible, a slope to, the north, or, at any rate, with openings on the north side for the admission of air very rarely in weather not excessively cold. Here barrels should be placed on tiers on their sides, and the cellar should be kept as dark as possible. In such a cellar, one of the largest apple growers in Dutchess county is able to keep the Greening apple, which in the fruit room usually decays in January, until the first of April, in the freshest and fluest condition. Some persons place a layer of clean rye straw between the layers of apples, when packing them in barrels.

A SHARPER recently succeeded in swindling the Jersey Shore, Lock Haven and Bellefonte banks to the amount of nearly nine thousand dollars. He also tried the game at the West Branch Bank, says the Lycoming Gazette of this week, but did not succeed. His mode of operations was about as follows: He procured elsewhere, from responsible parties, sight drafts, for a few dollars, on New York. By some chemical or other process he removed the lines naming the small amounts and left the drafts blank, to be filled to any amount he might choose. On coming into this section of country he represented himself as an extensive fur and hide merchant, with stores in Chicago and New York, and set a number of men to work procuring furs and hides for him. To pay for these, as he represented, he filled his drafts, drew the money from the banks, and then skedaddled, leaving banks and hide and fur gatherers to gather wisdom from their experience. The scamp conducted operations on an extensive scamp conducted operations on an extensive scale, and was thoroughly conversant with Gen. INTERESTING INCIDENT OF THE BATTLE FIELD. During the week of battles in front of Washington, Gen. Bayard went forward, under a flag of truce, to meet and confer with his old omrade in arms, the now famous J. E. B. Stuart, of the rebel cavary. Less than two years ago, Jeb. was first lieutenant and Bayard second lieutenant in the same company; but Jeb. is now a major general and Bayard a brigdier. During the interview, a wounded Union soldier lying near, was groaning and asked for water. "Here Jeb." said Bayard—old time recollections making him familiar—as he tossed his bridle to the rebel officer, "hold my horse a minute, will you, till I fetch charge of "conduct prejudicial to good order that poor fellow some water." Jeb. held the and military discipline, and unbecoming an bridle. Bayard went to a stream and brought officer and a gentleman." The court sentences wounded man some water. As Rayard ed him (Col. Owen) to be dismissed from the mounted his horse, Jeb. remarked that he had not for some time "played orderly to a Union general." The business upon which they met was soon arranged, and the old friends parted —a fight, which had ceased while they were engaged talking, recommenced with great fury on both sides the moment each got back to his own ranks.
