PENNSYLVANIA HOSPITAL. [FROM OFFIGIAL HORPITAL REFORM.]

MAY 19, 1860,—Kiles S., set. 28, single, never was very strong. Two years ago she had an attack of acute rheums imm, from which she was confined to her bed for two weeks and subsequenty from a relapse fer four mers. She has been well since then till last Satur day, while engaged in house cleaning, she took cold, had pain in her back, felt cold, hot had no dedded chill. Two days later her ankles began so swell, which was followed by swelling of the knee joints and of the hands. She has now dult pain in her shoulders, and her knuckles are very tender, red and painful; both hands are affected, but the right is most so. This, then, is a case of acute rheumatism, of as it is now flashionably called, rheumatic fever. It is a well remarked typical case. We will carefully watch the case, and from time to time call your attention to the verious symptoms which present themselves. My chief object in bringing her before you now, is to call attention to a remedy which has recently been recommended in the treatment of rheumatism. I mean propylamine. Dr. Awenarius, of St. Petersburg, recommends it in the highest terms, having derived great cenefit from its use in 250 cases which came under his care. Various commendatory testimonials respecting it have appeared in our journals, and I propose therefore to give it another trial. I must confess I am always incredulous as to the worth of new remedies, which are vaunted as specifica; but this comes to us recommended so bighly, that we are bound to give it a trial. [FROM OFFICIAL HOSPITAL REPORTS.]

SAME CASE FOUR DAYS LATER!

MAY 23, 1860.—I will now exhibit to you the patient for whom I prescribed Propylamine, and was then laboring under an attack of soute rheumatism. She has steadily taken it in doses of three grains every two hours (intermitting it at night.) The day after you saw her, I tound her much more comfortable, better than she expected to be for a week or more, judging from her other attack. (The patient now walked into the room.) The mprovement has steadily pregressed, and you cannot all to notice a marked change in the appearance of her ints, which are now nearly all of their natural size.—nug har our experiment would have seemed very successful; but, gentlemen, we must wait a little while between give a decided opinion as to what is to be he result.

Have it another natient who was placed on the use of

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the result.

Here is another patient who was placed on the use of the same medicine on Sunday last; she has long been suffering from a hronic rheumatism, and I found her at that time with an acute attack supervening upon her obscious faction. The wrists and knuckles were much swollen and tense. She took the chloride of Propylamine in three grain doese every two hours, and you will perceive that the swelling of the joints has much diminished.

THREE DAYS LATER !!

THREE DAYS LATER!!

MAY 26, 1860.—This is the case of acute rheumatism cated with propylamine, the first of those to which I alled your attention at our last clinic. She is still very comfortable, and is now taking three grains thrice daily. In this case it has seemed to be followed by very satisfactory reasits. The second case to which your attention was called at our last lecture, has also continued to do well! I will now bring before you a very characteristic case of acute rheumatism, and if the result be satisfactory, I think, as good jurymen, we shall justly render our verdict in favor of propylamin:

He is a seaman, sat. 26, who was admitted a few days ago. Has had coassional rheumatic pains, but not so as co keep his bed, until eight days ago. The pains began in his right knee, subsequently affected the left knee, and later, the foints of the upper extremities. These joints are all swellen, tense and tender. His tougue is farred; his skin, at present dry, though there has been much sweating. His pulse is full and strong, and about 90.—He has now used propylamine for twenty-four hours.

This gentleman is what may be called a strictly typical case of scule rheumatism. There was exposure to cold and wet, and this exposure is followed by a feeling of coldness, severe articular pain, beginning, as it usually does, in the lower joints. There is fover and the profuse sweating, so generally attendant on acute rheumatism. I did not bring this patient before you with the Intention of giving you a lecture on all the points connected with rheumatism, but to again give a trial to the new remedy we are testing, and to exhibit to you this typical case, as I have called it, than which there co uld not be a fairer opportunity for testing the medicine in question. We are, therefore, avoking the medicine in other medicines, even anodynes, that there may be no misgiving as to which was the efficient remedy. You stail see the case of a future clinio. Those of you who have not gives our HORSE AND CATTLE POWDERS a trial know no their superiority, and the advantage they are in keeping Horses and Cattle healthy and in grand condition.

Jump 1800.—The next of our convaleagents is the case of acute rheumatism before you at our clinic of May 28th, which I then called a typical case, and which it was remarked was a fair opportunity for testing the worth of our new remady. It was therefore steadily given in three grain doese every two hours for four days they also the sale as you see. I do not hesitate to say that it have neves seen as severe a case of acute rheumatism becomes an experience of the pattern of the patt
