FRANK BLAIR

The fight on this man, in the First Congressional district in Missouri, was bitter and malignant. The issues made with him were of a personal more than a political character, and frequently throughout the campaign he was forced to the utterance of sentiments which by the ultra supporters of the Federal administration were regarded as antagonistic to the policy of the President.

MISSOURI AND DELAWARE

The figures showing the result in these two States have already been given to the public, as far as received. With these in detail, it is not our intention now to deal. We simply desire to bring the fact before the public, that in two border states, Delaware and Missouri, the policy of the President has been sustained.

In CONVERSATION, a day or two since, with one of the most gallant Colonels now at the head of a Pennsylvania regiment, a man who rose to his present position solely on his merits as a soldier, and heretofore one of the most prominent Democrats in his native-resident county, we were surprised and awed by the sentiments he expressed.

A LETTER dated Camp Release, Minnesota, October 20, speaks of the successes which have attended the efforts to suppress the Indian disturbances at the Northwest.

THE CITIZEN SOLDIER

It is a fact which is hard to understand, by those who have been educated to the profession of arms, that the citizen soldier can become efficient, disciplined and valuable in the ranks of the army, without giving up a single personal right, or being made to forget that he is not a man.

Of course the newspaper man who thus writes, at once incurs the contempt of the man of straps on his legs and shoulders. Be this as it may, we are still of the opinion that the spirit of discipline as it is insisted upon by those who claim to be professional soldiers, will never conduce to the effectiveness of the men who are to fight our battles and win our victories.

We believe that if the regular army could be sent to guard the posts in Oregon and on the upper shores of the Pacific, and every influence of this branch of the government severed from the conflict, and the fight left entirely with the people, the war would end sooner by years. There are too many friendships in the regular army with the Confederate hordes.

THE PECULIAR FRIENDS OF GEN. McCLELLAN, who make his personal opinions of far more importance than the policy of a national administration, claim that the result of the late election in New York and Pennsylvania, is a rebuke to the President and his policy, while it is an endorsement of Gen. McClellan and his course.

THE VIGOROUS PROSECUTION OF THE WAR

The Washington Republican declares that it has heard a good deal of talk about the vigorous prosecution of the war; but, as yet, we have seen but little corresponding action.

We do not write in a spirit of complaint, or of fault-finding. We only desire to see what has been predicted so frequently, and what has been promised so long, an accomplished fact.

The loyal States have responded to the call of the Government most nobly; they have sent their sons to the field; they have contributed largely of their means for bounties. In short, they have spared no pains nor expense to answer the demands of the loyal cause in the field.

The trouble cannot be that we have not men enough—that the men have not supplies in abundance of ammunition, of arms, and of everything necessary to encounter an engagement. Why, then, is there not a forward movement upon rebeldom—a vigorous, manly onslaught upon the rebel hordes, which could and would result in their utter overthrow and annihilation?

From what we can now discover of the movements going forward, we have high hopes of decisive results in our favor. If such blows are dealt out upon the head and front of this infamous rebellion, where it now rears its wicked and defiant crest in Virginia, and these blows are followed up, and the most made of the victories we may achieve, the kingdom of Jeff. Davis will soon totter to its fall.

We have hopes that the hour has at length fully come to end this war, not by compromise, but by the complete overthrow of these conspirators against the liberties of the nation.
