REFUSED TO COMMIT A BAWD FOR DRUNKENNESS -Officer Fleck yesterday arrested Sarah Jane Steese for drunkenness, and took her before Atderman Beader, who refused to commit her. Why is it, that when arrests such as these are made by our police that Aldermen refuse to commit the parties? What right have they to discriminate between the poorly clad and the richly dressed? Have vice and lewdness more license than any other crimes?

IMPROVING .- The Dauphin Journal of to-day says that Lieut. George F. Ross, who was so severely wounded at the battle of Corinth, is doing very well, and he will perhaps, be able to be about again in a week or so. His wounds were of a most dangerous character, and the physicians on the field of battle, had no hopes for his recovery. An Evidence of the Benefits to be derived from advertising in the Telegraph is contained in a fact relating to the advertisement of a firm for a book-keeper, which recently appeared in our columns. The applications for the posttion were so numerous, that the difficulty seemed to be, not to get a person to fill the position, but to get rid of the great rush of applicants. This is all owing to the popularity blowing up of a cotton mill, and who was suband circulation of the TELEGRAPH. Business men will please take notice, and place their interest accordingly before the public.

IT HAS HAD ITS EFFECTS .- The order of the War Department, summoning all absent officers to their posts in the army, has had a happy effect in ridding the State Capital of a large number of men who were here idling time for which they were paid by the government to be devoted to its service. Any frequenter of the reading or har rooms of our hotels must have observed that the number of officers has been considerably lessened, and that the few who remain still cling, however, to the old habit of the bottle.

FOND OF MATRIMONY .- A Bigamist Caged in Pittsburg.-James M. Campbell, engineer, was arrested in Pittsburg on Monday evening, and taken before the Mayor of that city, charged with having three wives, all of whom are now living. The allegations are that Campbell was first married in the State of Delaware, where he left his lawful wife, and coming to this city passed himself as a single man, and began to 'spark'' among the ladies. Among those whom he visited was Margaret Ann Fife, a respectable widow of Allegheny, whose husband had the misfortune to be badly injured by the sequently drowned in the West. She accented from Campbell a proposal of marriage, and one evening in March, 1859, she accompanied him to this city, for the purpose of being married. DREADFUL DEATH .- A small child of Mr. Freeburn, residing on State street, came to its esth in a very singular and sorrowful manner last evening. The child was about three years of age, and had been regaling itself with peanuts Some of the shells of these lodged in its throat, and before relief could be afforded, it was actually choked to death.
