Delegraph The Game of Bag. B—A—G Bag
Comes in at the fag
End of each of our warlike dispatches, "The foe's driven back, We're hard on his track Of prisoners we've several batches, He's broken, dismayed, discomfited, flayed!

And to-morrow we'll certainly bag him." L—A—G Lag Soon after this brag, News comes that our forces are laggards, "It is as we feared, They have all disappeared—Skedaddled—the cowardly blaggards.'

The brave Blatherskate Was a few hours too late For the Rebs, though he did bully-rag 'em ;
And we now are advised, They are demoralized,

T-A-G Tag, After Cheatham and Bragg, Is the order at this present writing,
"Our men well in hand— An invincible band, Press on, all impediments slighting; But the enemy's rear We can't see far or near-Would that into the toils we could drag him, But he give us, alack!

'Stead of battle, the 'sack;'

Why don't he remain 'till we bag him!'

G—A—G Gag, How long shall our flag Be the scapegoat of humbug and blunder? Our soldiers are trumps, But we've too many gumps With straps on their shoulders, by thunder And O dear! what a scrape

We are in with "red tape," And with ax grinders, would we could gag

Were we well rid of these We'd soon bring to their knees
All the Union-dissolvers, and bag 'em. A Great Naval Problem Solved

THE EXPERIMENTS ON THE PASSAIC On Saturday the naval authorities in New Hork were the witnessess of a grand experiment-the trial of the new iron-clad steamer Passaic, the firing of her great 15 inch gun inside the turret, and the working of Mr. Ericsson's new machinery for hauling the gun, whereby the number of hands required is very materially reduced. At 10 o'clock the Passaic was reported ready. Among those on board were Admiral Gregory, General Superintendent of iron-clads; Chief Engineers Stimers, Lawton and Bobie; Capt Drayton, who commands the Passaic, and the representatives of the leading journals.

At a quarter past 10 the ropes were loosened the steam tug R. Birkbeck headed the vessel. up the river, and the engines of the Passaic began to move. Some fifteen minutes after her departure the cleaning out of the boilers began to tell. The Passaic was making seven miles an hour, with her machinery barely stirring.

Hitherto she had hardly done that at her best.

At 12 o'clock we arrived at the Palisades, and the first shot was fired. It struck about 800 yards from the vessel in the water, glanced off, and flew into bosom of the Palisades, kicking and flew into bosom of the Palisades, kicking the places recently appointed for the exchange of prisoners.

The steamboat Georgia arrived here yesterdly from Washington, with 196 rebel prisoners in charge of Lieutenant Weaver, of the 185th Pennsylvania Volunteers. They left this afternoon for City Point, the places recently appointed for the exchange of prisoners.

The reconnoiting party sent out from Yorkand fiew into bosom of the Palisades, kicking up more dust than a squadron of irregular cavalry. Every one rushed to the turret. Was it there? What part burst? Who's killed? No one—nothing broken—the turret was there, as strong and solid as the rock of Gibraltar. No one was smothered inside—no one designed; the concession was not felt, any more than the concession was not felt, any more than the concession was not felt, any more than the one was smothered inside—no one deafened; the concussion was not felt any more than the Captain of an old-fashioned 32 pounder feels it this morning.

The Newbern, N. C., Daily Progress of the gun. It recoiled seventeen inches.

This also was fired out of the 15 inch gun, there being really no need of discharging the 11 inch. The first shot having proved the practiinch. The first shot having proved the practicability of the principle, the entire charge of in price at Richmond, the market being overcability of the principle, the entire charge of 35 pounds of powder was now put in, Captain Drayton pulled the trigger. Once more the echoes of the Palisades rang out. The recoil and smoke were reported "insignificant," and the shot—a hollow one—buried itself again in the beach.

the beach. A full 35 pound was put in, and the 330 pound hollow shot. The ball struck the water as before, there being no desire to elevate the as before, there being no desire to elevate the gun, or to test any but the one great principle. There were three grand results.

First—A gun may be fired inside a turret.

Second—In order to appreciate the nature of the second result, it should be known that the Armstrong guns in England have been condemned for use on shipboard, chiefly because a sufficient number of men could not be placed in the turret to work them. Twenty-five failed to do it satisfactorily, and the Armstrong gun weighs fourteen tons. On Saturday, four men worked direction of Bath and Hancock.

It rained here heavily last night and at init satisfactorlly, and the Armstrong gun weighs fourteen tons. On Saturday, four men worked a fifteen inch gun, which weighs twenty tons. Here is, of itself, a revolution in navy labor, for which history furnishes no parallel. The Monitor's 11-inch gun, when worked with eight men, was deemed a miracle of metalic locomotion. Yet here is a gun, over 25,000 pounds heavier, worked by half the number of men, and next week Mr. Whitney will put a 15,000 pound gun on board the Keokuk, which will require twenty men, (because he has not even the Monitor plan,) while the 42,600 pound gun of the Passaic is moved by half four.

Third—The third result is a very important one. It is the immobility of the Passaic, and consequently of her sister ships, in a heavy tide. A deaf man could not tell yesterday that the vessel stirred. The writer held a full glass of water in his hand, while white caps were breaking over the deck, and the liquid never even trembled. Waves break on the iron margin of the craft and splash in harmless from about the deck. They have no hull to strike—no high bulwarks; even the turret presents an angle to day. The river is alowly rising, and when the flow from the mountains of such the river is alowly rising, and when the flow from the mountains of the likelihood of its soon being much higher, it is hardly probable that Jackeon will cross into Maryland, unless he should get possession of the rallroad bridge at North Branch, eight miles below Cumberland. It is to be presumed that that point is so well guarded by this time as to render it safe.

A small troop of rebel cavalry, under the command of the guerilla White, have established a rendesvous in the mountains near Key's Ferry, on the Shenandoah, and display a good deal of enterprise in capturing stragglers, sutler's wagons, and in making sudden dashes on any pickets.

Major Cole's Maryland cavalry is, however, following them up closely. A day or two ago aquad of this cavalry made a dash into Charles of the creating the country of sutlers, whose extended Genuine Heroism.—Among the many persons who suffered by the disruption of intercourse between the North and South, was a young man who had been a salesman in a large jobbing house, with an income of not less than $2000 a year. He controlled a large, trade, and looking forward to a promised partnership, had lived up to his income. He has a wife and four children. His trade was beyond reach, and no possible opening was before him. He was not a bookkeepper, knew no mechanical trade, and before him there was mechanical trade, and before him there was nothing but manual labor. He went as a brakesman on the freight cars of the Pennsylvania railroad, and standing upon the bumpers night and day, in snow and sleet, in heat and cold, he remained for sixteen months in that position. His hands blistered and indurated, but to him there was no toil so burdensome as idleness.

While others in like situation repine, or went hat in hand for the droppings from some army contractor's table, the man went cheerfully to toil. His perseverance and honest industry are now rewarded. He yesterday left for New Orleans, where a mercantile firm he ve tendered him a satisfactory engagement. We mention the case simply as an illustration of a courage greater a hundred-fold than battle field car to maintain his family, and does it willingly, displays true heroism.—Phila. Daily News.

in 1812. It is even said that polls were opened in Canada when our troops were there. They voted in the Mexican war. It was their votes They that elected a Democratic Governor. Now the Democrat, seeing that the soldiers would vote against them, to deprive them of the power of doing so—to disfranchise them—took the question up before a rebel sympathising Supreme Court, who to meet the case decided it uncon-Such has been the Democratic policy.-They discouraged the enlistment of Democrats, intending to keep them at home to vote, and drive those who were patriotic enough to endrive those who were parriotic enough to en-liat and fight the battles of the country of their right to vote. By this kind of engineering they have organized to carry their State ticket. Just wait till the boys get home again. They will pay them off, and with interest too. They feel justly indignant at the treatment and they will not seen forget it.—Chester County Times.

SAD AFFAIR.-Mrs. Van Pelt, wife of C. E. on toard the old-fashioned trigate.

The very first fire, then, results in no smoke to speak of, no inconvenient concussion and the complete success of a grand idea. The first charge consisted of 20 lbs. of powder, and a hollow shot, (330 lbs.) fired out of the 16 inch gun. It recoiled seventeen inches.

This also was fired out of the 15 inch gun,
