WILL THE REBELS EMANCIPATE? Some weeks ago, a report came by way o Kentucky that Jeff Davis and his cabinet were seriously considering the project of emancipating the slaves of the confederacy, in order to vecure recognition from European powers. The Kentucky papers continue to repeat the statement as if they believed it, and they now say further that the plan of the rebel leaders is to employ the slaves in the war, promising them their liberty at its close; and they add that tion of this policy is the fear that the southern slaveholders to President Lincoln's emancipation policy, on the presumption that abolition it does not come from the federal government, and that it is better to have abolition in the Union than outside of it.

An I there is remarks the Springfield Re publican, pertinence and force in this view of the matter. Whether Jeff Davis is already thinking of emancipation as a last resort or not. hinted at the time that the President had information of the intention of Jeff Davis to get ahead of him in this measure and so secure the advantages of the moral position before the world This may not have been strictly true, but it is well known that the European powers the agents of the confederacy that the promise of the future and gradual abolition of slavery they could not hope for any material assistance.

It is objected that it would be absurd to suppose that the rebels, after having seceded and the people of a free city. made war for the avowed object of strengthening slavery and making it the basis of their new government, should voluntarily destroy the very institution for which they are fighting. But the prime object of the rebel leaders now is their own salvation, which can only be made sure by success, and though they may not better reason to hope for effective interference willingly destroy elavery, they will do that or anything else rather than fail. If emancipation should appear to Jeff Davis to be the last and Patriot and Union stripe, are certainly quite only means of insuring the success of the rebel- as favorably disposed towards her as any symlion he would declare the southern slaves tree pathizers she may have across the water, and to-morrow. There can be no doubt of that. probably much more ready to render her any As to the use of the slaves in the war, we may assistance in their power, besides being in a pobe sure the rebels will have no scruples on that sition to do her considerable service. Let us then, watch the sympa soldiers to any available extent, more especially thizers with treason in our own midst, more as they have now nearly exhausted their white narrowly than we watch those across the waters reserves. The rebel papers give many indica. This condition of things must terminate, and, by direction of General Burnside, I ac-cordingly demand the surrender of the city into my hands, as the representative of the Government of the United States, on or before five clock this afternoon. Failing in an affirmative reply to this demand by the hour ind cated, sixteen hours will be permitted to elapse, for the removal from the city of the women and children, the sick and wounded, the aged, &c., which period having expired, I shall proceed to shell the town.

Upon obtaining possession of the city, every means will be taken to preserve order, and secure the operation of the laws and policy of the United States Government.

Your obedient servant E. N. SUMNÉR Brevet Major General, II, S. A., Commanding the Right Grand Division. THE REBELS REFUSE THE DEMAND.

On his arrival on the opposite side of the river, Gen. Patrick was conveyed to the guard house by the military, where he was detained until the reply was made.

In the meantime, his communication was conveyed to Gen. Longstreet whose troops are encamped a short distance outside of the city. To the demand made upon the civil authorities, the Mayor of Fredericsburg sent an answer which was evidently written at the dictation of Gen. Longstreet, to the effect that the comon our pickets and furnishing supplies and material to the Confederate army was concerned Also, that the rebels would dispute the occupa tion of the city by the Gevernment forces. The Mayor complained of the short space of time allowed for the removal of the women and children and sick soldiers.

The proposition to afford more time for this purpose is now under consideration. Permission has been given to the citizens to run one train from the city, but only for the conveyance of women and children.

STERLING'S AMBROSIA FOR THE HAIR.

HANDSOME HEAD OF HAIR is a crown A of glory. With proper care and culture it will last as a protection to the head as long as the nails do to the fingers, or the eyelashes to the eyes. Sterling's Ambrosia is the only article yet discovered that will bring about the desired results. It is a preparation the result of reience and experiment; the science pointing out what was needed, and experiment finding the required properties in certain roots, barks, and herbs. It has consumed a long time in its preparation, has been tested by persons of most undoubted reliability in this city, and is by them pronounced perfect, and the only satisfactory article, and is now offered to the public. The proprietors, determined to give it the most thorough tests, practical and chemical, and now cartain that it, will make the being a land on the cartain that it, will make the being a land of the cartain that it. certain that it will make the hair grow luxuri-antly on Dald Hoods, Preventing Grayness and Baldness, Reinvigorating and Beautifying the
