THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE FOR PRESIDENT, ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

HARRISBURG, PA.

MONRDAY EVENING, MARCH 14, 1864.

The City Election. The loyal men of the different wards. (with the exception of the Sixth, which will nominate to-night,) have now made their nominations, and the ticket will be found at the head of our local column. A careful examination of the men nominoted, will show that each ward has put forth its very best candidates. No better nominees were ever presented for the support of the people; and hence, we may fairly anticipate, that, at least a fair share of these will be successful at the polls next. Fri-

-We have no room to refer individually to those nominated; but we cannot refrain, at least, from making a brief reference to the Union nomineee for City Treasurer, Jacob D. Boas, late Sheriff of the county. The nomination may be regarded as particularly fortunate at this time. The great popularity of Mr. Boas-his indefatigable energy, known integrity and uncompromising loyalty, should certainly win in a contest where his opponent is an arrant, bitter, malignant and persistent sympathizer with the enemies of freedem and the country. It should require but a little effort to elect Mr. Boas City Treasurer; and that effort we are ready to second with whatever influence and ability we have at our com-

Speaker Penney.

We have already referred to the proud attitude occupied by the Speaker of the Senate. and the ability with which he presided during the efforts of the minority faction to obstruct legislation. In that attitude he attracted the attention of the ablest men of the country, because, however much the factionists may deny their complicity with treason, it is now an inferred, if it is not an established fact, that, while the minority of copperheads in the Senate were struggling to get possession of that body, overtures were being made to copperhead Governors throughout the free States, to raise the banner of revolt, and openly place the States which they govern, in resistance to the national authority. Hence, the struggle of such men as Clymer and Hopkins, in the Senate, was only a part of a deep and well laid plot to organize rebellion in the North, and by its force and effect, secure the success of rebellion in the South.

-The speech of Speaker Penney, which we print this afternoon, is more a personal explanation, than a lengthy discussion, of the issues involved in the struggle for the organization. It was delivered for the purpose of . vindicating his own action and sustaining the position he now occupies. In one sense this was scarcely called for; as no man ever holding a seat in either branch of the Legislature, was more confided in for the purity of his character, or more respected for the patriotism of his course, than John P. Penney. And yet it was just that Speaker Penney should place himself right on the record. In proof that he has done this effectively, we refer the reader to his speech.

The "Democratic" Candidate for the Presidency.

We were told by the Tory Organ, one day last week, that the mention of General McClellan's name, in the copperhead county convention, elicited the greatest enthusiasm of those present. This will not be regarded as surprising when it is known that some of these present at that convention, have openly avowed the justice and necessity of assassinating Abraham Lincoln; and who have also declared that, rather than see the abolition of slavery, they would behold with pleasure the streets of Harrisburg run red with blood. But to show how harmoniously our Northern and Southern rebols agree, we are reminded of a little development made before the pure. Provost Marshal of this district a few days since. It is the opinion of a rebel prisoner, whose accquaintance with his northern allies, the leaders of copperheadism, seems to be thorough and complete.

A train freighted with rebel prisoners passed through this city one day last week, on their way to Fort Delaware. In the neighborhood of Mifflintown, Juniata county, several of them escaped. Col. J. J. Patterson, Deputy Provost Marshal for that county, learning the fact of the escape, with characteristic promptness and energy, immediately took measures to secure a re-arrest, and was successful. The men were brought before Capt. Clement, Provost Marshal, at Harisburg, and sent on their way to join their companions at Fort Delaware. In the course of the examination before the Marshal, one of the prisoners said that the war was about closed out. They were only holding together to prevent being subjugated by the North, and the election of General G. B. McClellan would secure them all they asked for. That General McClellan was the best and most popular General at the North. This fact was well understood in the Confederate army. It was well known that the Democrats were opposed to subjugating the South, and that it was understood and arranged that McClellan should be elected, with a view to secure the Southern people their rights, and close the war. In answer to questions put to him he said further: "Oh, we know all about it. That's all arranged—you understand it as well as I do—we all understand it."

-When Gen. Lee had his famous interview with McClellan, he was doubtless in formed by the latter, of the extent of his (McClellan's) popularity, and in this manner the fact was communicated to the rebel army, to be at last conveyed, by a rebel prisoner, to the people of the North. Of course this popularity is to be tested; and as "Little Mac" has disappointed his friends in so many other particulars, it is highly probable that he will mislead them as to his popularity. The salary one we were supposed by the salar

Secretary Chase.

We have no personal antagonism to satisfy within our own organization—in that mighty organization of Union men which is now beginning to bind all the free States and which must sooner or later embrace the revolted States, thus frestoring the old Union to its equilibrium, force, majesty and influence. And while we have none of these personal antagonisms ourselves, it is not natural that we should be expected to tolerate them in others, or, in other words, to acknowledge the right of any man to wield the organization of the Union men of the country, to vent his personal spite and gratify his personal aspirations. The party of whose principles we are an humble advocate and supporter, was not organized to benefit men-to enrich families, or serve the base purposes of individuals. Its cohesive material was devised for other and nobler purposes. Its great elements were brought together and consolidated, that a nation might be disenthralled and regeneratedso that any attempt to mar its harmony by assaults springing from internal strife, upon its noblest members, are equally to be opposed as the external opposition for its complete destruction. We are led to these remarks by the disposition of some of our cotemporaries to reflect upon the course and position of Secretary Chase. These reflections are not only confined to certain journals, but they come also from certain public men, claiming to be the exponents of the principles so dearly cherished by the loyal men of the land. All this is sheer folly. Secretary Chase, as a statesman, a financier and a patriot, cannot be traduced with impunity before the American people. The faith of the people in his financial ability and integrity is solid and unwavering. Separate his name from our national currency, and it would be difficult to tell the extent of disaster to the best interests of the country which would follow, and to the cause of the country itself; for it must be apparent to every reasoning man, that the salvation of the Union depends almost as much upon sustaining our currency as in sustaining our armies. The rebellion may be aided quite as materially in making war upon the one as upon the other, and we see very little difference, so far as the issue of the war is concerned, between the efforts of any one of Jeff. Davis' generals and of those who take the lead in the free States, in the assaults upon the national finances. The tendency of their operations is the same, although they act from different motives. The motive of the rebel is the desire of success for the Southern confederacy, while that which is at the bottom of the copperhead war upon Secretary Chase, apart from a personal antipathy, is the desire to secure control of the patronage which the Treasury Department possesses.

-While we preferred another to Mr. Chase, as our candidate for the Presidency, we did not by that preference, lessen our confidence in the ability or the integrity of the great financier. He is undoubtedly the ablest and the most sagacious man that ever controlled the finances of any nation. To his skill are we indebted for the wonderful prosperity which has attended all our financial operations connected with the effort to crush rebellion-a prosperity which is just as essential for national success, as is the victory of our armed efforts to crush rebellion. Entertaining these views, we constrained to protest agains the assaults made on Secretary Chase, as being unjust to the man and unfair to the nation which he has faithfully served.

Personal and Political.

The Washington correspondent of the Commercial says that the Legislature of California has adopted a resolution inviting Senator M'Dougal, of that State, to resign. It is not probable that he will take the hint: but it would be well for California, and all other States, to be careful in the future as to sending such worthless and malignant men to Congress. M'Dougal is scarcely ever in a fit condition to transact business; certainly never. f report is correct, to occupy a place in the counsels of the nation, where the head should be clear, the judgment balanced and the heart

A Democratic meeting in Butler county, Ohio, adopted, last week, an amendment to some resolutions, to the effect that "our delegates to the Convention be instructed to vote for no candidate who is not opposed to the further prosecution of the war, and to support Seymour, of Connecticut, or Vallandigham, of Ohio, as the Demacratic candidate for President!"

The Cincinnati Commercial asserts, from positive knowledge, that "deputations of Copperheads from the West have visited Governor SEYMOUR, at Albany, and brought a pressure upon him, to take the lead in a Northern insurrection. It is proper to say that Mr. DANIEL W. Voorhees, of Indiana, member of Congress from the Terre Haute district, called to see Governor SEXMOUR on this business, and was exceedingly disgusted because he did not find the Governor ripe for rebellion."

The people of Nevada, it appears, prefer that their Uncle Samuel shall support them yet awhile in their territorial or infant condition. They aspire not to State honors; believing that "sovereignty" is a political humbug, they can conveniently dispense with it for the present. They recently decided, by a large majority, not to accept a State Constitution which their Nestors, at the expense of much mental labor and whisky, had prepared for their acceptance. This is particularly unfortunate for the "aspiring youths" of Nevada, who had persuaded themselves they were destined to ornament the National Capitol, by sitting in its chambers as Senators and Representatives from the nascent State. In one of his recent lectures, George Thompson referred to the "musk-scented, rose-tinted" aristocracy of England, and suggested that their ideas of propriety were shocked by the elevation of a once poor boy, who had practiced rail-splitting, to be the head of our nation. Gen. Kilpatrick arrived in Baltimore yesterday, from Fortress Monroe, and left immediately for Washington,

Written for the Patriot and Union. Our Common Schools.-- No. 2.

MR. EDITOR:—I am happy to learn that you have concluded to allow me a little space in your columns for the presentation of a few facts and suggestions, in regard to the work-ings of the Common School system in our community. As you cannot spare me much room, I will endeavor to be as brief as possi-

The first question that presents itself is this: Have the provisions of the Common School law been fully carried out in our city? And to this we must answer, No! It is plainly the intent of the second section of the law that the existing separate school boards in every larger town or city, should at once be consolidated into a Board of Controllers, whom it authorizes and requires to perform all the duties belonging to boards of directors of single districts, with one exception; and what is that exception? The control of the school property, previously held by those separate wards. In all other respects the school directors of enobleity, that claimed a portion of the school fund of the State, were to act together and thus secure for the whole city a uniform system of instruction, uniform series of school books, equally capable teachers for of Benor books, equally capacie teachers for all parts of the population, &c., &c. Thus the door was at once opened for a thorough grading of the schools, and such an arrangement and distribution of them as would best meet the wants of the entire community. A little reflection will convince any one of the wisdom of this arrangement, and also of the prudence that suggested the exception above referred to. For, the framers remem-above referred to. For, the namers remembered that large towns and cities were already divided into separate districts for school purposes, and that to merge at once all such wards into one school district, might occasion some trouble, in consequence of the unequal distribution of the school property among the different existing wards, and therefore, whilst plainly intimating the opinion, that it would ultimately be best to have also the school property of the entire city under the care of the Board of Controllers and whilst in this same section making express provision for the transfer of all such property, by the separate school boards to said Board of Controllers whenever they may choose to do so; the law provides that, until such transfer shall have been voluntarily made, the previously existing wards shall retain their school property and have the sole control of

In precise accordance with this act of Assembly, the city charter specifies that the school districts shall "be and remain as now established by law" * "until otherwise arthe city charter specifies that the ranged and altered by law."

But, whilst the existing school boards of our city, have complied with the school law in retaining control of the buildings severally owned by them, they have come very far short of meeting the demands of the law in regard to the union of action and effort in carrying on the general educational interests entrusted to their care. Only after repeated efforts on the part of some of their number, could they be induced to meet at all as a Board of Controllers. The directors of the North ward, however, being all in favor of the movement, and then the business transacted in that capacity was reduced to a minimum, merely sufficient to secure the city's quots of the annual appropriation by the Legislature, for common school purposes. There has indeed een some progress made in the right direction, but one of the leading designs of the law, in the establishment of Boards of Controllers, has hitherto been left out of view.

Contradiction of a Rumor.

THE REXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.

WASHINGTON March 14. The National Intelligencer of this morning says: Rumors, evidently founded upon misapprehension, having obtained currency to the effect that the health of General Meade had becomes o much impaired as to induce his resignation of the command of the Army of the Potomae, and gone so far as to state his. successor, we are happy to be able to state, as we do on good authority, that this distinguished officer has entirely recovered from his recent indisposition, and that he has never entertained the remostest intention of retiring from a position in which, we may add, he has the army, and where he has earned such high military reputation.

The recent visits of General Mende to this city, as we understand, have been for the purpose of consultation, and to give testimony before the Committee on the Conduct of the War, and not in view of any contemplated separation from his command. He was expected to return this morning to the army.

Retaliation for the Killing of Dahlgren.

Rebel Cavalry Routed, and Stores Destroyed. FORTRESS MONROE, March 12.

General Butler sent a portion of Kilpatrick's cavalry (Colonel S. Onderdonk and Spears' cavalry) to King and Queens Court House, to deal with the citizens claiming to be "noncombatants," who ambushed Colonel Dahlgren.]
General Kilpatrick sent forward Colonel

Onderdonk's command. The latter reports that the 5th and 9th Virginia cavalry, with the citizens of that place, twelve hundred in all, were driven from camp near Carollin's store. The camp was taken, and a number killed. Twenty prisoners were captured. The enemy were also driven from the Court House, and a large amount of grain, mills and storehouses were burned.
