ductors and Correspondents. We have no quarrel with the editors or correspendents of the Philadelphia Daily News, notwithstanding the former have assailed us with unprovoked brutality, and some of the latter have cost us several hundred dollars in the payment of their defalcations to the Commonwealth. But in the discussion of the removal question, the News has dragged in so many irrelevant points, that it now becomes our duty to expose at least the fraud, it attempted to perpetrate while laboring for the success of the stupendous wrong of removal. In the first place, the News asserts that the city of Philadelphia now pays two-thirds of the State taxes. It may be true that Philadelphia is largely assessed, but it is also true that the books of the State Treasurer will exhibit the fact that Philadelphia is to-day in arrears hundreds of thousands of dollars on her State taxes, while at the same time the yearly appropriation by the Legislature to support private and public charitable institutions in that city amounts to more than all the money which is given by the State to all the other counties in the Commonwealth. The News further asserts, that so corrupt has Harrisburg become, that it is now considered a disgrace instead of an honor to sit in the Legislature. This is decidedly cool, when it is remembered that the bulk of the money used in corrupting the Legislature comes from Philadelphia, and that neither that corporation, or the citizens thereof, ever seek an act of legislation without the use of money. The people of the rural districts never sought the corruption of the Legislature. That base business belongs to Philadelphia. Money is the god there-and with her money Philadelphia would, if she could, corrupt all the branches of the Government, to build up all the interests of her

-The removal question has now been settled. The vote on its final settlement fixes its doom forever. Philadelphia will never be the capital of the Commonwealth, unless the power of her corruptionists should prevail over some future Legislature, of which we have a notion the people will hereafter have a care. In the meantime let the News devote itself to abusing the Inquirer, an abuse which is daily adding to the popularity of that journal in the interior, and rendering the Inquirer actually the most valuable newspaper published in the metropolis. Indeed, the Inquirer is the only Philadelphia newspaper that now recognizes the rural districts, and respects their interests. All the other journals of Philadelphia are so extremely "statesmanlike" in their course, and devoted so exclusively to foreign and National affairs, as to forget the thrifty, industrious, hardy and patriotic people of our mountains and valley in the interior. The people understand these facts and regard the Inquirer, notwithstanding its abuse by the News, as at present the only journal published in Philadelphia which devotes a fair share of its columns to the advocacy and defence of the great interests of Pennsylvania.

The Credit of Pennsylvania.

Many of the copperhead journals still continue to harp upon the justice of sending gold to England, to pay the interest on the bonds of Pennsylvania, held in that country; while at the same time, the same organs are endeavoring to impress their readers with the fact that those who advocate a payment of the State interest in the currency afforded by the National Government are advocating repudiation The purpose of these organs is to make capital against the National Government by destroying the popularity of its credit, and render the Union men of the State odious by convicting them of a purpose to cheat the creditors of the Commonwealth. tor, not often heard on the floor of the House, The question is simply this :- Shall the State pay according to its promise, an interbearing on the question before that body; but est of six per cent, in the 'lawful currency of the United States," on its bonds, or shall it to the country and the immediate constituents pay nine or ten per cent.? It is honest to pay the debts of the State according to the terms of its obligations, and that honesty which affects to reach beyond this point, is a little strained. We cannot approve of that discrimination which would pay an Englishman in gold and an American in greenbacks. If we were more English than American, and loved that country and people better than this, perhaps we might lean to the foreign side of this question; but as it is, we are content to see the creditors of this State fare alike. Pay all, or none, in gold. It would be a pity to im-

heroic deeds, of men whose valor on the field of battle entitle them to the gratitude and applause of their countrymen. There is no portion of our editorial duty which we discharge with more alacrity and satisfaction, than that to which we now refer. To applaud the gallant defenders of the country's honor-to encourage the brave combatants of treason-and shout the name of the heroes in loud peans of praise, is not only a labor of love but a duty of patriotism in which no true man can hesitate for a moment to engage. But, we have frequently been impressed with the fact that there are heroes of whom the country knows little, and who are as deserving of applause and admiration as are those who march steadily up to the cannon's mouth, who fill up the breach, and who quail not before the sabrestroke. The brave are not only to be found in the ranks or in command of the army. The gallant are not only those who rush into battle when death riots in havoc. And yet the world seems to think so. But the world was never more mistaken than it is on this subject. The world as it is now, filled with corruption, darkened by sin, and ready, as it were, for its final damnation, refuses to recognize the hero who is doing what is right - the honest man who is resisting temptation - the sober, virtuous and industrious people, who are content to pass along noiselessly, laboring for the good and the glory of the country, and satisfied with the achievement of these as their greatest reward. Thank God, that the country is full of such men and women! We'do not hear of them often—they are seldom seen thrusting themselves on the attention of the masses, bellowing for power or grasping for gain; and yet, without these men and women, without their virtue and their integrity, the country never could have survived the terrible three years of rebellion through which it has just passed. These are the heroines and heroes who deserve our loftiest admiration. Those who do right, whose temptation is so great to do wrong, are the truly heroic. Those who shun evil, when its paths are bright, and when the way to good is apparently bleak and dreary, display a valor rising higher than the fierce courage of the battle-field. And these, too. are the heroines and the heroes whom future ages will bless, if not in name, at least in the influence which their works will aid in dispensing future blessings to mankind. The man who patiently labors for the support of himself and family; who dignifies his toil by his honesty and sobriety; who makes his thrift his shield against temptation; who hates gain if it is accompanied by crime who despises the lustre of riches if it does not reflect purity of soul and generosity of heart—such a man is a hero, more famous than those of martial reputation; a prince, more worthy of a coronet than he who traces his ancestry to bastardy and ends his genealogy in pollution!

It is time that we pay more attention to the heroes of honesty and the heroines of virtue. It is time that the tinsel and the ribbons, which have so long hidden the deformity of accepted heroes and heroines, be stripped from their persons,

"Give fools their silks and knaves their wine, A man's a man for a' that."

It is time that merit, not presumption, be ecognized in all the departments of this world's business. Whatever is worth doing is worthy of being well done. Thus, too, that which is only truly worthy should be recogized. We should recognize this fact regardless of whether it appears in the zeal of an orator's tongue swelling with burning eloquence, or whether it is heard in the simplest words of truth humbly spoken for the vindication of justice and the glorification of God! The heroic, in man, is never so majestic as when it is truthful. The heroic, in woman, is never so beautiful as when it is virtuous! Heroism springs from honest labor quite as gloriously as it does from dauntless valor. We live in an age of iron, not pinch-back. An upheaval will shortly come ave, must come which will sink to eternl infamy the cowardice of Wrong, and elevate to peerless grandeur the majestic heroism of Right! Let the toiler, then, not faint or become weary in his rugged path-let Chastily not blush in its homely garb, as Vice flaunts her silks and flashes her diamonds; because God is with the Right and heaven is full of virtue.

Re-Nomination of Two Faithful Repre-

The telegraph has already announced the renomination of Hon. J. K. Morehead and Hon. Thos. E. Williams to represent the districts which are now represented by them in Congress, after the expiration of the their present term. We cannot refrain from expressing our gratification at this result, as well for the sake of the principles at stake as for our regard personally, for the men thus honored. Hon. J. K. Morehead has already represented his district in Congress for four years, while the nomination of Hon. Thos. E. Williams is for a second Congress. The former is an industrious, practical, thorough-going legislaexcept it is in the utterance of words directly he is invaluable in committee, and faithful alike whom he represents. The latter is emphatically, to-day, one of the very ablest men in Congress; if not one of the foremost men in the country in point of intellect. Indeed, Hon. Thomas E. Williams has few equals in all the requirements of a legislator, and certainly no superior in the qualifications which constitute a successful debater and a popular orator. Pennsylvania may justly be proud of these two men in her Congressional delegation. Of course their election is certain.

REPORTS FROM THE PRONT. Officers from the front to-night profess to believe that active operations will not be com menced just yet.

The enemy are again busily engaged in throwing up more earthworks and digging rifle-pits covering the various fords along the line of the Rapidan. Their pickets have been strengthened along their whole front, and extended further down the river toward our Picket-firing has again been resumed, and small skirmishes take place almost daily on the outposts.

THE REBELS IN THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY. There is no truth in the report of the con entration of a large force in the Shenandoal Valley, near Front Royal. The only rebe orce in the valley is Early's division of Ewell's corps, which our troops there outnumber two to one. Early's forces augmented by irregular cavalry of Imboden, White, Mosby and Gilmore, do not, in all, amount to six thon sand. Prescott Smith, of Baltimore, the ne cessity of whose position insures full knowledge of the condition of affairs in that region fully confirms these statements. Something important is expected before long from Gen.

BUBNSIDE AND GRANT.

Gen. Burnside visited Gen. Grant to-day is head quarters, on business connected with his department.

BUMORS ABOUT GEN. HOOKER. Rumors that Hooker has come on from the West, and is at Harper's Ferry, are utterly unfounded.

A RECONNOISSANCE TO MADISON COURT-HOUSE Advices from the Army of the Potomac state that a brigade of cavalry, under Gen. Devin, went out yesterday to Madison Court-house on a reconnoissance, and found a party of about thirty rebels in the place, most of whom they captured. No force of the enemy was discovered anywhere in that vicinity, although it was currently reported that they had crossed the Rapidan, and were moving toward our right. The expedition returned without any loss.

OFF WILMINGTON, April 22.—We took off this morning two more refugies from Wil. mington. They gave us some very valuable information of the enemy's movements. The enemy are sending all the men they can to the rebel capital. They say they expect to be attacked from three different points. and from the information which we have derived they are going to make a desperate effort to drive our forces out of Virginia and North Carolina

Yorktown, April 26.—A rebel deserter, who entered our lines at Williamsburg yesterday, brings intelligence of the existence of a con siderable panic at Richmond and Petersburg, the rebels living in momentary expectation of the sudden appearance of one or more strong Union columns. Many of the inhabitants are moving further to the South, and the impression is general that Grant's campaign will eventuate in success, and that Richmond will be compelled to succumb to the heavy masses of troops moving under his command.

This deserter has served for a long time past in Florida, and succeeded in effecting his escape while on furlough at Richmond. He states that troops are being rapidly moved forward from all the Atlantic States to the rebel capital. The utmost difficulty is experienced by the rebel authorities in obtaining transportation, and this is assigned as the cause of the delay in the arrival of Long-street's corps at Richmond.

The roads on the Peninsula are in splendid condition for a movement of troops. There has been no rain of a serious character for some time, and but little difficulty would be met with in moving a heavy force, with all its accompanying trains and artillery.

Some of the less important documents are omitted, and in some instances the account has been condensed, yet never so as to interfere with the interest or completeness of the story. Unquestionably this book stands pre-eminent in interest among all yet occasioned by the rebellion. Its subject and author combine to render it fascinating. Fifteen editions have been called for as fast as they could be printed. It has been most warmly commended by the loyal press of the country, and scarcely less so by a portion at least of the English press, by whom it is acknowledged to be a complete vindication of Gen. Butler from the malicious charges which envy and barred have brought against him.
