Report of Surgeon General King. We print to-day the report of the Surgeon General of Pennsylvania, in reference to the condition of the wounded men, belonging to regiments from this State, now in the hospitals of Washington, with an account of the relief afforded to such as these on the battle field. In all these matters Surgeon General King has left nothing undone to secure the relief and comfort of the wounded men of of able volunteer surgeons. # The Reserve Corps Resolved to Remain with the Army Until Richmond dis Reduced.

By our special dispatches this afternoon, from Washington, it will be seen that the survivors of the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps. have resolved to remain with the Army of the Potomac until Richmond has been captured. This action, while it will sorely test the patience of the friends of the Reserves at home, preparing to give them a glorious welcome, still reflects the highest credit on those gallant heroes and crowns their services with the evidence of a devotion unparalleled in the history of the American Union. All over the Commonwealth a grateful people will respond to the gallantry of the Reserves in prayers and supplications to God for their protection!

The Position of the Army of the Potomac.

In locating the present position of our army some attention must be paid to names. Hanovertown must not be confounded with Hanover Court House, from which it is distantin a southeast direction about ten miles. Hanovertown is on the west side of the Pamunkey river, above the White House, so well known in General McClellan's campaign, and is by the country roads about fifteen miles from Richmond. It should also be observed that General Grant is approaching Richmond, not as General McClellan did from the southeast, but almost directly from the north, thus bringing him above the Chickahominy swamps which were so great an obstacle to the Peninsula campaign. The movement of our army will necessitate another change of base. -West Point and White House are the most accessible points, and, being directly in Grant's rear, can be well guarded. There is also the advantage of a railroad from West Point to Richmond, which was extensively used during M'Clellan's campaign.

The Episcopal Church and Slavery. It is the high prerogative of the Church to whence it emanates or the shape in which it appears. . Most of the churches, not dependent upon the efforts of men for their success. but relying on God for the fullness of their triumphs, have been exercising this prerogative in reference to the causes and the effects of this rebellion. The Methodist Presbyterian, Lutheran, Baptist Congregational, Mennonites and other church denominations whose representatives convene in conventions for the transaction of business connected with their organizations, have emphatically avowed a firm confidence in the purity of our Government, a noble reliance in the justice of the cause for which freemen are now contending, and a holy horror for the barbarities, atrocities and villainies of the institution of slavery. As Christian men, believing in the equalities and respecting the injunctions of the God whom they serve, they could not do less, and as a faithful journalist, we have on all occasions commended this loyal action on the part of the churches of the free States. With a strict desire, now, to continue impartial in this faithfulness as a journalist, we are constrained to refer to the fact that a convention of representatives of the clergy and laity of the Episcopal church, recently assembled at Pittsburg, deliberately and decidedly, refused to pass a series of resolutions condemning the cause of the war as it is centered in slavery, and approving the effort to crush it in the noble sacrifices of the people. One hundred and twenty-five of its members, or a majority of the whole number, refused, 1st, to denounce the "authors and actors of this rebellion; 2d, to recognize the hand of Providence in training the American people "to do justice to a long oppressed and outraged race;" 3d, to approve all "constitutional means for the speedy and total abolition of slavery throughout the land." What' they were in favor of, and what they adopted, was a doughface resolution which passes no censure upon Southern rebels, which expresses no desire to see the rebellion weakened by firmly as we believe anything, that there were nen in that Convention who would rejoice to see the rebellion successful, and who would assist to keep the chains upon the victims of Southern slavery. To say that we regret that the Convention did not possess the humane and Christian spirit which led Bishop Potter o protest against the defence of slavery by Bishop Hopkins, would be using tame words. We believe that it is the solemn duty of every oyal member of the Episcopal Church—of every member who hates slavery as the cause of the rebellion which is murdering our countrymen by hundreds and thousands to ake prompt and manly steps to show to the world their disapprobation of the milk-andwater proceedings of this Convention!

> Dear Str.: I am pained to be compelled to make an apology for not responding in person to your invitation to meet the gallant 79th on its return from its long, brilliant, and honored service in the war for the defence of the Republic. They have presented to the world a glorious spectacle of independent patriotic men—every one of them independent, because each relied on his own character and his own exertions for his support—leaving their com-fortable homes for the hardships of a soldier's life to save the country which had given them an asylum: They were not mercenary sol-diers for they volunteered without any bounty, and in three years' service have been found in all the important battles in the States of Virginia, South Carolina, Maryland, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Georgia. Everywhere, by ac-cident or design, this regiment has been put into the front of the battles. More than once into the front of the battles. More than once it seemed to me that they were made the for-lorn hope; and in no case has even an individual soldier been known to waver in the hottest of the fight. To such men all honor is due, and I trust this country will be forever than the for some weeks I have exgrateful to them. For some weeks I have expected the arrival of the regiment, and anticipated the pleasure of taking the returned Highlanders by the hand, for every one of them has endeared himself to me by associations which time cannot obliterate from my tions which time cannot obliterate from my memory, and every one of them has made me proud of his acquaintance by the patriotism, the cool courage, and the uncomplaining endurance with which the whole regiment has borne all the hardships incident to a soldier's life. I heg that you will greet the 79th Highlanders for me. Say to them that I am proud of them—proud that they were organized under my directions, and proud of my common descent with them from the 'men of the hills," who have always been as true to their Gov. who have always, been as true to their Gov ernment and their country as to their God, and who have never turned their backs upon a friend or a foe. Repeating my regret at not being able to meet you. I beg you, sir, to believe me, very sincerely, your friend.

To Geo, Mitchell, Esq., Chief of Caledonian Club.

In connection with the above, we are en abled, through the kindness of Gen. Cameron, to lay the following letter before our readers, giving a brief description of the banquet at which the Highlanders were entertained, and expressing the high regard with which Gen.
