ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF GETTYS BURG.—Persons wishing to attend the great Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, to be celebrated on the battle field on Monday next, July 4th, can reach that place at 11 o'clock, A. M., by leaving Harrisburg on the Northern Central accommodation train, at 7 A. M. Train so early, and besides avoiding the great believe no express train leaves here at 2.30 on Monday morning. If persons could leave here at that time they would reach Gettysburg at 7.30 A. M. A grand time is anticipated. Gov. Curtin will be present.

DISTURBING A SLEEPER .- Sleeping on a cellar door, in ancient days, when feats of that character were common, was still esteemed a daring achievement-but a nocturnal nap on a railroad track now eclipses all cellar door. siestas. Indeed, it is a nightly business for those connected with the different railroad depots, to rescue drowsy and drunken individuals from sure destruction by persisting to sleep either on or close to railroad tracks. Some of the most horrible accidents have resulted from this reckless habit of seeking sleeping accommodations, as it were, thus in the very jaws of death. This morning, as the fast Express was going west, and just before the train reached the depot, the engine was stopped and the alarm given that a man lying on the track had been run over. Going a short distance to the rear, those in charge of the train discovered a prostrate man (?) stupefied with liquor, considerably bruised but not fatally injured. The poor inebriate had sought sleep near the track, and as the train passed he was caught by the "cow-catcher and either dragged or thrown a considerable distance. If that inebriate had been mangled and instantly hurried into eternity, would the vender of the poison which destroyed his senses, been responsible for his slaughter and his salvation?

In Motion-The Hill Clock.-We noticed, some time since, that Mr. George M'Calla had been authorized to overhaul and repair the hill clock, and to supply it with such new additions as would make it hereafter a correct indicator of time. The machinery of the clock was all removed and completely repaired, while the additions made were of the most important character; and, in the future, Mr. M'Calla intends to render the hill clock a reguator for time in this city, as far, at least, as its capacity and machinery will admit Hereafter we can regulate our watches and locks by Harrisburg time, as it will be indiated by the hill clock. Heretofore, we were controlled by what is called "railroad time," egulated by calculations made at Altoona, ad based on observations at Philadelphia nd Pittsburg. While such calculations served he workings of a railroad, it did not, of ourse, indicate the mean time of this latiade. The difference between Harrisburg nd what is called Penna. railroad time is allmost ten minutes; indeed, the time of no wo railroads running into and through this ender it impossible to regulate by either for ags of the hill clock.

A report was put in circulation on Tuesday, and was published in the Organ. subsequently, that a mutiny had occurred in Fort Washington, and that the battery located there had been ordered to leave. Provost Marshal Opdyke gives us the following account of an affair that is supposed to have caused the rumor above referred for

It appears that on Monday evening about 5 o'clock, Lt. Stanwood, of the 3d U. S. Cavalry, arrived at Bridgeport, having in his charge about one hundred recruits, who were en route for the front, from Carlisle Barracks. When on their way from Carlisle to Bridgeports a difficulty arose between some of the men, and resulted in the wounding of two or three of them. Upon arriving at the opposite side of the river, Lieut. Stanwood came to this city, and applied for a guard to take charge of the men until eleven o'clock, at which hear they were to leave for Washington. The guard was furnished by Provost Marshal Op-
