We have no epace for discussing causes, but will state that the effect of the discase is the conversion of the starchy principle (or vegetable portion of the food) into sugar, which atimulates the kidneys to an excessive secretion of water. Many persons suffer from this disease who are ignorant of it; that is, they pass large quantities during the day, and are oblight to get up from one to fifteen or wenty; times during the night. No notice is taken of it until their attention is called to the large discharge of water, and often when it is so far advanced as to be beyond the control of ordinary remedies. Another symptom is the great thirst, which, when the discase is fully estab-lished, is indicrable...the patient drinks constantly without being satisfied; also dryness of the mouth, cracking of the type a sweet breath, in the more advanced cases, and inally loss of appetite, emaciation, and the patient gradu-aly sinks from exhaustion.
