HARRISBURG, PA. THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 18, 1864.

NATIONAL UNION TICKET:

FOR PRESIDENT, Abraham Lincoln,

> OF ILLINOIS. FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

Andrew Johnson, OF TENNESSEE.

Who are the Friends of the Soldier. The result of the late election, centering on the proposition of extending the elective franchise to the soldier, is perhaps the proudest achievement ever wrought by the American people at the ballot box. Indeed, since the formation of the Union, or rather since the adoption of the State Constitution, no question of equal importance agitated the public mind. It was not an issue merely involving the prosperity of one particular branch of business. It was not a question whether iron should be admitted to our ports on ad valorem or specific duties. It did not involve the improvement of rivers or harbors, or a division of the proceeds of the sale of public lands. It was a question rising higher than the mere profits of business-a question affecting the dearest rights of a freeman, while he was attesting his highest claims to citizenship by perilling his life in defence of the law and order of the land; Such was the issue involving the right of the soldiers' exercise of the elective franchise. At the election on the Amendment of the Constitution guaranteeing this right to the soldier, it became a question between the two great parties of the State, and never before was a contest more bitterly canvassed than the one which decided this result. The Democratic alias Copperhead leaders made the issue broad and distinct. he was a hireling and a slave, and therefore unfit to be invested with the franchises of a freeman. In order to understand how the Democratic leaders managed their hostility to the soldier, we need only refer the reader to the tabular report of the official vote we publish to-day. From that it will be seen that in all the "well regulated" Democratic districts-in all the election districts where copperhead sympathy for treason prevails to a large extent, there the soldier was opposed—there the effort was strongest to deny to the man willing to to peril his life in defence of his country, a right to participate in the government thereof. And vice versa, where true Union sentiment prevailed, there the vote in favor of the amendment was strong and the majority decisive. There never was a return of an election so highly worthy of the study of the people, as the returns we publish to day; and in order to show the feeling in strong Union and Copperhead counties, in regard to the soldier, we submit the vote in counties for and against the first amendment:

pieture, and see how the copperhead leaders treat their friends, who, they have all along claimed, make up the great bulk of the army All through the war the country and the world was assured that the "Democracy" were doing the fighting—now look how the Democracy at home treat their fellow Democrats in the field. Here is the vote of a number of such DEMOCRATIC COUNTIES:

the true attitude of the Democratic leaders. They oppose the enfranchisement of the soldier, the same as they oppose the war. To these demagogues, whatever leads to the elevation of the soldier, whatever promises to strengthen our arms and give victory to our cause, is the same, and will be opposed with equal bitterness. Indeed, the great majority of the votes polled against extending the elective franchise to a soldier, could be controlled by the same leaders in favor of Jeff. Davis for the Presidency. It is the animus of Democratic sympathy for treason. It is the avowal of a hatred to all, alike he who fights for or who advocates the cause of his country

THE PROMOTION OF A GOOD MAN is alike a benefit to the cause he serves, and an act of iustice which never fails to excite the emulation of those within the influence of the ecognition. For these reasons we are sure the promotion of Col. James A. Ekin, to the rank of Colonel in the Regular Army, will be of vast benefit to the service, and encourage other Men," and on his return from the field, was unanimously elected Lieutenant-Colonel of the celebrated "Round-Head Regiment," commanded by Col. Leasure. Before taking the field with this regiment, Lieut. Col. Ekin wis appointed a captain in the regular army, and ordered to the Southwest, as quartermaster at a most important post, remaining there until December, 1863, when he was called to Washington, and placed at the head of a bureau as chief quartermaster of cavalry. Since then he has steadily risen in rank and influence; until he now holds the important position just Majority for the 3d amendment : 131,924 named, having been placed in charge of the first division of the Quartermaster's Department, a position for which we know he is entirely competent, as well for his administrative abilities, his courtesies as a gentleman, and his discipline as a soldier. We consider such a promotion an honor not only to the service, but to the State and the friends whom Col. Ekin represents.

leader, McCausland, was burning Chambers. burg, an undefended village in this State, which had never offered resistance, turning half naked women and babes out from their flaming houses, destroying churches and hespitals, and violating, with his robber crew, all the laws of honorable warfare acknowledged among civilized nations. The weeks earlier, a Union General—Rousseau—was in the heart of the rebel country, in Alabama; he found in a certain village, named Loachapoke, a depot of rebel stores and a factory. These were very properly burnt, but the adjacent houses of the citizens were saved by the personal exertions of the General and his soldiers - the latter putting their own wet blankets on the roofs. In Talladega, a confederate gun factory was broken up rather than burned, for fear that private houses might also suffer. Again, at another station, the hospitals and tents for the sick rebels were carefully spared. We like such contrasts, and were not surprised at them. General Rousseau is the public officer of a great nation, and he is a gentleman; McCausland is a vulgar brigand and rebel, serving a horde of robbers, and he is a copperhead. 110

A FEARFUL RIOT almost took place in Johnstown on Saturday last, between a gang of copperheads and a squad of soldiers. We have been surprised that a bloody riot did not long since age in that village, as the Johnstown Democrat is laboring with might and main to bring a collision about between loyal men and those who sympathize with the slaveholders' t eason. Indeed, we doubt if there is a sheet in the South viler or filthier in its accusations of the National Government-denving They were opposed to extending the right of every national franchise—insulting eve y nathe elective franchise to the soldier, because tional feeling of pride—and seeking in every he was a hireling and a slave, and therefore way to degrade the nation to the service either of slave y or party. It is the open advocate of rebellion, and if Pennsylvania should be cursed with civil war, such sheets as the Johnstown Democrat will be responsible for the

The Militia Bill

Passed the House of Representaves finally yesterday afternoon. It has been variously amended from the bill we published a few days since, but the main features have been preserved. The Senate will no doubt consider it to-day, and we hope to see it the law of the land in a few days. Fifteen copperheads in the House voted against it on final passage.

Seven thousand cases of soldiers' claims for back pay, bounty, &c., were passed in the Second Comptroller's office, at Washington, last month. Over forty thousand are now on the book, and the average monthly increase is from five to six thousand.

GEN. Scorr's memoir of himself will soon appear in two volumes from the press of Sheldon, New York, It will comprise about eleven hundred pages, and a most interesting work may be looked for,

Another report of the defeat.

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—The Dacotah Union says that Gen. Sully, with 3,000 men, left Fort Rice on the 18th ult., moving freetly west, to strike the Yellow Stone river at Fort Alexander. A courier arrived at Ft. Rice on the 21st, with the intelligence that 1,700 lodges of hostile Indians were encamped near Fort Berthold, prepared to give Sully battle. This intelligence was immediately sent to Gen. Sully, and should Gen. Rigaud deem it relinble, he will probably change his course, and attack the Indians.

Омана Crry, August 17. The overland stage company con inue to remove their stock to places of safety from the incursions of the Indians, who attacked three coaches loaded with passengers seven miles east of Cottonwood this day at noon. Soldiers have been sent to their relief, and it is ascertained by reliable scouts that in less than twenty days a simultaneous attack will be made by combined bands of Cheyennes, Klowas, Utes, Snakes, Camanches, and Arrapahoes on Fort Kearney, Fort Cottonwood, and all along the Platte Valley. Every measure is being taken by the whites to give them a warm reception. All the ranches have been deserted, and the families are taking refuge in the forts.

Depredations continue to be made daily on the stock, conches and stations. The tele-graph operator at Alkale Lake has been driven off, and stock has been taken on the more off, and stock has been taken on the more thickly settled portion of the road, between Umaha and Fort Kearney.
