HARRIEBURG, PA.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 21, 1864. TOWN AND COUNTRY.

MILITARY RELIEF FUND .- The regular monthly payment to the families of volun-teers will be made on Friday afternoon, the 33d inst., at the Sheriff's office, in the Court House, left hand side, between the hours of four and six. Owing to the fact that a large number of names are alike, it would be well for each applicant to mention the full given name of their husband, in order to prevent mistakes and expedite business. GEORGE BERGNER, Pres't. (). EDWARDS, Sec'y.

Two hundred condemned Government horses will be sold at Altoona to-morrow,

OUR market, this morning, was well attended. The supply of produce was unusually large, and in some instances prices were lower than on last market day.

Ir is reported that there will soon be an advance made on the present rates of freight, both Eastern and Western bound. How much the advance will be we are not advised.

PERSONAL.—W. D. Brown, Esq., member of the late Legislature, and who has been renominated, is in this city, and reports the Union cause in a flourishing condition in his SINGULAR PHENOMENON. -- Very early on Wednesday morning last a singular phenomenon was witnessed at Johnstown. One of the papers published at that place says: "A bow, to all appearance a rainbow, arched over the town in all its splendor. That which makes it remarkable is that the sun was not then shining, and the bow extended in a direction from due east to roest.

ATTEND TO THE ASSEMENTS .- Let no Union soldier lose his vote because of the neglect or indifference of his friends at home. Have your son, brother, or neighbor assessed without delay, pay his county tax of ten cents, and send the evidence thereof at once to him by mail—together with the Union ticket, or a list of the Union nominations. Careful attention to this matter will give us hundreds of votes in Dauphin county that would otherwise be lost. Union men! do at least this much for the brave men who are fighting the battles of the free!

THE MANUFACTURE OF VINEGAR. -- The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has decided that all manufacturers of vinegar from an alcoholic base obtained by distilling, though the product be far below proof, is to all in-tents and purposes a distiller, and subject to all the provisions of the internal revenue act relative to that class of persons. The rise of vinegar made by this process comes directly within the last provision of the 55th section of that act, and the Solicitor of the Treasury has decided that the product of all such dis-tillations below proof should be assessed on

To-Night there will be a grand performance at Rouse's Theatre (Brant's Hall,) on which occasion the beautiful musical comedy, entited The Child of the Reciment, or The Fortunes of War, will be presented for the first time in this city. The charming Bella Golden will appear as Josephine, the Child of the Beginnert and will since it represented to the Beginnert and will since it will be supported to the Beginner and the Be the Regiment, and will sing six popular songs. In this great character she will be sustained by the Star Combination Company. The performance will conclude with an original threeact drama entitled Our German Cousin, in which Mr. D. L. Morris, the great German delineator, will appear as Hans Von Slitzenheimer. Meeker, Rouse, and the whole company will appear. Go to Brant's Hall tonight and get the worth of your money.

THE COPPERHEADS of Harrisburg are subject to many strange revulsions of feelings, as the surging of war rolls backward and forward. A day or two since, when they heard of the success of the rebel cattle-stealers in carrying off a large Government herd, the Cops were extravagantly elated, and showed their joy in applauding the skill of the chivalry. But while the vipers were warming themselves in the reflection produced by the success of the cattle-thieves, the news of Sheridan's operations came upon them like a thunder-clap. The change in Copperhead circles was "painful." Sheridan's victory actually spoiled all their rejoicing. It was a wet blanket to Copperhead joy.

THAT there is a combination among the venders of produce to keep up high prices, there can be no doubt. This morning we noticed an instance in which there was sufficient evidence to convince those present of the above fact, and although a comparatively serve to illustrate the truth of our assertion At a stand in the lower market house a lot of fine grapes were offered at ten cents per quart when market opened. Presently a representative from another stand passed along, inquired the price of the grapes, and stated that she was selling a similar article at fifteen cents per quart. Immediately the price of the tencent grapes was advanced to fifteen, thus adding largely to the receipts of the party offering them for sale. We have witnessed similar proceedings on other occasions, fre-

OUR RETAIL MERCHANTS, while all a very clever set of men, are not as consistent in their mode of doing business as they might be, in order to preserve their reputation as Christians and patriots. For instance: When gold was rising higher and HIGHER each day, every time a buyer entered a provision, furnishing, grocery, dry goods or hardware store, he was blandly informed, if he complained of the high price of goods, that "gold has gone up." This was of goods, that "gold has gone up." This was the magic explanation deemed potent by all retail men, in justification for high prices. It mattered not how long a certain article was in the warehouse or on the shelves of the retailer, or how low he bought it, he deemed himself justified in taking advantage of the rise of gold to run his goods up to fabulous if not fraudulent rates. The situation is now changing. Gold is going down. But the retailer is marvellously reticent. You can buy mackerel, cod-fish, sugar, molasses, tape, muslin, ten penny nails or crow bars, grind stones and barlow knives, still the retailer has nothing to say about the fall of gold as he stiffens his price. Come, gentlemen, be consistent. Your conduct in taking advantage of sistent. Your conduct in taking advantage of the rise of gold was doubtless legitimate. But to be fair and honorable, and maintain your character as Christian men, you should also fall in the price of your goods with the price of gold.

Sherndan was not mentioned, and no sherndan was not mentioned, and mentioned, and mentioned, and mentioned where the sherndan was not mentioned, and mentioned was not mentioned, and mentioned was not mentioned.

Fuss and a Grand Fizzle.—The copperheads of Harrisburg were nestled together last even-ing, and had a hissing time in their sympathiz-ing efforts to bolster up their flagging hopes of success at the approaching elections. The Court House bell had been ringing for an unusual length of time and yet the "unterrified" were few in numbers. Senator (?) Dan. Boas, who was to be the leading spirit of the occasion, was the very picture of despair and per-plexity for two reasons: the meeting was any thing but a success, and the Senator (?) had likewise heard from Sheridan. Yes, the Senator (?) had all his "store-clothes" on, and really anticipated a good time generally, but alas for misfortunes, they fell upon his devoted head thick and fast, and he became gloomy, dispirited and chagrined. The Court House bell rang the second and third times; people wondered what it meant; honest and faithful Republicans crowded in by scores to see what was going on, and finally the room became about two-thirds full. Senator (?) Dan in his wor-Joe — the Third street substitute and bounty riment refused to organize the meeting, and passed the responsibility over to the virgin broker. Joe did the thing up elegantly. He had a sore spot, and a healing plaster presented itself to view. The ex-Governor was present, all smiles and urbanity, dying for a chance to see his name heralded as the President of a "big meeting," and an opportunity to give vent to the pent-up treason of his bo-som. But Joe couldn't see it, he owed the veteran one, and he was determined to pum-mel him. He moved that the Fourth ward Alderman, Maglaughlin, act as President, and o! how the countenance of the old man fell; but "discretion was the better part of valor," and he said and did nothing but look daggers, while Joe was all smiles. The virgin Joe and the fascinating Jim had the audacity to be candidates for delegates to the County Convention against the venerable ex-Governor and his colleagues, and met the mortification of an unexpected but overwhelming defeat. Jim charged Joe with being a 'drag," and Joe retaliated by declaring that Jim was too much of a burden to carry. Had Jim made a run on the Canterbury 'sweets," and Joe on the Fifth Ward House, success might have crowned their pleasure.

Well, the meeting was called to order, and the veritable Joe again announced a long; list of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries. The President invited them to take seats by him, but lo! few of them were present, and none of them agreeable. The invitation was repeated several times, and yet they didnt come. The audience began to cough, and the President put on his dignity and called to Joe for the list of officers, which he read in a stentorian voice, and in a dictatorial manner commanded them to appear. Two of them finally came forth; but nary Secretary. The elected Secre-taries were again called by name; but it was like calling "spirits from the vasty deep;" they came not. The President finally fixed his a trance ever since the adjournment of the Chicago Convention, arose in his dignity and announced that "this meeting has been called to ratify the nominations of the Chicago Convention," apparently oblivious of the fact that the ratification meeting had been held here about ten days ago. The audience laughed the second time, and subsided into silence. A committee was requested to wait upon the speakers and invite them to be present. The question was asked, "Who are they?" The response was, "I don't know, but they are distinguished speakers." The committee was appointed, and during their absence, there was silence in the Court House for the spare of half an hour—yes, painful, mournful silence. The committee at last appeared with three distinguished speakers, who were picked up after a long and weary search. The first speaker was a young man from Carlisle, who had his speech written out and well committed. He gave us a little of his school-boy learning, and assured the audience that he had read a little Grecian history. He spoke of Philip of Macedon, of the threatened liberties of Athens and the patriotism and powerful eloquence of Demosthenes. He thought the Administration had usurped power, and the time had come when the "faithful" should return to the flesh pots of of Egypt. We will let him down easy. He spoke about ten minutes, and his speech was as pointless as it was brief.

to notes had a chilling effect upon the audience. His speech had forty-seven points, or rather heads, or headis, all of which were folded up in the palm of his hand, and to which he had recourse forty-eight times. But the forty-eighth point was not there, and he concluded to subside. He was in favor of the Democratic party making this campaign an aggressive one, instead of acting upon the defensive. He thought it was much easier to attack Mr. Lincoln than to defend Gen. M'. Clellan, and he said if the energies of the party would be bent in that direction, they would accomplish more. He said the Abolition party were in favor of "war to the knife, knife to the elbow, and elbow to the heart—they are in favor of directly the opposite. He said they were in favor of peace, and that an early and a speedy peace. He said the only way to crush this "cruel war" is to concilitate the "confederates;" by fighting them, we will never gain their good will, but always their displeasure. He was for peace and the Democratic party, and its nominees are for peace. We would thank the Senator to repeat his speech all over the country, and the result will be many hundreds added to our usual majority. Come soon again, Mr. Wallace; truly we will wel-

The next speaker was "our distinguished Congressman," who walked around the bar a number of times, and stood up repeatedly to attract attention. The whole audience saw him, but somehow didn't exactly appeciate him. After the Senator concluded, loud and reneated calls were made for Lamberton. Our Congressman stood up, but yet the calls were Lamberton. But Bobert didn't appear.— Some faint voice in a distant corner of the room called Miller, and lo! William Henry Harrison appeared at the first and only call. It was cruel, however, to call him out, as he was so "unwell." He has been "drowning" his grief ever since the nomination of honest George, of Lewisburg, and the meeting of the con-ferees last evening, and his own re nomination, because nobody else would take it, drowned him still more. He was entirely too "unwell" to speak; he was afflicted with a dizziness of the head and a weakness of the kness. But the hero of Briar Hill spoke, and his audience dwindled to a corporal's guard. The next time William Henry speaks, we would advise the doors to be closed in order to prevent the dear people from leaving.

What a glorious copperhead gathering— one half the audience Republicans, and the other half cold and gloomy, but how could it be otherwise? There was not a single flag in the hall; nothing whatever even to symbolize the emblem of our nationality, unless you consider the faces red from brandy, white from rage and blue from chagrin, as indicative of the colors of our glorious old flag. But two soldiers were present, and they left early, thoroughly disgusted with the blatant treason of the speakers. The name of the gallant Sheridan was not mentioned, and no allusion

The people, however, are opening their eyes to the direful consequences, nd each day brightens the certainty of Lincoln's glorious and triumphant re-election.

SALUTE FIRED .- In compliance with an order of General Couch, a national salute was fired at noon to-day in Fort Washington, in honor of the victory gained by General Sheridan.

Another.—A salute was also fired from Capitol Hill this afternoon in honor of Sheridan's victory, which, we rejoice to learn, is more brilliant than was at first reported.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT. - An accident occurred on the Pennsylvania railroad, near Thompsontown, this morning-the fast line east having run into a freight train. A number of persons are reported to have been killed. In the absence of reliable information we forbear giving publication to the various rumors that are affoat. We will give a detailed account as soon as it can be obtained. LATER.—Among the killed is John Mulli-son, conductor. He was a citizen of Colum-

DARING ROBBERY-Three Thousand Dollars Worth of Goods Stolen—One of the most dar-ing robberies ever perpetrated in this city occurred last night, it is supposed between 12 and 2 o'clock. The store of Daniel Ep-pley & Co., on Market Square, was broken into, and their entire stock of black and fancy dress silks, black alpaccas, Irish linen, a large quantity of kid gloves, Waterloo, double black and other shawls, contained in the store. besides an assortment of fancy dress good on exhibition in the front windows. were stolen. The thieves (it is supposed that there were more than one) first entered the stable in the rear of Cathcart's store, by breaking the fastenings, passed into the yard of the same premises, then crossed two fences, and entering the lot occupied of Mr. Eppley, proceeded to the rear door of the store, where they by means of an iron bar broke off a large padlock and effected an entrance into the store. Two tallow candles, partly consumed, lead to the belief that the thieves had sup-plied themselves with this article and did not light the gas. A number of empty boxes were left upon the floor, and a quantity of hose scattered through the room. The desk was forced open by means of small irons which were left in the store, and its contents thoroughly overhauled. The robbers took the most valuable goods, and succeeded in removing them without being observed. This morning an alley door leading into the rear of Cathcart's from the front, was found to be pen, as was a gate between Cathcart's and open, as was a gate between Cathcart's and Eppley's, and it is probable that the stolen booty was removed by that route. The loss of Messrs. Eppley & Co. amounts to about three thousand dollars. They offer a reward of two hundred dollars for the detection of he thieves and the recovery of the goods. Mr. George Carl (blacksmith) has identified a portion of the implements used by the robbers as his property, they having taken from his shop

BUSINESS ITEMS. A Friendly Confab between Sally and Flora.

REPORTED BY JENKINS, WHO OVERHEARD IT ALL,

"How are you, Miss Flora, the belle of Broadway, With your silks and your satins, and flowers so gay—Your new-style cloak of frosted gray—Your waterfall hat, like Niagara's spray—Where did you get them, and what did you pay? Oh! dear, those fine trimmings of valvet and green, Are fit to adorn the robes of a queen—They are the loveliest I ever have seen!

Such a love of a hat as that, I declare, Ought to make the Jones House officer Whether young or old; But do tell me, Flora, if my friendship is dear, That I may in similar attire appear, Where such things are sold."

"Well, Sally, I'm not very selfish, you know— And never have but one string to my bow— So 'twill give me great pleasure, my dear, to impart A secret that will thrill and gladden your heart. At a time when gold has reached a fabulous price

At a time when good has reacted a fatonious price, it takes a pile of greenbacks to get anything nice, seen from city marts of trade. But you need not go so far as that, my dear, so long as we have tashion's bazzar right here.

Where all such things are made.

At Mrs. Mayer's blue front, No. 13 Market street, You will find an assortment full and complete, Of the finest fall goods; Choaks, Mantillas, Bonnets, and fancy Sacques, Ribbons, flowers, trimmings, and the prettiest hats, Together with nublas and hoods.

But this is not all, a thousand things more Grace the shelves of the blue front store.

It is there that ladies resort by the score, And gain ingress and egress in sections of four, so great is the crowd,

All anxious and eager to see the fall styles, Arranged in boxes, and bundles, and piles, Just arrived from France and Great Britain's isles, And are lovingly longed for with maidenly smiles.

By the meek and the proud.

But Sally dear I would have you to know

Hy the meek and the proud.

But, Sally, dear, I would have you to know,
That Mra. Mayer's prices are exceedingly low,
And this is the secret of the constant flow,
Of custom—not confined to the high or low,
But by people of overy station,
The fabrics are the best the market affords,
And all that with beauty and fashion accords;
'Cheaper than the cheapest'—these are the words
That cause almost an ovation.'

Remember Mrs. Mayer's sales rooms, No 13 Market street, where all the Paris, London an New York fall styles of Cloaks, Circular, Sacques, Mantillas, Bonnets, Hats, Hoop Skirts, Woolen Goods, and Ladies Fancy Goods of all kinds have just been received are now open for inspection, and will be sold as cheap as they can be bought at retail in the Atlantic cities, if not cheaper. Sir:—I take pleasure in stating that your "DIARRHGA MIXTURE" exceeds anything of the kind that I ever imagined. I was very much troubled with diarrhosa, and could find nothing to help me in the least, until I took your "MIXTURE."

I give you this certificate, hoping that, if you see proper to use it, it may be the means of extending a knowledge of the matchless value of your medicine.

Very respectfully yours,
