EVENING EDITION.

Death of Major General Birney.

We recently announced that Major General David B. Birney, commanding the 10th Corps in the Army of the Potomac, had arrived in this city, suffering from disease contracted while in service before Petersburg.

He was about forty years of age, and had been in the service ever since the opening of the war. He commanded the 23d Pennsylvania Volunteers, and from that position he was called to the wielding of a brigade.

In May last he was elected to command the 3d Division of Hancock's (the 2d) Corps. On the 23d of July he was chosen by General Grant to lead the 10th Corps, having brilliantly distinguished himself during the whole of General Grant's splendid campaign from the Rapidan to the south side of the James river.

His career is now cut short before the grand object of that campaign is attained, but his record is a noble one, in which every Philadelphian takes honorable pride.

General Birney was born in Alabama. His father, James B. Birney, was a planter in that State, who manumitted his slaves and came to the North, and afterwards was the abolition candidate for the Presidency.

General Birney was engaged in mercantile pursuits in the city up to the opening of the war, and only relinquished active civic business at the stern call of patriotism. His memory will be forever honored in connection with the rest of the noble host who have laid down their lives for freedom and the Union.

INDIAN JUSTICE.—Many years ago, when a gentleman from the central part of New Hampshire was in the Pequaket county, attending to his property near the village of Fryeburg, a company of Indians from the Penobscot tribe came there for a temporary abode, and pitched their tents on an elevation near the Saco river.

In passing to his lands he noticed a squaw kneeling to pick strawberries, and creeping to different parts of the patch that furnished the fruit. Her attitude struck him as singular, but he concluded she took that posture as most convenient for the purpose.

On his return she had disappeared, and he supposed she had gone to sell berries. But as he approached the settlement, he observed the unusual sight of an Indian carrying a squaw on his back. A nearer view showed him the person whom he saw in the strawberry field. After having witnessed the occurrence several times, on inquiry of the Indians as to the cause of this action, one of them (devil) got in him. Then he put squaw's feet in fire. They burn off." As he looked he saw they were crippled and useless. The tribe resented the cruelty, and its council were about to decide on his immediate execution.

But one of the elder and wiser of the number interposed his opinion, and gave this advice: "No shoot; make him live long as squaw live; make him carry squaw when she want walk; when she want rest, let her rest."

The decision was in accordance with this counsel, and thus secured to the injured woman perpetual kind treatment from her husband.
