

State Treasurer. We believe that the able and accomplished financier who is now at the head of the Treasury of the State, owing to ill-health, will not be a candidate for re-election.

A Sublime Political Fact. We understand from a gentleman who has access to high official circles, that, by a record kept in Washington city, the fact will be fully established that a larger vote was polled in the States which voted at the late Presidential election than in 1860.

GOVERNOR MORTON, of Indiana, in his proclamation for thanksgiving, recommends that on that day collections be made in all the churches and contributions of money, clothing, fuel, and all the necessaries of life be made everywhere for the support of the families of volunteers and drafted men during the coming winter.

OUR, the Only National Party. It was a favorite plea with the leaders of the Democratic party, when, in 1861, they were aiding and abetting treason, that Mr. Lincoln was elected by a sectional party, and that because the Southern conspirators had intimidated all attempts at supporting him in the slave States, there was nothing national in his election.

Fleeing from the Wrath to Come. The Democratic papers and leaders, now that the election is over, begin to wince under the scorching influence of a hot indignation that awaits them in the loyal and patriotic hearts of the nation.

This contest has been unlike any known to the national politics of this country. Never before has the nation been in the midst of a rebellion when the people have been called upon to select their Chief Magistrate.

The men who met at Chicago and censured and condemned this government for its efforts to crush the rebellion, without a word of rebuke even for treason and traitors, cannot escape the feeling of indignation that their conduct engendered.

The Guerrillas. Parties arriving here from Hagerstown, Md., state that some alarm is felt there lest Mosely Hagerstown, as he has threatened to do it, and professedly that if he falls into our hands, he will be put to death.

This fear has been increased by an attempt, several nights ago, to fire the court house, which is situated in the very heart of the town. It was discovered in time, however, to prevent a serious conflagration.

Reported Death of Major General Canby. The clerk of the steamer Stickney, from New Orleans on the evening of the 12th inst., says he was told by the quartermaster at New Orleans that General Canby died at one o'clock that afternoon, and on the arrival of the steamer at Morgantia the latest telegraphic dispatch received there confirmed the statement of the General's death.
