

TO AGRICULTURISTS.

PICKING AND MARKETING FRUITS.—We are now in the height of the peach season, and thousands of bushels are every day being shipped.

Water Fruits intended for long keeping are transferred by hand from the baskets in which they are gathered on the tree into larger ones, in which they can be carried into a dry, cool room, where they are laid in heaps, which may be three or four deep, where they may remain for a couple of weeks, during which they will have parted with continuing moisture and be quite dry.

On shipboard the barrels should be placed in the coolest and driest place. It is perfectly idle to gather, pack or ship fruits in any other way than this to foreign markets. American apples are frequently sold in Liverpool at auction for half what they would have sold for in New York, on account of their bad condition.

Winter Fruits for home consumption, should be carefully assorted, keeping the best, the poorest, the sound, the bruised and the earlier and later ripening varieties all separate; when sound and bruised, early and late, are all thrown together promiscuously they cannot fall to decay speedily and to lose their flavor; for two or three decaying apples in a heap or barrel will taint the flavor of all, and hasten the decay of those around them.

Winter Peas, as a general thing, require to be brought into a warm temperature one or two weeks before they are wanted for table use. All the baking and stewing, and even many of the table varieties, may be treated exactly like apples.

Packing Peas for Distort Markets.—The French seem to have no objection to foreign market for any other people. Some small importations of their winter sorts have actually been made by some of the New York fruit dealers the present winter, 1890-1.

English Horses.—A writer in the London Review calls the attention of the lovers of the horse to the fact that the noble breed of useful English horses is becoming ruined.
