Another Forgery.

After giving vent to so much indignation against the PATRIOT AND UNION and other Democratic newspapers that published the speech alleged to have been delivered by John M. Wilson, a "Lincoln elector" of Massachusetts, one would naturally suppose that the New York Tribune never published anything against Democrats without being perfectly sure of its authenticity. But we have not had to wait long for the evidence that this paper sometimes commits the very same sort of blunders for which it undertook to berate us. WILLIAM KELLY is the Democratic candidate for Governor in the State of New York, and the Tribune is using every means to defeat him. In its edition of Thursday last it published the following secret circular, which it alleged was being spread over the State by persons holding confidential relations with William Kelly:

Private. We send you herewith copies of a Biographical Sketch of the Hon. Wm. Kelly, which we are anxious to circulate as widely as possible among Republican and American friends of the State of New York. Some of the copies are enclosed in envelopes, that you may address them to the less accessible; while the others are for distribution among those in your more immediate neighborhood. In behalf of the State of New York, we earnestly request your careful attention to this, and remain, Yours, truly, SAM. NORTH, Secy. of the State.

Can you give me the names of some active men in your district who will take charge of Mr. Kelly's papers at the polls? Please destroy this circular. Yours truly, R. A. WIGHT, Box No. 749, Albany.

Of course the Tribune deems this a "base appeal to sectarian sympathy," and thinks this "expose is not calculated to impress the public favorably with regard to the candidate whom it is designed to serve." But the Tribune never takes the trouble to suggest a doubt of the genuineness of this secret circular, but gives it to its readers without hesitation, and probably without examination into its truth.

But the Albany Atlas exposes this forgery to which the Tribune gives the currency of its large circulation. The Atlas is followed by Mr. North, whose name is attached to the circular, to say that he "never saw or heard of it, and never, in any way, authorized its issue, and that it has never been authorized, approved or known by the State Committee." Thus it appears, by evidence as clear as that against the authenticity of the Wilson speech, that this pretended "secret circular" is a base forgery, and that the Tribune has assisted in giving currency to a lie. We wonder whether it will display as much virtuous indignation against itself as it has against others, in reference to the Wilson speech, and whether it will denounce the whole Republican party as the party of fraud and forgery, because it is guilty of attempting to impose a gross falsehood upon the public.

A Very Veracious Correspondent.

The New York Tribune has a correspondent in Philadelphia, who occasionally enlightens the readers of that journal concerning the politics of Pennsylvania. In a recent letter this correspondent, after quoting an extract from Forney's Press to prove the folly of attempting to unite the Anti-Lincoln organizations in this State, discourses in this wise in reference to the withdrawal of the Straight-out Douglas electoral ticket:

The remaining ticket (the Reading ticket) is known to be broken up by Douglas men, because these men are determined to vote no circumstances, to go for Douglas. Yet both wings of the now thoroughly terrified Democracy are being elected, counting chickens before they are hatched. The withdrawal of the Douglas electors is either a new attempt, by induction, to lose, or is designed to snuff Lincoln's majority. The latter, with other parties, is openly charged on Col. Forney, who seems now to be about the worst abused man of the time, in spite of an consistent record, ever since he turned tail upon Leconte, as any man in the party can show. Buchanan's straps have burned him in Albany, but he still lives and don'tches, laughs and growls. His declaration will be realized. The new ticket will be a worse failure than that attempted on Foster. Thousands of Douglas men will reject it into the Presidential combination, "either going over to Lincoln or voting at all. Except the Bell ticket, which will keep the field, though of no account, we have thus the right-hand ticket for President from the first we had coveted. The challenge being given, we are impatient to close up and begin the fight.

There are some misrepresentations in this letter which are about upon a moral level with forgery. The Breckinridge men on the Reading electoral ticket have never avowed their determination, under no circumstances, to go for Douglas. On the contrary, the writer knows, if he knows anything about Pennsylvania politics, that every friend of Breckinridge on this ticket was willing to give a pledge to vote for Douglas in case he should obtain a majority of the popular vote, to be ascertained by the method embraced in the Cresson compromise resolution. This is falsehood number one.

Falsehood number two is a piece with its predecessor. Both wings of the Democracy are not now claiming the whole ticket for their own man. Every friend of Breckinridge in the State knows that the Reading ticket contains a number of open and avowed Douglas men. They have never pretended that this was not the fact. How could they, when no less than twelve of these Reading electors allowed their names to appear upon the Straight-out Douglas ticket? And yet, right in the face of this fact, this booby tells the readers of the Tribune that the Breckinridge men claim the whole ticket for their own man.

A correspondent who is so wide of the mark, when he pretends to state facts, cannot be relied upon when he attempts to deduce inferences. He says that the Straight-out Douglas ticket was probably "designed to swell Lincoln's majority," and that "thousands of Douglas men will either go over to Lincoln or not vote at all." It is highly probable that the thousands of Douglas men that Forney threatens to array against the Democratic organization, and who are only Douglas men in name, may go over to Lincoln; but if it was the intention of the Straight-out Committee to swell Lincoln's majority they took a very queer way of doing it by advising the friends of Douglas to vote for the Reading ticket.

The Tribune, which professes to abhor all sorts of falsehoods, misrepresentations and forgeries, should instruct its correspondent to try and come within, at least, a thousand miles of the truth when he attempts to furnish information relative to the politics of this State.

THE DUKE OF NEWCASTLE ON THE PRINCE'S VISIT.—The Philadelphia Press says that the Duke of Newcastle, speaking on the subject of the Prince's visit to this country, to a gentleman of that city, said:

"I wish it could be stated, upon my authority, that the visit of the Prince of Wales to the United States cannot have other than the very best results. Everywhere he has perceived with what kindness I might almost say with what affection—his mother, the Queen, is regarded here by all classes, and he has been deeply touched by the consideration extended to him upon her account. He has been able to compare the Canada he has visited with the different results. Above all, he carries back with him a sense of strong personal obligation for the warmth and kindness of his reception here, and—for the English are not ungrateful—this will be shared by all classes at home, who feel a kindness rendered to their Prince as if it were rendered to themselves. To be frank with you, this visit will decidedly make England and America better and warmer friends than ever. Should the question of a difference ever arise, depend upon it, the Prince will frankly protest against it, alleging, in support of his views, his personal familiarity with the character of the people, the success of a country which rivals England in the arts of peace, and can summon three million of volunteers, well-disciplined soldiers to fight for her, if the misfortune of war should arise."

VICISSITUDES OF ROME AND HER POPES.—The Papacy is not so near its end as many hope and expect. It has survived many a tug as hard as the present. In 1527 the combined German and Spanish armies of Charles V. stormed and sacked Rome, enacting in its streets the most diabolical cruelties, burning, torturing, robbing, ravishing and destroying for ten days. Some 6,000 of the inhabitants perished, 10,000,000 crowns of plunder were collected, and Pope Clement VII. paid 400,000 ducats for his own ransom. Luther thought that the end of Rome had come. But it has survived and recovered. Sixty years ago it was in the hands of Napoleon, who seemed to hesitate whether to crush it or not. In 1820, 1831 and 1848 it was a prey to revolution, Garibaldi himself, at the last date, expelling the Pope, who escaped in the disguise of a footman on a coach box. A republican government was then established, but another year saw him back again, and now he looks for support from the despotisms which would themselves tremble at his fall. His temporal dominion may be even now at an end, but that dominion is really his weakness, and not his strength; and when he is well rid of it he will reign as head of the Roman Catholics with more substantial influence than for a long time past.—English Paper.

AN ADVENTUROUS YOUTH.—We have heard of a little fellow in this city, only seven years old, very bright and intelligent, who seems to have a passion for traveling about the country on his own account. Once he had been as far as Castleton, Vt., and on another occasion up to Manchester, all alone and unattended. The other day, during the Fire Department parade, he took it into his head to go to Philadelphia. Secreting himself in a box on the Skiddy, he went down New York, and would have gone to Philadelphia had he not been discovered by a friend of the family, who telegraphed to the city, and was requested to bring the little truant home. Since that time he has been kept on an allowance of bread and water. Besides being a traveler, the little fellow is a genius. He will map out lines of railroads and rivers over which he has traveled, locating cities and villages with great accuracy, and otherwise manifesting decided topographical skill. Music seems to overpower him, and it is only on the occasion of some public demonstration, when music forms a prominent feature, that he manifests a desire to go away.—Troy Times.

THE MANUS MOORE.—He was a very well-dressed, bright, sparkling-looking little man. It is a disenchanted phrase to apply to a sentimental poet; but I must say, in his general appearance, there was something that very nearly approximated to what is now denominated as "jolly." He had a dark and most vicious eye, hair of the same color, and in sufficient abundance, glossy, and nicely arranged; a broad, commanding forehead; a complexion fresh, clear, and ruddy; small, but well defined features; a mouth that seemed made alone for mirth and to crow with sparkling smiles; an extraordinary play and expression of countenance, whose changes varied yet over betrayed the genius within; a quick, brisk, active gait; a merry, joyous laugh; and the generally diffused impress of a happy, easy, hearty man—one contented quite with the lot he had in life, and in perfect amity and peace with those about him. Such was the aspect Moore presented when I first saw him. From Traits of Character.

"REMOVE THAT MAX."—The Boston Atlas and Bee says, that just prior to the departure of the Prince from Music Hall, in that city, a burly Irishman, whose violent demeanor in the crowd had attracted the attention of an officer fully capable of "hoisting his own rye," took his position on a pile of lumber, and, as if H. H., accompanied by Mayor Lincoln, and others, took seats in the carriages to drive away, saluted the young scion of royalty in a most insulting and disgusting combination of oaths and vulgarity. "The officer had got his fill of this style of oratory, and stepping up to his man, and aiming a blow with his fist at the speech maker, hit him under the ear, landing him several feet over in the rubbish of the carriage, which he recently demolished. While this was taking place, and in the same instant, the Mayor, not seeing the transaction, called out for an officer to "remove that man." The answer of our friend of justice was, "Your Honor, he is removed."

DICEROTYPE BY LIGHTNING.—On the 16th of August last, a flash of lightning struck a windmill at Lappion, in France, in which there was a female, who was killed by the electric fluid, and on whose body there was left the picture of a neighboring tree, with all its branches and leaves complete. This singular tattooing by the lightning was seen and attested by medical examiners and the municipal authorities of the place.

GENERAL NEWS.

JUDGE LYNCH IN NEBRASKA.—The Omaha Nebraskan of the 17th has an account of the arrest of three men charged with horse stealing, and their incarceration in the jail at Council Bluffs. This was on the 13th. On the 16th they were taken out by a mob and one of the number, Philip McGuire, hung without the formality of a trial. The others are missing still. A rumor prevailed that one of the missing men had made a confession of crimes committed, in which several suspicious characters were implicated. The feeling is rather favorable to further trials by Judge Lynch than to the law, owing to an alleged inefficiency of the officers whose duty it is to execute the commands of the law.

CATHOLIC PRIEST MURDERED AND ROBBED.—The Clarksville Jeffersonian says that there has been a report in that place for several days, which seems to obtain a general credence, that the Rev. Mr. Moshell, a Catholic priest, who has been stationed in that vicinity for the past year, was brutally murdered in Stewart county, Tennessee, one day last week, and robbed. It is further stated that the murderers, of whom there were three, sold his mule, which led to the discovery of the murder and the arrest of one or more of the wretches who perpetrated the crime.

THREE DAY VISITS THE STYLE.—All visits to the palace of the Queen of England are restricted, by custom, to three days—the first day for the arrival, the second for the reception, and the last for the departure. The Prince of Wales has rightly observed this practice in his tour through the United States, never stopping more than three days in any place, unless Sunday intervened. Many families would rejoice to have this fashion introduced into the United States.

CENSUS OF VERMONT.—Sufficient returns of the late census have been received to show that the population of Vermont has decreased since the census of 1850. In four counties the losses amount to 4,319, and in two other counties to 3,419, showing a total loss of about 10,000. The total loss of the State, it is thought, may be four or five thousand. This, we believe, the first instance in the history of the country where the population of a State has receded in the course of ten years.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE.—The Hon. Mr. Lindsay, the English financier, made a speech at a meeting of the Chicago board of trade on Wednesday last. He pledges his earnest advocacy at home in favor of unrestricted international trade, and urged upon those present—the representatives of the grain mart, almost of the world—the memorialization of Congress in favor of the same policy. He was frequently applauded, and deeply interested and pleased his auditory.

GREAT HERRING CATCH.—The boats off the Seaside cliffs are making great merriment in one night than they have been able to bring in safely. They sell about forty cents per hundred untouched, or at sixty cents "gilled," and it is not uncommon for one boat to catch from six to ten thousand per night. This would seem to be a paying business.—Inglan (Mass.) Journal.

BLACKS AND MELATTOES.—According to the census of 1860, 2,957,657 of the slaves of the United States were blacks, or of unmixed African descent, and 249,656 were melattoes. The melattoes of the United States are about one-eighth as numerous as the blacks—the free blacks amounting to about half the number of the free blacks, whilst the slave melattoes are only about one-twelfth of the slave blacks.

THE AMERICAN FEMALE SCULPTOR.—Among those at the ball given to the Prince in Boston was Miss Hosmer, the sculptor. His Royal Highness had met her in Rome, and greeted her on this occasion with great cordiality. In the course of the conversation which ensued, he informed her that her statue of Puck still adorned his rooms at Oxford.

ARRIVAL OF U. S. TROOPS.—Company E, second artillery, U. S. A., Captain Elfish commanding, arrived at Augusta, Ga., on Friday evening, from Fort Smith, Ark., via Memphis Tenn., and proceeded at once to the arsenal, where they are now quartered. This is a long time, remarks the Constitutionalist, since United States soldiers have been seen in Augusta.

At the meeting at which the prize was awarded, Cockran told his audience that the essay consisted of 19,000 words, and was all written in the open air, on the top of his cab.

THE WORTH MONUMENT.—This monument, erected in New York, is at last completed. An important alteration has been made in one of the inscriptions, in the substitution of "Fort George" for "Buena Vista." Gen. Worth took no part in the latter battle, while at the former he distinguished himself for his bravery.

ABUNDANCE OF MACKEREL.—Large quantities of mackerel are daily taken on the south coast of Prince Edward Island. One boat, having a crew of three men, is reported to have taken, near the North Cape, in one day, 1,240 fish. A boat from Egmont Bay is said to have caught upwards of 1,000 in the like time.

THE LYONS (N. Y.) REPUBLICAN announces that Mr. Seward is a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate.

HON. ROGER A. PRYOR addressed a large Breckinridge and Lane meeting at Wheeling, on Tuesday evening.

PRIZE FIGHT IN THE PARK.—About 10 o'clock on Tuesday evening last, two "bruisers" had a quarrel at Mat Goodson's bar-room, in New York, and in order to settle the difficulty, adjourned to the rear of the City Hall, where a ring was formed, seconds and bottle holders appointed, and, for half an hour, a regular prize fight conducted. A policeman, who chanced to pass was told that the men were just "skylarking," to which he replied that it was none of his business, as it wasn't on his "cat," and obligingly left.

FINS GROWN IN MARYLAND.—We were not aware that fins were grown in Frederick county until we saw and tasted them at the agricultural exhibition in this city last week, and learned upon inquiry that between four and five bushels are raised each year at Mt. St. Mary's College, in this county. Those we saw were the second crop, in size about as large as a hen's egg. The first crop, we learned, are about twice the size of the second crop.—Frederick Union.
