THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 15, 1860. HOW TO WIN A WOMAN. To win a woman—lay an eagle piece upon your palm.

Your tones distinct, your manner calm— These words you have told you, are fair, And praised the beauty of your eyes and hair, Perhaps have coined new phrases to compare Your human self to those who wing the air.

From an article headed "A Day with the Dead," we extract the following singular narration. It is curious, to say the least of it. It is constantly urged, among other objections to the credibility of supernatural apparitions, that the names of the witnesses have singularly and suspiciously disappeared—that you find them, upon investigation, substantiated thus: A very worthy gentleman, who told a very intelligent lady, who told a very intelligent lady, who told a very intelligent lady.
