The Patriot & Union.

TUESDAY MORNING, NOV 27, 1860. JEALOUSY AND A DUEL. AN ENGLISH TRAVELER AND A GERMAN CORN DOCTOR.

The London correspondent of the New Orleans Delta tells the following story: An Englishman and his wife, a newly married couple, were traveling in the west of Germany.

The husband got the worst of it in the table d'hotel of Germany, of course, and did nothing but eat and drink, till his intellect, from the lack of use of his tongue and the over use of his jaws, became a little stultified.

At Spa, they occupied the same place, day after day, they found the same neighbors, of course—the husband being compelled to silence, and the pretty and talkative wife compelled to talk for both.

His wife was a rosy-checked, gay little thing, enjoying life to the utmost, and chattering like a perpetual motion—no language coming amiss. The husband got the worst of it in the table d'hotel of Germany, of course, and did nothing but eat and drink, till his intellect, from the lack of use of his tongue and the over use of his jaws, became a little stultified.

MEMORABLE GUN.—Among the relics of the glorious war of 1812, which were gathered at Cleveland on the 10th ult., in honor of the inauguration of the Perry Statue, was the memorable Croghan gun. Its service is thus related by a correspondent of the Cleveland Leader:

In the brilliancy of Perry's victory, let us remember the unexamined defense of the American ship, the USS "Macon," which was captured by the British on the 22d of September, 1812.

Fort Stephenson was garrisoned with 150 men under Croghan, who had just turned his twenty-first year. Proctor demanded a surrender, and told the unvarying story of the danger of provoking a general massacre by the savages unless the fort was yielded; to all of which Croghan replied that the Indians would have none left to massacre if the English conquered, for every man would have died at his post.

Croghan's musketry did not prevent the enemy from advancing to within thirty feet, when under the darkness of the night the one cannon was unmasked, and cut down twenty savages at a single discharge. The enemy recoiled and retreated, leaving ninety men—the American one. Thus the supplies and men were saved to move forward, after Perry's victory, aiding in the pursuit of the fleeing Proctor and Tecumseh.

FOR SECESSION.—Hon. A. H. Dawson, who canvassed Georgia in behalf of Bell and Everett, writes to the Charleston Mercury in favor of secession, and notes separate State action. He thinks that South Carolina will go out first, and will largely increase the secession vote in Georgia and Alabama.

A New Yorker calls the fanatical-attired Fifth Avenue footmen Co. Liveries!
