ATTENTION, GUARDS !- The members of the Cameron Guards are requested to meet at their armory this (Monday) evening, at 7 o'clock, for drill. Let there be a full turn out. By order of J. J. BALL, O. S. the Captain.

FREE LUNCH .- Mr Davis, who has charge of th har attached to the Boehler House, sets out an excellent free lunch every day from I1 to 12 o'clock. It has already become a popular institution, and will no doubt be still more liberally patronized when everybody knows it.

FLUID LAMP EXPLOSION .- A girl in the employ of Mr. Thompson, in East State street, was shockingly burned on Saturday evening by the explosion of a fluid lamp. She was in the act of ascend. ing the stairs with a bucket of coal when the lamp exploded and scattered the fluid over her arm, burning it in a terrible manner.

VENISON.—Some man made a fine display of venicon in the market on Saturday morning. It consisted of five carcasses, and looked as though it was palatable. Venison will keep a long time without salt, but a succession of such cays as we had on Saturday would render its speedy cooking necessary to save it. The deer were shot in the vicinity of Lock Haven.

A CANING AFFAIR .- Considerable excitement was caused at the corner of Third and Walnut streets, on Saturday, growing out of a caning affair. It appears that Joseph Seltzer, of this place, and Walter G. Graham, of Butler, met at the gate of the Capitol Park, and a conversation ensued relative to the settlement of an estate in Butler county, in which Mr. Seltzer was interested. High words passed between the parties, when Mr. Seltzer struck Mr. Graham several times over the head with a heavy cane, one of them making a frightful gash. Seltzer was taken before the Mayor and held in $1,000 bail to answer.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—The following is a list of officers of the Hope Fire Company, elected for the ensuing year: President, Wm H. Kepner; Vice President. A. K. Black; Secretary V. B. Hummel; Assistant Secretary, J. McGranigan; Treasurer, H. M. Keller; Librarian, T. Sample; Chief Engineer, R. R. Barr; Assistants, J. M. Groff and H. Hummel; Chief of Hook and Ladder Truck, W. D. Carson ; Assistants, D. Barr and H. Carberry; House Directors of Engine and Hose Carriage, A. Brown, J. Likens, C. Hummel, T. and Wm. D. Earnest; Directors of Hook and Lad- to quarry stone. John Suter, a little Englishman, der Truck, B. Putt, J. Felty, Wm. Fackler, A. H. Frankem.

P. S -LATER.-Linglestown has also given notice that upless this doctrine of secession is erushed she will be determined to withdraw from the county. Can't our friends of the Parrior and Union stop this rebellious spirit — Te'egraph.

Certainly. We shall send for Brisbin and Waltman, with their "cheese knives," and shall order out the grand army of thirty Wide Awakes that serenaded Gov. Curtin last Tuesday, and arm the Local of the Telegroph with the same kind of weapon he was armed with several nights last week-id est, a quart of fighting whisky-and if they can't whip all the world and the rest of mankind, and keep Lingelstown in the traces, why she'll have to secede—that's all that's of it.

VERY SIGNIFICANT .- On one of the iron doors of the prison yard there is an old campaign handbill headed "Wide Awakes Rally-Good Times Coming." Well, a great many are waiting for these promised good times which were immediately to follow the flashes of the telegraph announcing the election of Old Abe. Many who are cut off from the enjoyment of liberty, but a few feet from this very iron door, have found the promised good times. They are incarcerated as vagrants because they dannet exchange labor for bread, and the alms hense as well as the jail is full. On every side we see a beautiful realization of these promised good times. A hundred workmen are thrown out of employment, and every night the cells of the lock-up are filled with able bodied men whom poverty and want of employment drives there to seek shelter. Troops of beggars besiege the doors of our citizens daily, and some of these are the children of respectable mechanics, driven to it by the most absolute want. From such good times may Heaven give us a safe deliverance.

Workinguen's Meeting.-A meeting of the workingmen of Harrisburg was held in the hall of the Friendship Fire Company, on Saturday evening, which was remarkably well attended, considering the short notice. Joseph Strominger presided. William Sees read the address of the workingmen of Louisville, and a series of resolutions passed by them. While they were under discussion' the intolerable heat of the room compelled us to leave, and we are unable to say what else was done

In this movement we see the germ of an organization throughout this Union that will wield a powerful influence upon its doctrines, providing the leadership does not (as has always unfortunately been the case) fall into the hands of old political backs who have been shoved into the maelstrom by both parties, and who always wait for a political revolution to bring them upon the surface again. We say to the workingmen, beware of demagogues, for they will fasten themselves upon you with more guile than the serpent did upon Eve. even when it is to cut loose from their threldom and the misfortune they have brought upon our country, your efforts are mainly directed. We understand that a general meeting will be held in a few days. The following is the political creed adopted at one of these meetings recently held: "We know nothing, we care nothing for the names by which the several political divisions of our people were lately known; we are wedded to the fortunes of no man; we have no special dogma of government to urge upon popular consideration; we owe no allegiance to any party but our country; we swear fidelity to no principle but the Union and Constitution. We will commune and co-operate with all individuals, and bodies of men, in all parts of the Union, who hold the same views with us on this one subject, however they may differ with us on all other political topics."

"TAKE YOUR CHOICE FOR A DOLLAR."-About the time human ingenuity can no longer invent new dodges to gull the flats, or fertile brains hit upon novel plans to plunder the ignorant, we shall be able to announce that all the fools are dead, or chaos is come again." Just as soon as one sublimated idea for shutting up the eyes of Johnny Raws is exploded, another still more plausible takes its place. "Gain has a pleasant oder, come from whence it will," says one of the saving funds advertisements, and there probably never was a truer assertion made, and it is putting this principle into practical effect which enables sharpers to prey upon the credulity of the people.

These reflections have suggested themselves to us by noticing during the past week a bogus jewelry establishment in successful operation in Market street, where men can buy any article of brass, washed or plated jewelry for the sum of one dollar. It may be that the articles thus disposed of are cheap, in spite of our opinion that they are dear at any price; but will people who are disposed to buy reflect for one moment that the men who sell this jewelry must make a profit on it, otherwise it is not at all likely they would engage in the business. So far everything is apparently done on the equare—they open a store, pay their license, and sell their bogus jewelry very cheap. There is nothing wrong in that; it is a fair business transaction. Bat the swindle of it consists in stating in circulars that such articles as they sell for one dollar are sold by other jewellers for from five to twenty dollars. The idea is held out that a purchaser gets four or five times the value of his money. There is no statement made to inform the public how it can be done and money made at it. You are at liberty to suppose that they stole the material and cheated the workmen, or that they stole the jewelry ready made-just as you pleasebut you are to believe, by plausible deception, that you are the gainer, and somebody is the loser .-Of course, if this bogus trash has been stolen, you would be particeps criminis in purchasing it-but what is that to you? Gain, you know, has a pleasant odor, come from whence it will. It is not likely that many people of good, sound discriminating sense can be caught by such a transparent humbug; but it unfortunately occurs that those who are victimized are those who are the least able to bear it, and for this reason we say now, as we have said on a previous occasion, such people should be prevented from imposition by stringent legislative enactments-laws that would wipe out all gift enterprises, and punish severely all dealers who sell bogus jewelry under false pretences, or deceptions of any kind. We have five or six resident watchmakers and jewellers in this city, who are honorable men, and misrepresent none of their wares to guil the public. Such acts are only the resort of itinerating venders, who generally leave before the gilding is worn off the baubles they foist upon the unsuspecting. Our dealers, as a general thing, can furnish this bogus jewelry at as low a figure as the Cheap Johns can; but knowing its quality, and having a regard for their reputation as honest men, they make no effort to sell it, and least of all, by misrepresentation. We again say to persons who do not relish getting bit, avoid all new humbugs, however plausible; for if you patronize them you are just as sure to be fleeced as night follows day. Reflect a moment, and see if you can arrive at any other rational conclusion than that we are right

BEFORE THE MAYOR .- Both the cells of the lock-up were filled on Friday night, and the beds were all taken up. Wm. Brantz, a seedy-looking German, said he was a bookbinder by trade, and had walked a thousand miles in quest of the good times promised, but could not find them. Thomas M. Garverich, H. Lemar, J. M. Barr Curry said he was from Irelaud, in search of a job said he was a plasterer and bricklayer, and was also leoking for a job. John Spruch, a German, could "nix fustkay." Was from Adams county. and going to Union county to work auf ein baweri. Plead guilty to having been slightly inebriated, but was let off on a promise to vamose. Charles Quigley, an Irishman, from Pottsville, had been slightly under the influence. Some spiritual manifestations took place between him and the Englishman, while in the cell, and Callendar was obliged to separate them. Michael M'Graw, John Marks and Michael Donnovan, all from the "jim of the say," in search of work, had taken lodgings. Bill Curtis, a young darkey, with a head of the brush-heap pattern, had been arrested at the instance of his step-daddy, who charged him with fighting, and being a bad boy generally. Bill alleged cruelty on the part of the aforesaid stepdaddy, Bob Humphreys, and the Mayor fixed upon a further hearing for facts in the case.

> PLATE GLASS .- Beautiful plate glass is now made in large quantities in England, for glazing buildings. In its manufacture, the requisite weight of fused glass is taken from the furnace upon the point of the blower, and is then blown into a spherical form. It is then re-heated in the furnace, and swung above the head and below the feet of the workmen, until it assumes the form of a cylinder. In performing this operation, the workman stands upon a stage below the mouth of the furnace. with a pit or well beneath his feet, six or seven feet in depth. He swings and balances the molten metal until it is expanded to the proper length .-The least miscalculation of his powers of swinging it, or a very small deviation from the proper curve, would destroy the whole. The next stage is to separate, with strings of red-hot glass, the cylinder from the blowing iron, and also cut off its closed end; the tubes are then allowed to stand on end, prior to being annealed, like so many chimney pots. The tube is then cut down the middle, and being placed in a heated room. called the flattening kiln, it soon opens out, and being pressed down by the workmen, it quickly becomes flattened out on a slab of stone. It is then tilted on its edge, and the manufacture is complete. If the manufacturer merely wishes to produce a glass shade, the cylinder is preserved, being detached from the blowing tube. But in order York. to cut it evenly, a simple but ingenious machine is employed, consisting of a frame, in which the cylinder is supported vertically or horizontally, while the diamond, set in a little frame, is made to act against the surface so as to cut it.

THE CHARM OF LIFE.—There are a thousand things in this world to afflict and sadden-but oh! how many that are beautiful and good. The world teems with beauty-with objects that gladden the eye and warm the heart. We might be happy if we would. There are ills that we cannot escape—the approach of disease and death, of misfortunes, the sundering of the early ties, and the cankerworm of grief-but the vast majority of evils that beset us might be avoided. The course of intemperance, interwoven as it is with all the ligaments of society, is one which never strikes but to destroy. There is not one bright page upon the record of its progress-nothing to shield it there would be in most hearts if we would look around us. The storm dies away, and a bright sun shines out. Summer drops her tinted curtains upon the earth, which is very beautiful when autumn breathes her changing breath upon it. God reigns in heaven. Murmur not at a being so good, and we can live happier than we do.

NEW DISCOVERY IN STEAM NAVIGATION IN EN-LAND .- A Trial on the Thames .- On the 11th ult., trip was made down the Thames to test the merits of an invention, which is opposed to all the received notions with regard to the propulsion of vessels, whether by the oar, the paddle wheel or the screw. In those cases the motion is obtained by the broad surface which is brought to beat upon the water, whereas, here the least conceivable resisting surface is presented . namely : the rim of a thin disc, revolving on the axis, like the ordinary paddle-wheel. This "disc wheel" is the invention of Mr. James Jones Aston, a barrister, who has for some years devoted his attention to steam navigation. It consists of a solid circular disc of metal or wood, or both in combination, with plain edges made as thin as possible, consistently with its being strong enough to be turned in the water without breaking or "buckling."

One at the stern or one on each side will propel boat, but several may be used on the shaft at equal distances apart. The portion not acting in the water can be cut away, and the disc filled with arms or spokes. Its advantages over the paddlewheel and the screw consist in the motive power being so perfectly utilized as to obtain a greater rate of speed than has hitherto been practicable, in its being less likely to be disabled in a storm or battle, and in the entire absence of paddles or blades to agitate the water and to give vibration to the boat. Mr. Aston obtained the use of an old, heavy and lumbering craft, and substituted his disc wheels for paddle ones, which were before employed. Each wheel was composed of several metal discs, open in the centre, about fourteen feet in diameter, and a little more than two feet in the water. The boat thus prepared, and with its ordinary engines working the wheels, moved of slowly. increasing its speed until it went a little more than six knots an hour. There were forty-seven revolutions in a minute and the consumption of coulat the rate of twelve and a half hundred an hour, with a pressure of six pounds on the boiler, the usual speed of the vessel, with the paddle-wheels, being eight knots with one ton of coal. As the wheel meets with so little resistance from the water, it ought to be, in Mr. Aston's opinion, propelled at a velocity superior to existing marine engines. To the scientific it would be a matter of nice investigation how these wheels act upon the water so as to move along a vessel of such bulk. The defects in the invention may be said to be a difficulty in making a quick start and in suddenly stopping, but these may be overcome by the skill of a clever, practical engineer. Mr. Aston alleges various grounds for the superiority of his disc wheel; no loss of power from backwater, its liability to be much less affected by wind and tide. Its suitableness for canals and shallow rivers, and its cheapness. It can be easily applied to all paddle-wheels, and also to the stern; but in the case of a screw, some alteration to the machinery would be necessary.

LIFE EVERYWHERE; Under this caption a deeply interesting and instructive article appears in the

Cornhill Magazine. Read it: Life everywhere! The air is drowded with birds—beautiful, tender, intelligent birds—to whom life is a song and a thrilling anxiety—the anxiety of love. The air is swarming with insects -those little animated miracles. The waters are propled with innumerable forms-from the animalcule, so small that one hundred and fifty millions of them would not weigh a grain, to the whale, so large that it seems an island as it sleeps upon the waves. The bed of the sea is alive with polypes, carps, star-fishes, and with shell animal-cules. The rugged face of the rock is scarred by the silent boring of soft creatures, and blackened with countless muscles, barnacles and limpets. Life everywhere! On the earth, in the earth, crawling, creeping, burrowing, boring, leaping, running. If the sequestered coolness of the wood tempt us to saunter into its checkered shade, we are saluted by the numerous din of insects twitter of birds, the scrambling of squirrels, the startled rush of unseen beasts, all telling how populous is this seeming solitude. If we pause before a tree, or shrub, or plant, our cursory and halfabstracted glance detects a colony of various inhabitants. We pluck a flower, and in its bosom we see many a charming insect busy in its appointed We pick up a fallen leaf, and if nothing is visible on it, there is probably the trace of an insect larva hidden in its tissue, and awaiting their development. The drop of dew upon this leaf will probably contain its animals, under the microscope. The same microscope reveals that the "blood-rain" suddenly appearing on bread, and awakening superstitious terrors, is nothing but a collection of minute animals (Monas prodigosa;) and that the vast tracts of snow which are reddened in a single night, owe their color to the marvelous rapidity in re-production of a minute plant (Protacese nivalis The very mold which covers our cheese, our bread, our jam, or our ink, and disfigures our damp walls is nothing but a collection of plants. The many colored fire which sparkles on the surface of a summer sea at night, as the vessel plows her way, or which drips from the oars in lines of jeweled light, is produced by millions of minute inimals.
