reduce her army to a peace footing.
Several officers of that power having obtained an unlimited leave of absence, met very often in Hamburg to enjoy in common the vamous pleasures of military idleness. One day in S ptember, six of them having dined together, and made more than one libation to Bacchus, they, at the approach of night, repaired to the Cafe de la Bourse, one of the most noted in the city, and made their entry in a most noisy manner. The Baron de V_____ a dieutenant, twenty three years of age, the youngest of the joyous band, rich, handsome, and of noble carriage, but foppish, self conceited and insolent, having noticed an individual of small stature, dressed in black, sitting at a table alone, holding in one hand a newspaper and in the other a long pipe, who had paid no attention to them on their arrival, and being offended, no doubt, by the indifference, bordering on contempt, which he exhibited, approached him with the intention of avenging the fancied insult. To that effect he laid his hand in a familiar manner on his shoulder, swinging himself back and forth, and said to him with an ironic smile: "Ah! good evening, my little schoolmas-

The man in black raised his eyes, and fixed them for two or three seconds on his interlocutor, then looking again on his paper, continued "God bless me, he don't answer. Ah, well, my droll fellow, won't you answer me. I see that pipe is the cause. Come, we must hear your voice." In a second, with a flip, the pipe flew to prices, he laughing loudly the while.

Without putting down the paper, or showing any symptoms of being affected by the insult, he turned tow rds the counter, and said: " Waiter, another pipe!" "That's right. He has at least opened his mouth." The pipe was lit, and the reading resumed. "Ah, so! What country are you from? In what village do you exercise your talents?"

Here the interrogated raised again his head and looked at him as he whiffed two or three mouthfuls of smoke, and lowering his eyes slowly, he seemed rather willing to give all his attention to his paper. "I believe you are some kind of savan. You appear to learn by heart all the news so as to interm your friends, and neighbors. ; But you smoke like a Dutchman. That confounded pipe causes you too much distraction." And as before the pipe was again broken.

Without making any movement, without showing the least sign of emotion, the so-styled schoolmaster merely repeated the first order: "Waiter, another pipe!"

"What a fine voice! Little man, you have the patience of an angel or devil. I would give much to see you mad; it would amuse us de liciously. There--". An old Major, with a fine German physiognomy, which showed well of frankness, true courage and loyalty, who came in with them, came up to him, and said in a low voice, but loud enough to be heard by those near him: "You comport yourself like a man without brain. I tell you the game begins to tire me, and the foolish hilarity of our comrades adds to my impatience, and hardly covers the murmurs of indignation which your conduct has provoked in the minds of those present. Quit ! quit! I tell you! it is now time?

After saying this he turned his back to him, and wi hdrew into an adjacent hall, whither he was soon followed by his companions, who, by their thoughtless laughter, covered his reproaches. Seated around the gaming table, they began to play. The young lieutenant, judging by the noise produced by his folly, had forgotten the insult, played desperately, and was wining largely. But an honr had scarcely of play, and approached him, tapped him on the shoulder, demanding a private interview. The young lieutenant, looking at him over his shoulder, laughed in his face.

"Monsieur Officer," said the man in black, "I am not a schoolmaster, as you were pleased to call me. I demand of you all satisfaction. It is due to me, and I hope you will not refuse it; if you do, I know well the means to obtain it. To-morrow, at seven o'clock, I will wait for you here; arm yourself with pistols!"

Our braggart, who, during this discourse, had risen to his feet, and had alternately be come red and pale, gave no response, but a bow of acquiescence, in the fear, no doubt, that the emotions of his voice would betray his complete terror. The captain saluted the rest of the company, and immediately left the house.

With him went all the gayety of the lieuten ant. He became thoughtful and taciturn, his spirit was no more with the play, and he lost all he had; before won. . 1 711

The thoughts of to-morrow—that terrible morrow-frigh ened him. How much his adversary would have the advantage over him. Suffering with so much calmness a series of affronts! Proposing a duel with that firmness, that assurance, imperturbable sang froid!-Bravery and skill were surely his. Such were the ideas that crowded into his mind.

On leaving the hall, they separated with the promise to meet at the hour indicated. At seven o'clock they met; the Englishman was already at the rendezvous, clad in the brilliant uniform of a superior officer of the navy of his country, covered with many decorations, and followed by a valet richly dressed, who carried a small casket under his arm. He offered them refreshments, which were accepted; spoke with courtesy; and proved himself to be high minded and acquainted with the ways

At eight o'clock he broke up the sitting, and requested the Prassian officer to be so kind as to designate the place where the quarrel could be settled, adding that as he was a stranger in that place, he would willingly give him the

They then repaired to a vast pasturage, which lay between Hamburg and Altona. Arrived there, he asked :

"What distance will suit you?"

"Twenty-five paces." "That is too much, Monsieur. You could not hit me at that distance. Let us say fifteen; that is enough."

The witnesses agreed, and the proposition was adopted. Meanwhile, the Major observed to the captain that he had no second.

"It is not necessary," replied the captain, "If I fall, my valet knows what to do." The Major insisted, and showed him that it was contrary to the usages of the country; accord ng to that morality the duel could not take place; but he offered. with politoness, to allow it to proceed, which offer was accepted.

The ground was measured, and they took their places. The captain, addressing his abver ary, asked this singular question:
"Have you good pistols? because I have two pair that never miss their mark! I will give you this proof."

Calling his valet, he opened the hox and took out one of the pistols which it contained, and told him to throw up something in the air. The valet searched in his pocket, but could find nothing save his handkerchief.

"That is too large; find something else." He then took out a dried prune and showed it to him.

"That will do; throw !" The fruit was thrown up, and instantly it was shattered to atoms. At this proof of his skill, the astonishment of the spectators was at its height; as to the lieutenant, he was more dead than alive. The captoin then took the place assigned to him symmetthe dieurement to fire at him.

The Walder him stepping in between the combatants, opposed the Lieutement's firing first,

... the usage of the country gives the offended the first shot; and for the second, chance will decide." "Ab, my dear Major," replied the captain, if I complied with your acvice, Mousieur would not have the pleasure to use his pistol on a man; and I am certain, judging from his appearance, that he has never been tempted to eriously promise himself that enjoyment. -Therefore, let come what may, nevertheless, I will that these gentlemen, who enjoyed themselves at my expense yesterday, and instead of hindering their comrade from being guilty of such folly, only laughed at my distress, shall, one after the other, gaze into the interior of my pistol."

"Mousieur, aim accurate. Woe unto you it you miss me, for I will not miss you; you will cease to exist!" They insi-ted no longer. The Lieutenant aimed, and the Captain oried: "It is too high."

The explosion was heard, the bullet grazing the top of his head. "My turn now, young extravagant! Yesterday I was, for one hour, the plaything for your raileries-your sarcasma. Without motive you insulted me; mocked and cursed me with humitiation I was a drolt tellow-a little schoolmaster. Who am I to day? A man! And who are you? A wretch, a miserable poltroen. trembling with fear! Death, which in an instant you will receive from my hand, encircles you with her shadows; already her icy hand is stretched over you! Your lips are blanched with tear, your eyes troubled, your face is pale as the sheer which will in a tew hours enshroud you! Your limbs refue to support you! Inso lence and cowardice always go hand in hand; that is all we can expect of one of your stamp. But before sending you to the other world, tell me: have you made all disposition for leaving this? Have you not a parting souvenir to give to a mother, father, sister, brother, or one who is dear to you? I have here a writing desk, cessary for that purpose."

A "thank you, sir." very humble and hardly intelligible, was all that could be heard. "In that case," said the captain, "if all reconciliation between us here below is impossible, and that your blood alone can wash out the affront which I have received, implore, at least, by a short and fervent prayer, the good and I will accord to you the few moments ne-ness and the clemency of the Almighty.' Then, the Lieutenant, taking his hat off, cast a look at the mute and terrified witnesses of this imposing scene, who all, with one accord. spontaneously uncovered their heads. During moment there reigned in that group a solemn and religious silence, which was not broken save by the respiration of those assembled. At length, taking up his pistol and pointing it with resolution toward his opponent, he made him suffer for another minute, the most intense agony. But all at once, as if by effect of suil den reflection, he turned himself quickly towards his valet, and gave him the pistol

THE AMALGAMATION OF LANGUAGES. There is a growing tendency in this age to appropriate the most expressive words of other l nguages, and alter a while to in or orate the nauto our own; thus the word Cephalic, which is from the Greek, signifying "fo the head," is now becoming popularized in connection with Mr. Spalding's great Headache remedy, but it will soon be used in a more general way and the word Cephali: will become as commonas Electrotype and many others whose distinction as foreign words has been worn away by common usage until they seem "native a to the manor born."

Many, since the great discovery of Prof. Wood, have attempted not only to imitate his restorative, but profess to have discovered something that would produce results identical; but they have all come and gone, being carried away by the wonderful results of Professor Wood's preparation, and have been forced to leave the field to its resistless sway. Paor. O J. Wood & Co.: Gents:—The letter I wrote you in 1856 concerning your valuable Hair flestorative, and which you have published in this vicinity and clae where, has given rise to numerous enquiries touching the facts in the case. The enquiries are, first, is it a fact of my habitation and name, as stated in the communication; second, is it true of all therein contained; third, does my hair still continue to be in good order and of natural color? To all I can and do answer invariably yos. My hair is even better than in any stage of my life for 40 years past, more soft, thrifty, and better colored; the same is true of my whiskers, and the only cause why it is not generally true, is that the substance is washed off by frequent ablution of the face, when if care were used by wiping the face in close connection with the whiskers, the same result will follow as the hair. I have been in the receipt of a great number of letters from all parts of New England, asking me if my hair still continues to be good; as there is so much iraud in the manufacture and sale of various compounds as well as this, it has, no doubt, been basely initiated, and been used, not only without any good effect, but to absolute injury. I have not used any of your Hestorative of any account for some months, and yet my hair is as good as ever, and hundreds have examined it with surprise, as I am now 61 years old and out a gray hair in my head or on my face; and to prove this fact, I send you a lock of my hair ken off the past week.

Some very signal instances of this kind are attested of female Sufferers, emaciated victims of appeared management, sanguineous exhaustion, critical changes, and that complication of nervous and dyspectic aversion to air and exercise for which the physician has no name.

In Nervous Affections of all kinds, and for reasons familiar to medical men, the operation of this preparation of iron must necessarily be salutary, tor, unlike the old oxides, it is vigorously tonic, without being exciting and overheating; and gently, regularly aperient, even in the most obstinate cases of costiveness, without ever being a gastric purgative, or inflicting a disagreeable sensation. It is this latter property, among others, when makes it so remarkably effectual and permanent a remedy for Piles, upon which it also appears to exert a distinct and specific action, by dispersing the local tendency which forms them. ENORMOUS BUSINESS FOR ON New YORK MERCHART.—

We are happy to inform our fellow-citizens that there is one place in our city where the physician, apothecary, and country merchant, can go and purchase pure Wines and Liquors, as pure as imported, and of the best quality. We do not intend to give an elaborate description of this merchant's extensive business, although it will well repay any stranger or citizen to visit UDOLPHO WOLFE's extensive warehouse, Nos. 18, 20 and 22, Beaver street, and Nos 17, 19 and 21, Marketfield street His stock of Schnapps on hand ready for shipment could not have been less than thirty thousand cases; the Brandy, some ten thousand cases—Vintages of 1836 to 1856; and ten thousand cases of Madeirs, Sherry and Port Wines. Scotch and Irish Whisky, Jamaica and St. Croix Rum, some very old and equal to any in this country. He ske had three large cellars, filled with Brandy. Wines, &c. in casks, under Custom-House key, ready for bottling. Mr. WOLFE's sales of Schuapps last year amounted to one hundred and eighty thousand dozen, and we hope in less than two years ne may be equally successf with his Brandies and Wines.

His business merits the patronage of every lover of bis species. Private families who wish pure Wines and Liquors for medical use should send their or lers direct to Mr Wolfe, until every Apothecary in the land make up their minds to discard the poisonous stuff from their shelves, and replace it with Wolfe's pure Wines and Liquors.

We understand Mr. Wolfe, for the accommodation of small dealers in the country, puts up assorted cases of Wines and Liquors.

we indersuan Mr. Wolff, for the accommodation of small dealers in the country, puts up assorted cases of Wines and Liquors Such a man, and such a merchant, should be sustained against his tens of thousands of op-ponents in the United States, who sell nothing but insi-tations, ruinous alike to human health and happiness. The attention of Invalids, Physicians, Clergmes, scient fic men, and the public generally, is respectfully solicited to the merits of this chemical preparation, containing IRON, SULPHUR, AND PHO PHOROUS, and which is identical in its composition with the Hematic Globule, or red blood. In all diseases accompanied with DEBILITY, pale countenance and nervous derangement, analyses of the blood show a deficiency of the red globules, complexion and a rosy tint of the skin, is always indicative of health; while a pale, wax-like skin and counts, nance,—which evinces a deficiency of the red globules,—accompanies a diseased organism. Preparations of IRON have been given for the purpose of supplying the red globules, but we concent that IRON alone, SULPHUR slone, or PHOSPHOROUS alone, will not meet the deficiency in every case, but that a judicious combination of all these elements is necessary to restore the blood to its normal standard. This point, never before attained, has been reached in the BLOOD FOOD, and its discovery ranks as one of the most scientific and important of the age. Its effects in
