DEMOCRATIC

FRIDAY, Feb. 22, 1861. The Convention met at 9 o'clock, a. m. After prayer by the Rev. Dr. NEVIN, Dr. ACKER, of Montgomery county, moved that the proceedings of a Democratic meeting held in Montgomery county some time ago be read; which motion was lost

The CHAIRMAN announced the first business in order to be the report from the Committee on Resolutions. The Committee not being ready to report at that time, R. BRUCE PETERKIN, Esq., of Huntingdon county, moved that the Farewell Address of the Father of his Country be read; hich was agreed to; and at the request of the Convention, Captain JACOB ZEIGLER, of Butler county, read the Farewell Address of

Gen. George Washington, in his usual fine style. During the reading of the address, Capt. ZIEGLER was frequently interrupted by the enthusiastic applause of the Convention. When those passages which allude to the feelings of fraternal love and regard which should ever distinguish the American people, and the equal and even handed justice, which, we as a people, should accord to the people of all the States, the feelings of the Convention knew no bounds. but burst forth in long continued cheering.

At the close of the reading of the address, Mr. TATE, of Montour county, moved that Washington's Farewell Address be published as part of the proceedings of the Convention; which motion was adopted.

The Honorable ELLIS LEWIS, of Philadelphia, Chairman of the Committee of Thirtythree on Resolutions, made his appearance on the stand, amidst the cheers of the Convention, and announced that the Committee on Resolutions were ready to report. He prefaced the reading of the report, in a few well-timed and eloquent remarks. He said that the Committee, of which he had the honor to be Chairman, was a large Committee, as he knew it was intellegent (for the Convention had chosen it) It represented all quarters of the Commonwealth, and all shades and stripes of opinion in the Democratic (if indeed there were any stripes in the Democratic) party. [A voice in the crowd—"We are all stars."] JUDGE LEWis. Yes, you are all star Democrats. It could not be expected, he continued, but that in a Committee composed of thirty-three gentlemen, some difference of opinion would manifest itself in the discussions on resolutions. There were divisions of opinion, as there was considerable discussion, because discussion was necessary. That discussion lasted until about two o'clock this morning. We had a large mass of resolutions from all parts of the country, to pass upon. Some from Tammany Hall, Connecticut, and other places, besides not a few from members of this Convention. to add, he continued, that the committee were unanimous in their recommendation of the resolutions I am about to submit. You will find resolutions on all the great issues involving the present impending difficulties that now distract the country, and among them a resolution recognizing the rights of our Southern brethren, and opposing all sorts of aggression upon those rights. This announcement brought the whole Convention to their feet, who in three hearty cheers gave vent to their feelings, as the true chord had been touched that responded from the breast of every member of the Convention.

We are sorry that we cannot do full justice to the eloquent remarks of the venerable JUDGE LEWIS on this occasion. Suffice it to say, that they were couched in language of thrilling eloquence, and had about them the ring of the true Democratic metal.

At the request of JUDGE LEWIS, whose voice had given out in the delivery of his introductory remarks, CHAS. W. CARRIGAN, Esq., of Philadelphia, one of the Secretaries of the Convention, read the resolutions of the Committee in a clear, distinct and eloquent manner.

The following are the resolutions: Resolved, That the States of this Union are sovereign and independent over every subject not surrendered to the control of the Federal Government, and they have no right to interfere with each other's domestic institutions but are bound by the Constitution of the United States to protect and defend them against domestic insurrection as well as foreign inva-

Resolved. That the Government of the United States, although limited in its authority to the subjects enumerated in the Federal Constitution, possesses within those limits supreme authority, and has the usual and necessary power for preserving itself and enforcing its laws.

Resolved, That the Union of the States was founded by the wisdom of our patriotic ancestors-is sanctioned by the experience of our whole political existence, and has secured to us unexampled prosperity at home and respect abroad. The Democratic party will cling to it as the last hope of freedom, and as the great experiment in self-government, which is to light the nations of the earth to liberty and independence.

Resolved, That the Democratic party possess the recuperative power which nothing but integrity can give, and is determined to sacrifice on the altar of patriotism all individual interests and past dissensions, and unite as a band of brothers to rescue the country from the control of those who are seeking its destruction; that this country, with the best form of government that ever was devised, is surrounded with dangers and difficulties which threaten its very existence; and yet the Republican party refuse all reasonable terms of compromise, and their leader on his way to take possession of the Government, seemingly satisfied with the disastrous culmination of his "irrepressible conflict," declares "there is nothing going wrong."

Resolved, That the people of the Southern States contributed their exertions and treasure in the acquisition of the territories equally with those of the other States, and that the principle which recognizes the equal rights of all the States to the same, is founded on the clearest equity and supported by the decision of the highest court of the country. It ought, therefore, to be sustained by every law-abiding citizen, until a satisfactory dividing line can be settled, by an amendment of the Constitu-

Resolved, That every State is bound by the Constitution of the United States to aid in delivering up fugitive slaves to their owners, and all legislation which witholds such aid or throws obstacles in the way, is unconstitutional and should be repealed, and suitable enactments substituted in accordance with the federal duties of the respective States.

A Section of the second

NO. 148. Resolved, That the resolutions offered in the United States Senate by the patriotic Senator from Kentucky, and known as the Crittenden plan of compromise, present a satisfactory basis for the adjustment of our difficulties. The measures therein specified are wise, just and honorable-calculated to end the present deplorable agitation and prevent forever its recurrence. We commend this plan or something similar to patriots—men of business—working men—political parties—to the people everywhere; and we call upon all who love their whole country and desire to preserve it, to rally to such plan of compromise and carry it through. Resolved, That we will, by all proper and legitimate means, oppose, discountenance and preventany attempt on the part of the Republicans in power to make any armed aggression upon the Southern States; especially so long as laws contravening their rights shall remain unrepealed on the statute books of Northern States, and so long as the just demands of the South shall continue to be unrecognized by the Republican majorities in those States, and unsecured by proper amendatory explanations of the Constitution. Resolved. That in the dignified and prudent reserve of the southern border States, and in their conciliating overtures, we recognize the same patriotic purposes which animated the Fathers of the Republic; and that an appeal to the people of Pennsylvania will manifest their hearty concurrence in all reasonable and constitutional measures for the preservation of the Union, consistently with the rights of all the States.

Resolved, That the conduct of the present Governor of Pennsylvania, in confining exclusively his selection of Commissioners to the Peace Conference to the Republican party, and excluding 230,000 freemen of Pennsylvania from any representation in that body, was the act of a partizan, and not a patriot.

Resolved, That we are in favor of the immediate repeal of the 95th and 96th sections of the Penal Code of Pennsylvania—except so far as relates to the crime of kidnapping-because said sections stand in the way of a strict enforcement of the fugitive slave law.

After the reading of the resolutions was finished, P. C. SHANNON, Esq., of Pittsburg, moved that the report of the Committee be adopted by the Convention standing up; which was done; and the report of the Committee was adopted with three hearty cheers that made the welkin ring—not a voice dissenting.

R. BRUCE PETRIKIN, Esq., of Huntingdon, moved that a committee of seven be appointed to proceed to Washington City and deiver copies of the report of the Committee of Thirty-three to the President and Vice President of the United States, our Senators and members in Congress, and also a copy to each of the members of the Peace Congress now in session at Washington City. This resolution was amended so as to increase the Committee to thirty-four; which carried.

The following gentlemen compose that committee: Hon. H. D. Foster, Chairman, Westmoreland; F. W. Hughes, Schuylkili; James G. Campbell, Butler; G. W. Cass, P. C. Shannon, Allegheny; W. H. Case, Northumberland; J. W. Maynard, Lycoming; Richard Vaux, C. W. Carrigan, Josiah Randall, Jno. H. Hutcha few from members of this Convention.

D. FOSTER, was added to the committee and made chairman. Capt. JACOB ZIEGLER, of Butler, offered the following resolution; which was adopted: Resolved, That the thanks of this Convention re hereby tendered to Folyard E. Degan, of the city of Philadelphia, for the loan of two large flags for the use of the Convention, on which our noble sisterhood of States is indicated by thirty-four stars, and the reunion of the Democracy by the words "Democratic Convention," and "Democratic Head Quarters." On motion, Hon. JOSIAH RANDALL addressed the Convention in a strain of fervent patriotism for about twenty-five minutes, and concluded by giving the celebrated toast which he said he had the honor of hearing delivered from the lips of its author, the lamented Commodore Decatur, at a public dinner in Phila-delphia, in 1813:—"Our country—always right, but, God bless her, right or wrong, our country." Mr. RANDALL left the stand amid the deafening shouts of the whole Convention.

Dr. S. MORTON ZULICH, of Philadelphia, offered the following resolution; which was adopted: Resolved, That the proceedings of this Convention te published in pamphlet form, under the supervision of the Chairman of the State Executive Committee, and a copy of the same be furnished to each member of the Convention. GEORGE W. BREWER, Esq., of Franklin county, moved that the thanks of the Convention be tendered to the Chairman, Hon. H. D. FOSTER, for the able and impartial manner he had presided over the deliberations of the Convention; which motion was put by Vice President Hon. JAMES NILL, of Franklin county, and carried by acclamation. The Convention called out Messrs. VAUX, of Philadelphia; Hon. W. H. WELSH, of York; Hon. P. C. SHANNON, of Allegheny; Mr. TATE, of Montour; and JOHN CESSNA, of Bedford; who severally responded in patriotic strains that elicited unbounded applause. Dr. KEIGER, of Allegheny, was also called upon, who responded in an eloquent manner. The CHAIRMAN of the Convention returned his thanks to the Convention for the favor conferred upon him, of being called to preside over their deliberations; when, on motion, the Convention adjourned.

On motion of C. W. CARRIGAN, Esq., of Philadelphia, the Convention resolved itself into a mass meeting, Judge NILL, of Franklin in the Chair, but as nobody appeared disposed to remain longer, the mass meeting adjourned without doing anything.

HEATING CARS BY STEAM .- A perfectly successful trial of a new invention for heating railway carriages with hot tubes has been made between Par s and Montargis. By a most ingenious contrivance a portion of the waste steam thrown off after exhausting its motive the injection in large quantities of tartar emetic, power upon the engine is introduced into a flexible tube which extends throughout the train, and is so twisted that every passenger may put his feet upon it. The benefits of the arrangement are thus distributed among all the various classes of travelers.

ALTARS OF HEAVEN AND BARTH AT PEKIN.

We ride through the An-tin gate, and keep straight on until we come in sight of the wall of the Chinese city, when we turn to the right by the yellow-tiled wall of the Emperor's Palace, and strike through the Ching-yang gate, alias Tseen-mun, and find ourselves in the Chinese city. We keep along the main road, and pass right down towards the gate on the southern side, opposite the Yung-tih-mun.

But before we reach this gate, we find ourselves in an open space, with a large walled enclosure on each side, the left of which contains the Altar of Heaven, or Tien-tan—the right, the Altar of Earth, or Te-tan. These sacred spots are never trodden by aught save the Emperor and his high Mandarins; to all others the right of entrance is denied. We were admitted through a side door into the large waste park in the first enclosure of Heaven's Altar. The grass was all dried up, and the trees for the most part leafless, so the place presented a barren appearance. The gateway and walls were tiled with green tiles. The roadway led under some cedar trees to & small enclosure, in which were several buildings, the refreshment hall among others; and in the centre a somewhat conically shaped structure, covered with purple tiles and surmounted by a golden knob. This turret was situated on a broad circular terrace of marble, which dropped to two other narrower terraces, and then to the ground, by means of steps .-The central series of steps, facing the south, had each flight divided by a large tablet, carved either with dragons or phoenixes on its face. Up this the Spirit of Heaven ascends into the temple. The series of steps on the right is consecrated to the Emperor's celestial footsteps alone, and the series on the left to the Mandarins that ascend with him. In like manner, there were three entrances to the temple, one large central portal for the Spirit to enter, and two side ones for the Emperor and his Mandarins. The floor of the temple was paved with black marble, and facing the central doorway a raised platform of white marble, with steps leading down. At the back of this was placed a black throne, whereon the Spirit of Heaven is supposed to sit in majesty. A table with an incense-burner stood in front of it, and a large offering stand in front of that again. On the right side of the temple were four thrones, and on the left four, all with incense-burners before them. These were dedicated to the eight canonized monarchs of the ruling dynasty.

On New Year's day his Imparial Majesty, with a select cortege, proceeds in great pomp along the paved road leading from his palace to this temple, which he enters up the right flight of steps, through the right door. The two other doors are thrown open to the admission of Heaven and the favored sons of earth. Incense rises in clouds from each altar, a slaughtered bullock is placed on the stand as the pledge offering, and the Son of Heaven, retiring backwards from the incense he has placed on the altar, descends the steps, prostrates himself on the floor, and with nine kowtows acknowledges, for once throughout the rolling year that there is a being superior to himself. The thanksgiving over, the bullock is taken outside and burnt, and the choice assembly retire to the damude man, where the shments are laid out ready to satiate the Imperial appearant The proce return with all the pomp it came. We found the place much neglected, woods covered the marbled terraces, and dust the heavenly temple, but our guide took the trouble to assure us that all things were put into order before the advent of each new year. We then crossed the road, and by another sidedoor entered the enclosure of the Altar of Earth. Here there was again a large waste park speckled with trees, and on the left a smaller walled enclosure with buildings, many of which were in sad repair. About the centre of the place stood a square terrace of marble, raised some five feet above the level of the ground with steps on each side. In front of this was the land cleared year after year by the Imperial plough. On the right, among some trees, was raised another marble terrace with incense-burners; and in the rear, the halls of refreshment. It is during the feast of Tsing-ming, in third moon, that the Emperor favors this spot with his august presence. Incense is burnt on the altar, and he proceeds with his Imperial hand to "guide the well used plough, to lend his shoulder and commence the

The feat is proclaimed to the world by the blowing of trumpets and a great hullabulloo.-He is said to break the soil for the third of a 'mow." He then ascends the central terrace, and on a throne brought there for the purpose, contemplates the attempts of his Princes as they work each one his mow's breadth. At the conclusion of this rustic farce, the banquet-hall is cheered by the celestial smile, and leave taken as before. "Then through the field the sower stalks, and liberal throws the grain into the faithful bosom of the soil; the harrow follows harsh, and shuts the scene." Wheat and Indian corn are usually sown on these occasions, and the produce of the small plots stored in the Imperial garner.

Considering the bragging accounts given by natives of these two famous temples, we were much disappointed in our visit to the Altars of Heaven and Earth. Like everything Chinese, they bear the stamp of tinsel, and do well to contemplate at a distance. A close inspection betrays their baser metal.

REVENUE AND TAXATION OF ENGLAND.-The whole net revenue of England for the year ending December 31, 1860, amounted to £71,-967,495—about equal, in round numbers, to $860,000,000. This is but the net amount.— The cost of collection, estimated at an average of 8 per cent., would make the gross amount of English taxation £77,700,000, or $388,500,-000, to be paid by a population smaller than our own, and the majority of them much poorer. This vast amount is raised thus: Customs, £23,000,000; excise, £19,000,000; stamps, £2,250,000; taxes, £3,000,000; post office, £3,500,000; crown lands, £250,000; miscellaneous items, nearly £2,000,000; and property tax nearly £3,000,000. Yet, immense as this amount is, it falls short nearly three millions pounds of meeting the year's expenditure. It is estimated that the late war with China will cost England $75,000,000. In return for which she gets indemnity to the amount of $7,500,000, in instalments running on for several years. This is a profitable speculation for John Bull, but the poor tax payers have to foot the bill.

TREATMENT OF TETANUS BY TARTAR EMETIC. The London Lancet says: Dr. Ellis in the nineteenth volume of the "Medical Commentaries," had related a case of disease treated by two or three successive injections, containing a drachm each, having been used at intervals of four hours; the tetanic symptoms were com-pletely removed, and the patient made a good recovery. Dr. Meckenzie relates a case recently under his care, in which he employed the same treatment, with the addition of opium to the tartar emetic. The tetanic spasms much diminished, but the patient eventually sank
