The Patriot & Union

MONDAY MORNING, MARCH 18, 1861.

From the Albany Evening Journal, March 12. THURLOW WHEED ON HORACE GREELY.

"FREEDOM IS ALWAYS WITHIN THE UNION." For uttering this sentiment, Mr. Seward has subjected himself to renewed assaults from the New York Tribune.

There was a time in Mr. Greely's history when we, with others, deemed him quite above the paltry ambitions of the common herd of place-hunters.

But that delusion banished when the non-bestowal of office upon him was made the excuse of a rupture with Governor Seward.

But those perils and ovations were endured in vain—unless (having failed to secure an appointment as delegate from his own district) the honor of serving Oregon as a sub-delegate in the Chicago Convention was recognized as an ample reward.

A resolution of the Union, however, would augment his chances wonderfully. Hence his persistent advocacy of the right of the Gulf States to secede.

And hence, too, the chilling commendations awarded to the conciliatory passages of the President's inaugural.
