Boy KILLED.-In Philadelphia, on Thursday morning, as the hook and ladder truck of the Washington Hose Company was run out at Ninth and Arch streets, a boy named Edward Thomas, who was running with the apparatus, and pulling by the side ropes, fell, and the wheels passing over his neck. death resulted almost instantly. The deceased was but 12 years of age.

HARBISBURG POST MASTAR .--- We copy the following private dispatch sent from Washington to the Evening Journal, of Philadelphia, on Saturday:

"The post-office at Harrisburg has given Mr. Cameron a vast deal of trouble. This morning he handed the whole subject over to the Hon. John W. Killinger, who is bound to take the responsibility. The centest is now narrowed down to Henry Gilbert and Abraham Freaner."

This must be rather unwelcome news to some of phatically declared that he would not be a candidate under any consideration.

Freaner is still under favorable consideration. We heard him publicly proclaim on Friday night, that

LONDON MECHANICAL ENGINEERS .- The London Mechanic's Magazine furnishes an abstract of the proceedings of the London Institute of Mechanical Engineers, held on the 2d ult., from which we make the following extracts in relation to water-supply for tenders :

"The last paper was a 'Description of a Method of Supplying Water to the Tenders of Locomotive Engines whilst Running,' by Mr. John Ramsbotlom, of Crewe; the object of which is to avoid the necessity of stopping the train for the purpose of taking in water for the engine. This is effected by having a scoop or curved pipe attached on the bottom of the tender, which dips down into an open trough of water laid between the rails, and thus scoops up the water and delivers it into the tender tank whilst running along, the water rush-ing up the curved scoop as this is passed through the trough. The scoep is carried on a transverse centre bearing, and when not in use is tilted up by a balance weight, so as to be clear of the ground for taking water it is dipped into the trough by depressing it by a handle to an adjustible stop.---The trough is cast in short lengths and fixed on the sleepers, the joints being made water-tight by a strip of round vulcanized india-rubber inserted between each length, which effectually prevents leakage and allows for expansion and vibration .--The height of water in the trough is maintained at a little above the level of the rails by an overflow orifice at each end of the trough, and the trough extends for a length of a quarter of a mile along a level portion of the line. At each end of the trough the line is made to rise for a short distance by an easy gradient, so as to ensure the scoop al-ways clearing the end of the trough on entering, and also being lifted out clear at the other end, the scoop being lowered before reaching the trough, and raised after leaving it. The results were given of a number of experiments made in filling the tender at different speeds, in which it has been found that the delivery of water into the tender commences when the engine is passing at a speed of about fifteen miles an hour, and between twentytwo and fifty miles an hour the quantity of water raised by the scoop in passing along the trough is follows: We have a Susquehanna salmon lying in practically the same at all speeds of running, amounting to about one thousand one hundred gal-lons, or five tons of water, with the present length of trough. To provide against freezing in severe weather, where the water is stationary in the trough, an ice plow is used, consisting of a small frame with wedge-shaped top, which is run along the trough once each morning when required, and turns out the ice over the sides of the trough; any ice afterwards forming is readily removed by the scoop itself in passing through, and the apparatus has been kept at work without any difficulty during the whole of the late severe winter. This mode of taking up water for the engine whilst running was milliners, &c., to the straw and lace goods house | designed to carry out the accelerated working of the Irish Mail, which requires a clear run of eighty-four and three-quarter miles, from Chester to Holyhead, without stopping; the water trough is fixed at the half-way point, near Conway. The plan is also designed for supplying water to heavy through-goods trains, to avoid the necessity of their stopping for water alone, and also for rendering available sources of good water upon the line at the level of the rails, where there is not a station. A working model was exhibited, showing the action of the scoop in raising the water into the tender, and also the velocimeter used in the experi-ments for measuring the speed of the engine, consisting of a vertical glass cylinder, containing oil, which is made to revolve by a cord passing round the axle of one of the engine wheels; the rotation of the cylinder causes the surface of the oil to fall in the centre in proportion to the rate of rotation, and the speed is readily observed by a graduated scale at the side of the glass cylinder.

PROPERTY IN DOGS .- The questions of property in dogs, and of the right of persons to rid themselves of opnoxious canines, in their own way, has been tested in the courts of Pniladelphia. A cothe aspirants, and especially the one who so em. | lored man, named Morris Van Duke, was charged with shooting a dog belonging to Mr. Herstein, of Germantown, and with assaulting the sons of the It is bighly gratifying to notice, that our friend owner of the dog. It seems that Van Duke was the coachman of Mr. Trump, who resided in the neighborhood of Mr. Herstein. The shooting of the Democratic triumph in Harrisburg was the the dog was proved by the Commonwealth, and first gun fired on the strength of the rumor that also the fact that Van Duke had struck, or struck Bergner was to be appointed Postmaster, and if at, the sons of the owner, who happened to be prethe rumor should prove true, the next election in sent at the lime of the shooting. The defence prothe city would give the Democrats at least a thou- posed to show the general bad character of the log, and also that he had bitten a child of Mr. Trump. Judge Ludlow laid down the rule that no act of the dog's, unless committed within fortyeight hours of the shooting could be given in evidence, and this ruling deprived the defendant of his defence, for the biting of the child and other misdeeds of the cur had been committed prior to that period. The Judge, in his charge, explained his reasons for fixing a limit to the time within which evidence of viciousness could be introduced. He was willing to concede that an offence committed by the dog might justify an immediate pupishment of it by the party aggrieved ; but the offence committed by the animal must be recent, to dispel the idea of malice on the part of the avenger in the destruction of the quadruped. For that reason, he had fixed forty-eight hours as the limit. The Judge also referred to the growing disposition in the large American cities to disregard law, and to the necessity of stopping the evil before all government came to an end, and every man set himself up as the Judge and the executor of the law. In the case on trial it was proved that taxes were paid upon the dog which had been slaughtered. It was therefore personal property, and as much the subject of the protection of the law as any other species of property.

FROG INGENUITY .--- The following item, which we find in that sober, philosophic journal, the Boston Courier, will amuse those of our readers who are fond of the curious in natural history :

On the island of False river, Louisiana, is found a frog whose peculiarities, we believe, have hithescaped the attention of naturalists. It is erto called the "egg frog," from its great hankering after "hen fruit," and is a great nuisance to farmers in consequence. Being unable to break the shell of the egg, it is swallowed whole, after which the frog climbs a tree, and then precipitates itself to the ground. The fall breaks the shell, and the frog spits it out piece by piece.

A MARVELOUS STORY .--- A farmer of Kittanning, while digging a hole for a fence-post one day, struck upon a hollow substance, which he afterwards discovered to be the skull of a human being. The sight at first appalled him, but resuming his labor, he succeeded in digging out the entire skull, beneath which he found a brass kettle, containing some beads and other relics, and also a small box, within which he found a paper on which were words written in the French language. These words he had translated, and they ran in this wise : "Buy all your own and your sons' garments at the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chesnut street, above Sixth, Philadelphia."

" Bully for him-bully for all." sand majority !

A DEMOCRATIC VICTORY .- The municipal elec tion held in this city on Friday last resulted in a glorious Democratic triumph-a clean sweep in all the wards except the Fifth. Afraid to rally under a name which has become a stench in the nostrils of a betrayed people, the Republican name was ignored entirely; but with the usual cunning of that party, they nominated a ticket in each ward, placing upon it for minor offices a number of Democrats, taking care to place upon every one, for Judge and other important positions, the most rampant of their party. This transparent and played-out trick did not succeed, for the the Democrats came up to the work manfully, and elected the regular nominees. By adding up the vote for Judges in the different wards, we find the Democrats have carried the city by two hundred and seventy-five majority. All hail the Democrats of Harrisburg. who never say die, and who never stay whipped ! N. B .- We understand that the Republicans were so sure of holding their own that Barr's company of Wide Awakes had trimmed their torches preparatory to a parade in their new uniforms, scotch plaid caps and military overcoats-but the project was abandoned. HIS CLAIMS .- A correspondent whose mind appears to be considerably agitated at the probable appointment of George Bergner to the Harrisburg Post Office, indignantly asks-"What are his claims to recognition by the Administration at Washington ?" We will endeavor to enlighten this anxious inquirer. The claims of Bergner may be stated formally as follows:

. First-He is a native of Hesse Cassel, or Hesse Darmstadt, or some other Hessian Principality, and the Administration wishes to show by some signal act that it is not tainted with native Americanism. Second-He has made a great deal of money out of the Whig, Know Nothing and Republican parties, and is entitled to make a great deal more. Third-He don't need the office; and it is good policy to appoint a man whose circumstances place him entirely out of the reach of temptation.

Fourth-He is the editor of the Telegraph in which position he has rendered the most efficient services to his party, by his able exposition of Republican principles, and his uniform fidelity to freedom.

Fifth—He is rigidly and inflexibly honest in all his transactions with the State, as may be ascertained by reference to the records of the Auditor General's department.

Sixth-He voluntarily announced in the Telegraph, immediately after the election, when his name was suggested as a candidate for the Post Office, that he would not make application, thus throwing other applicants off their guard; and exhibiting a degree of smartness that should not be permitted to pass without recognition.

Seventh-He is a great favorite with the citizens of Harrisburg, who, with one accord, would take it as a personal insult if the Administration should select some other man.

Eighth-He is patriotic and always faithful to -himself.

Ninth-He is truthful, and has never been known to utter a falsehood For proof of this assertion, see the columns of the Telegraph.

Lastly-He is an urbane and polished gentleman, practices all the amenities of civilized life and never was known to commit a mistake in arithmetic against himself, except upon one occasion, when he insisted that two meant three, and made the correction accordingly.

This enumeration might be continued to an indefinite length, for we are quite in love with the subject, but if our inquiring friend is not satisfied

THE EFFECTS OF COLD .--- With regard to the treatment of frost-bitten persons, the part affected should be rubbed with cold water or snow, and then with fluids of a medium temperature, in a cold room; cautiously bring the patient into a warm atmosphere, and administer small quantities of cordials or warm tea, then cover him up in bed, and encourage perspiration. Even where the patient seems quite dead, or has lain as if dead for days, you must give a fair trial to these remedies. When poor Boutillat, the French peasant, who awoke crying out for drink after his four days' sleep in the snow, was brought to his friends, they wrapped him in warm linen, dipped in aromatic water, and this was but too probably the cause of the poor fellow's feet mortifying.

How cold slaughters its victims we do not exactly know; some say it paralyzes the heart; others think that the cold, to use the popular expression, drives the blood inward, and kills by apoplexy. The irresistible sleepiness that creeps over a person "lost in the snow" is well known, and has often been described ; if once it is yielded to, death under the forlorn circumstances usually present, is sure to result. But, undoubtedly, it may kill at once. Persons have been found stonedead, standing upright at their posts, all the machinery of life having stopped at once-the mouth half open, as it was when the last groan was uttered; the limbs still in the position they assumed during life, and having undergone, through the peculiar antiseptic nature of the cold, none of the changes we find after other forms of death.

POLICE-BEFORE ALDERMAN KLINE .-- On Saturday Jacob Smaltzey was before Alderman Kline on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, and abusing his father. Jacob is evidently a bad egg. His father is 73 years of age, and owns the home in which he lives, where he gives Jacob food and shelter, and yet the ungrateful scamp returns abuse to the old man, instead of filial affection. Sent over for five days.

Sally Sissel, a lass of some twenty-five summers, who has become a worshipper at the shrine of Bacchus, was found wandering about the city with the remains of a quart of "white eye" in a champagne bottle. Sent over for five days.

Yesterday morning Fred. Brown, a Teuton, and Mickey Lynch, a Milesian, who had commenced now that Bergner ought to be appointed, he never celebrating St. Patrick's Day on Saturday evening, were sent over for 24 hours.
