She was married at the age of seventeen, and served in the campaigns or Milan, Wagram, Borodino, Moscow, Beresina, and Smolensko Her biography is given in the petition which she presented to the President of the Republic in 1850: "Prince: Encouraged by the kind and gracious reception you gave me in 1849, I again come to present you the homage of one whose life has been consecrated to the service of your uncle. In 1802 I united my fortunes to those of Nicholas Beaudot, a soldier of the Fourth Regiment of Cavalry, and subsequently overseer of ambulance service in Prince Eugene's corps d'armee. I was successively one of the garrison of Lyons in 1802, of Milan in 1803, and of Udine in 1805. To follow my husband I disguised myself as a soldier, and served in the ranks under the name of Maurice. Before Raab I afforded succor and distributed soup to two hundred and eighty-seven wounded. Being remarked by Prince Eugene, I revealed to him the secret of my disguise, and, in return, had the honor of being complimented by his mouth. At Wagram I extinguished a fire that tortured the wounded who were lying about the plain, and that threatened to burn up the gathered harvest. After the battle I remained in an isle in the Danube, where the ambulance corps was stationed; from thence I returned to Udine, where I remained till 1812, when I took part in the campaign of that year, and served in every battle where the 4th corps de ta grand armee wrs ordered. I was at Smolensko, at Borodino: I was at Moscow, and even beyond it. During the retreat I shared in all the dangers of the first attack of the Cossacks. Under the fire of the enemy I passed the Beresina upon a block of ice. Before Wilna, on the 16th of November, I received seven lance wounds, and fainted in the arms of my husband, who was also wounded. Under cover of night we dragged ourselves to the rampart, and entered the town through a sewer. When we came to Glogan my husband sank under his wounds. Prince Eugene, with his own ears, heard my cries of despair. Remembering the care which I took of the 287 wounded at Raab, he had the goodness to send his aid-de-camp to me with the assurance that he would always takes care of me; but, frightened with my misfortunes alone, and plunged in sorrow, I only demanded to be carried to Strasburg, where I quitted the soldier's habit. abandoning, in my precipitation, three months' pay. Returned home, I brought nothing but a premature old age. I dare assert, with the pride of a soldier, that I am a wreck of the great army, and by virtue of this title I hope, Prince, to share in your accustomed liberality."

THE PRINCESS OF THE RHINE.-A writer whose respect for certain classes of the community is rather limited, treats of the Princess of the Rhine in an amusing manner-having especial reference to Teutonic old maids:-

I may panse to consider how old maids come to be in this blessed realm. There is something, first of all, in the Teutonic race, because, though by no means common there, old maids are found in Germany. They there take one of two forms. In the neighborhood of the universities, and in scientific circles, we find a few excellent women living under the protection of their brothers, who are invariably professors of some sort. These Fraulien, born in blue, and in an odor of mingled philosophy and tobacco smoke, are transcendentally spiritual. They write poetry of the ecstatic, and prose of the costive school, and correspond with the Schillers. Goethes, and Humboldts of their day. They have sometimes been lovely (after the German model) in youth, but all trace of their spring blossom is lost in a sear (and not over-clean) autumnal decay. They are utterly regardless of dress, andread a great deal of English litera-ture in the Tauchnitz edition. They have generally a deficiency of hair, but wear no caps. They attend the lectures at the university with note-books, and talk a good deal of æsthetics in the evening.

The other class of German old maids consists of the maids of honor. Every small princess (and their name is legion in Germany) has one or more Hofdame about her. They are generally very poor and very spiky, but of terrible old family, and a distant connection with royalty of some kind. Sometimes they take to English and æsthetics-sometimes to French and freedom of morals. The former class are forever raving about scenery, draw a little, live on the crumbs of the ducal table, and toady everybody. The lady of the latter class, far less respectable, forms small coteries of her own, plays rival to the married women, and circulates all the gossip that the ministure court of Dunsinkopf-Tollhousen can give rise

THE FAMINE IN INDIA .- The famine in India is spoken of by foreign journals as unparalleled in extent, and probably in intensity; though as yet the information received is very imperfect. The latest accounts represent the distress as increasing. It prevailed throughout the Northwestern provinces, where some 400 or 500 persons were dying every day; and even in the Southern extremity of the peninsula, famine and pestilence spread desolation in many villages. This deplorable condition of things is attributed to drought. From time immemorial. India has been subject to visitations of this *kind, but their effects have been mitigated by the general introduction of systems of artificial irrigation. Extensive works were erected in former years for the creation of reservoirs of water which might be distributed in small streams through those parts of the country chiefly devoted to agriculture. Of late years, however, owing to the rebellion among the natives and other civil disturbances, these works have been suffered to go to ruin. Immense tracts of land formerly peopled by flourishing communities, have consequently become barren wastes. From the peculiarity of the soil, cultivation becomes impossible in India, if rain is lon; suspended. The surface is baked to stony hardness; vegetation ceases; and labor is uselessly expended. But on the recurrence of rain, the earth becomes covered with verdure with surprising rapidity. London papers evince much disposition to blame the Government for not having taken measures to provide against a calamity which was clearly foreseen. No rain fell last season, rendering it certain that the crops must fail. As the means of transportation are very inadequate, fear is expressed that with all the exertions which may be put forth by Europeans and opulent natives of Bombay and Madras, the next three or four months will witness terrible suffering.

RELEASE OF COL. RUDLER.—Colonel Rudler, who was arrested with the late General Walker, and who has been held as a prisoner ever since by the authorities of Honduras, has been released by President Guardiola. This has heen effected, it is understood, through the friendly mediation of the British Consul in Honduras. Colonel Rudler came passenger to the United States in the Northern Light.

A dastardly husband was followed to a billiard saloon at St. Louis, last week, by his young wife, and begged, to accompany her home; he went outside the door, and there knocked her down; on returning to his game, the poor woman's scream was heard by a gentleman inside. who learning the cause, well thrashed the ignoble wife beater.

WOLFE'S PURE SCOTCH AND IRISH WHISKY.

ALL IN BOTTLES.

I beg leave to call the attention of the citizens of the United States to the above Wines and Liquors, imported by Udolffe, of New York, whose name is familiar in every part of this country for the purity of his celebrated Schiedam, Schaffs. Mr. Wolffe, in his letter to me, speaking of the purity of his Wines and Liquors, says: "I will stake my reputation as a man, my standing as a merchant of thirty years' residence in the City of New York, that all the Brandy and Wines which I bottle are pure as imported, and of the best quality, and can be relied upon by very purefisser." Every bottle has the proprietor's name on the wax, and a fac simile of his signature on the certificate. The public are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves. For sale at Betall by all Apothecaries and Grocers in Philadelphia.

Enormous Business for one New York Coarier:

Read the following from the New York (ourier: Enormous Business for one New York (ourier: Enormous Business for one New York (ourier: We are happy to inform our fellow-citizens that there is one place in our city where the physician, apothecary, and country merchant, can go and purchase pure Wines and Liquors, as pure as imported, and of the best quality. We do not intend to give an elaborate description of this merchant's extensive business, although it will well repay any stranger or citizen to visit UDOLPHO WOLFF's extensive warehouse, Nos. 18, 20 and 22. Beaver street, and Nos. 17, 19 and 21. Marketfield street. His stock of Schnapps on hand ready for shipment could not have been less than thirty thousand cases; the Brandy, some ten thousand cases—Vintages of 1836 to 1856; and ten thousand cases of Madeira, Sherry and Port Wines, Scotch and Irish Whisky, Jamaica and St. Croix Rum, some very old and equal to any in this country. He also had three large cellars, filled with Brandy, Wines, &c. in casks, under Custom-House key, ready for bottling. Mr. WOLFE's sales of Schnapps last year amounted to one hundred and eighty thousand dozen, and we hope in less than two years he may be equally success with his Brandies and Wines.

his Brandies and Wines.

His business merits the patronage of every lover of his species. Private families who wish pure Wines and Liquors for medical use should send their orders direct to Mr. Wolfe, until every Apothecary in the land make up their minds to discard the poisonous stuff from their shelves and replace it with Winese and replace it. shelves, and replace it with WOLFR'S pure WINES and

LIQUORS.

We understand Mr. Wolff, for the accommodation of small dealers in the country, puts up assorted cases of Wines and Liquors. Such a man, and such a merchant, should be sustained against his tens of thousands of opponents in the United States, who sell nothing but imitations, ruinous alike to human health and happiness.
