FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1863. GREAT INDIANA DEMOCRATIC MASS MEETING.

PHIC DESCRIPTION OF THE SCENE. It gave, on Tuesday morning, the proceeds of the great Indiana mass meeting, held on the 20th.

Many soldiers, divided into small squads, usually accompanied by non-commissioned officers, and frequently partially intoxicated, swaggering up and down the streets all morning.

THAT nothing was said against the administration, and that the arms they carried were mostly given for that purpose.

Several arrests were made, but, although the greatest excitement prevailed, no disturbance resulted. It is said that this last raid was made by order of Colonel Coburn.

THE Indiana Journal (administration organ) apologizes in the following terms for these unparalleled and alarming outrages:

"The interruptions were as unfortunate as they were unjustifiable. * * * But we owe it to the public, as well as to Gen. Haswell, to say that the arrests were made without authority and contrary to orders.

WE don't believe a word of it. There was no need of military on the ground—but being there, he could have restrained the troops from violence had it been his pleasure to do so.

SOMETHING FOR THE PEOPLE TO THINK ABOUT. From the New York Daily News. PAPER RESOURCES.—The condition of the Federal Treasury is one which should excite the liveliest solicitude of every citizen.

THE power to borrow and expend this money is in addition to the customs duties, and the internal revenues. Now, the census of 1860, page 194, gives the whole amount of personal property in the northern States as $2,678,400,000.

THE only loans which the Secretary has authorized to borrow to meet those appropriations are as follows:

Stocks 5 per cent. 30,000,000 $3,000,000

Stocks 6 per cent. 90,000,000 5,400,000

Stocks 7 per cent. 120,000,000 8,400,000

Stocks 8 per cent. 150,000,000 12,000,000

Stocks 9 per cent. 180,000,000 16,200,000

Stocks 10 per cent. 210,000,000 21,000,000

Stocks 11 per cent. 240,000,000 26,400,000

Stocks 12 per cent. 270,000,000 32,400,000

family in the country pays at the same rate for its supplies, and the national substance is being eaten out with frightful rapidity.

AN ELOQUENT AND DESERVED TRIBUTE. On retiring from service and sending north some non-commissioned officers and privates of the 81st United States Infantry—who were shamefully surrendered by their officers while serving in Texas, in the early part of the rebellion, and recently exchanged—Gen. Banks issued the following eloquent order, the highest tribute he could pay to the brave and loyal men who, for two years, had resisted all offers and entreaties to desert the flag of their country, under which they had enlisted:

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, THE ARMY CORPS, ORLEANS, APRIL 23, 1863. Sergeant Brady, Stapleton, M'Comick, Reinhardt, Shabo, New, Harris, Dickey, and two hundred and sixty-one men of the Eighth Infantry of the Regular Army of the United States, having been exchanged by the rebel government, whose prisoners they were, arrived at New Orleans on the 26th of February, 1863, and a portion of them, under command of Lieutenant Copley Amory, Fourth Cavalry, reached this post on the 28th instant, to share with us the honors of this campaign.

These gallant men of the army of the United States in Texas were shamefully and unconditionally surrendered to the rebel authorities by their superior officers on the 9th May, 1861. Separated from their officers, divided into squads and removed to different posts on the frontier of Texas, deprived of pay for more than two years, they were subjected to degrading labors, supplied with scanty food and clothing, and sometimes chained to the ground, or made to suffer other severe military punishments.

Not a government has ever been more faithfully served than these men. Officers of the army and navy, to whom they have a right to turn for counsel and example—who had been educated by the government, and never received a month's pay that was not drawn from their own pockets, nor borne an honor that it did not merit, and who were never once suggested to desert the flag that they had so bravely defended, and to whom every branch of the government within their control, and the continent under their feet, they yielded to the indecency and folly of the rebellion, and without a shadow of cause they sought to blacken the name of America and Americans by fastening upon her the greatest crime of human history—that of destroying the best government ever framed, and annihilating the well-founded hopes of humanity in republican liberty. Thank God! the officers would not corrupt the men they commanded!

Not a soldier has ever been more patriotically, voluntarily abandoned to the power of a poisonous subtlety of secession nor touched the hearts of the people, nor led to substitute the guilty ambition of vulgar, low-bred provincialism for the hallowed hopes of national patriotism.

Soldiers! let the gallant men that part from us to-day receive the honors they deserve—the peal of the cannon and the shout of the line! Let them receive, wherever they go, the homage of the army and navy together. The army and navy forever!

By command of Major General Banks. RICHARD B. INMAN, Asst. Adj't Gen.

THE GROWING CROPS.—The accounts which reach us from all parts of the country agree in predicting that the coming crop of cereals, vegetables, and fruit will, in all probability, be the largest ever grown in this country.

Notwithstanding the war and the high price of farm labor, an immensely increased area of land has been placed under cultivation. There seems to have been a conviction on the part of the western farmers that the coming year would witness war in Europe, and as a consequence that there would be an unusual demand for cereals and provisions. In addition to the increased number of acres put into wheat, tobacco, fax, hemp, and sorghum are being very extensively grown; the three first on account of the enhanced price they have borne during the past year, and the sorghum to supply a substitute for the sugar and molasses which have been held at rates that put them out of the means of farmers to use. The West will this year produce all the sugar and molasses it can use, and will, in addition, be able to sell large quantities to the East.

All this is cheering. A nation that has an assurance of an abundance of food, and the means of rearing a large and healthy population, is never in danger of becoming destitute of help that even women have been compelled to labor in the fields. This scarcity of laborers has caused a corresponding advance of wages, which have thus early in the season, in some parts of the State, reached an unprecedented figure. When the harvest season arrives, this scarcity will be even more severely felt.

The idlers in our cities might find abundant employment at good wages, and do their country good service, by going into the rural districts and putting their hands to work in the fields.

Out of 423 persons appointed under the conscription law, only 35 have been in the service of the United States. This is the way the promise has been kept that these places should be given to worthy, patriotic military men, disabled from active field service.
