The Patriot & Union.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 7, 1863.

THE NOMINEES OF THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

From the Philadelphia Age.
The result of the recent Democratic State Convention has produced an enthusiasm in the ranks of the Democracy that was rarely, if ever, equalled in the history of the Democratic party. In this city the nominations made by that body are hailed with the greatest satisfaction and delight; and from the manner in which they were received by the people who crowded to Harrisburg from all parts of the State, there is no doubt that the same feeling extends throughout the length and breadth of the Commonwealth.
There were a number of true and faithful Democrats presented to that convention for gubernatorial nomination. They had many warm and enthusiastic friends who fairly and honorably pressed their choice upon the delegates. Struggling in generous rivalry to secure the object of their wishes, they permitted no bitterness nor rancor to disturb the harmony and unity of action, which, in this crisis, was demanded of their representatives by the Democratic masses. Now that the contest is over, not only the candidates themselves, but all their friends, unite in standing together under the old flag that so often led our party to victory. The platform was adopted without a dissenting voice, in the midst of the most enthusiastic cheering; and the sound doctrines it boldly enunciates will find an answering echo in the heart of every Democratic Pennsylvanian.

George W. Woodward, the nominee for Governor, is widely known in this Commonwealth. He is, at present, one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, to which high and exalted position he was elected by a large majority. He is a Democrat without a blemish upon his political record, and has never wavered in his devotion to the great doctrine of State rights and strict Constitutional construction. He is unyielding in his attachment to the freedom of speech, the liberty of the press, and the rights of all the citizens, under the Constitution. As a lawyer and a jurist, he stands in the front rank of his profession. His learning, his ability, his pure and blameless life, his sound and orthodox Democracy, and the many estimable qualities which endear him to all who know him, make him a candidate who must command the entire support of the Democratic organization, and win the respect and admiration of every true friend of the Union, the Constitution, and the laws. He did not seek the proud position which has been conferred upon him by the convention, but he has accepted it, unhesitatingly, by a single word or action of his own. The news of the nomination came to him as unexpectedly as if it had fallen upon the humblest citizen in the State; and his bearing from this time until the great struggle is over—crowned, as we believe it will be, with success—will prove him to be a candidate in every way worthy of the party which selected him as its standard bearer in the most critical and important period of its history.

The selection, by acclamation, of Walter H. Lowrie, as the Democratic nominee for the Supreme Bench, was equally proper and patriotic. Judge Lowrie was elected to the Bench in 1851, and ever since his occupancy of that position he has shown himself to be a true man and a consummate jurist. His private life is irreproachable, and his public services have all indicated ability and patriotism of the highest order. Long before the convention assembled, it was conceded that the nomination of him as the Democratic nominee for the Bench could not perform a nobler action than to continue him in the high office he has filled with so much dignity and ability. The announcement of his nomination, although unexpected, occasioned the most heartfelt satisfaction; and the intense pleasure it produced was an earnest tribute to the commanding talents and acknowledged worth of a tried and faithful public servant.

With such candidates the Democratic party cannot fail to win a glorious triumph. They would prove a tower of strength to any organization. Not only the principles they believe in, but the men themselves must command the serious attention of every honest voter. There are the times when the State needs the services of the best and truest sons. Perils of no ordinary nature surround our unhappy country. That the people will earnestly ponder upon these facts cannot for a moment be doubted. The restoration of the Union and the preservation of the Constitution are now the only watchwords of the Democratic and conservative masses, who are rallying together under one banner, and who are inspired by only one motive—the preservation of the Republic. In the election of George W. Woodward and Walter H. Lowrie, the friends of an undivided Union of a restored Constitution, of freedom of speech, of liberty of the press, and of all the inalienable rights which belong to the citizen and the State, will secure a lasting triumph. With inflexible zeal and with unflinching energy, they will stand by their principles, and will not shrink from their duty as long as they are now engaged, and which, we sincerely feel, is the cause of a common and beloved country.

From the Greensburg Democrat.
THE CONVENTION AND CANDIDATES.—It affords great pleasure to present to our readers an abstract of the proceedings of the Democratic State Convention which assembled at Harrisburg on the 17th instant. Everything passed off harmoniously, and the Convention adjourned in the best feeling and spirit, indicative of a glorious triumph of the glorious old cause of the Constitution, the Union, and the Democracy, in October next.
The candidates are men of whom Pennsylvania and her noble Democracy may well be proud.
In point of ability, integrity, purity of character and life, and qualifications, Hon. Geo. Woodward is not surpassed by any man in the State. With him in our Executive chair, Pennsylvania will rank honorably and respectfully with New York and her gallant Seymour, and New Jersey and her faithful Parker.
For the Supreme Bench, the nomination of Judge Lowrie was a matter of course. He had loved himself an able, honest, conscientious and fearless Judge, and it would have been difficult to find a man more qualified to be nominated than he, and the people not to have nominated him.
Democrats and constitutional men of Westmoreland county, you have a ticket worthy of your most earnest and active support. Be up, and doing. Pennsylvania must be redeemed from Abolitionism. The country must be saved from the ruin which it is threatened by the unwise, unconstitutional, Abolitionists of Lincoln and his subordinates. The salvation of the State and Union and of constitutional rights and liberties of the States and people, depends, in a large measure, upon the success of this ticket. Let us all, then, rally at once, and labor unceasingly in its behalf. Patriotism demands this of us. From the Armstrong Democrat.

Hon. George W. Woodward, the accomplished statesman, jurist and scholar—a nomination eminently fit to be made! a consummation that we had ardently hoped for—and one that we are rejoiced to know has been realized. We had often said, within the broad limits of our Commonwealth, we knew of no man that combined so many essential qualities absolutely necessary for the position at the present time, as he. We with many others would have advocated his claims before the nomination was made, but with characteristic modesty he declined having his name thrown into the contest, but the convention, with commendable wisdom, has named him for Governor, and already the response has come up from all parts of the Commonwealth, the best nomination that could be made. His election, it seems to us, cannot be doubtful. He stands upon the same platform as did Horatio Seymour, of New York, a legitimate, vigorous prosecution of the war for the restoration of the Union, and the patriotic masses of the old Keystone State emulating the worthy sons of the Empire State, will not fail to roll up an immense majority for the noble standard-bearer as well as the cause at issue.

We congratulate the Democracy on the fact that we can enter the campaign at this trying crisis with a candidate whose ability and character are worthy of the high position to which he has been nominated, and eminently fit to be made. We believe we have a whole duty to the country. Judge Woodward is not a politician of that class which cluster around bar rooms and oyster cellars, seeking position and place, but a statesman of elevated character, dignified manners, schooled in the books of political polity rather than the wires of party. It is for this reason we thank the convention for his nomination and congratulate the Democracy of the Commonwealth in the selection of a man worthy of their confidence and the cause entrusted to his care.

Hon. Walter H. Lowrie, (our Chief Justice,) was nominated by acclamation for the position of Judge of the Supreme Court. The fact that he was thus nominated, after holding the position for ten years, of itself is the best compliment that can be paid him. At the present time we need such men as Judge Lowrie on the bench—men who, while they respect the authority of the Executive and Legislature, at the same time assert and enforce the power of the Judiciary. We do not wish to see one branch of the government infringe upon the rights of the others, and the way to prevent this, is to elect men who will neither attempt it, nor permit it if attempted.

Our district and county nominations are now also full, and we can, without hesitation, recommend the whole ticket. The Democracy of Westmoreland have placed in nomination for the Legislature Messrs. John Hargrett and John W. Riddle; these gentlemen with John B. Chambers, of our own county, are therefore the nominees of the district. We are not personally acquainted with the Westmoreland gentlemen, but have no doubt the "Star of the West," has given us good men. Mr. Chambers is well known in the county and will make, we have no doubt, a faithful and active member of the House. His constituency and the party will not suffer by his being chosen. Our ticket is composed of gentlemen of rare qualifications for the positions to which they have been named. Indeed we doubt if ever we had a full ticket excelling the one now named. Some of the candidates have already served the public in offices of trust, and the discharge of their duties has been so satisfactory, that we are not astonished that their reward has come in the form of this honor.

Those of the ticket who are before the public for the first time as candidates are in every way worthy of the position, and well qualified to discharge the duties of their respective offices. Armstrong county will honor herself in electing the ticket the Democracy have placed in nomination. From the Wayne County Herald.

THE NOMINEES OF THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.—The Democratic State Convention, which met at Harrisburg on Wednesday of last week, discharged its duties in a manner which meets with general satisfaction throughout the entire Commonwealth. The resolutions reported by the committee and adopted amid the most unmistakable demonstrations of approbation by the convention are such as must meet the approval of every true lover of his country, pledging the party as they do, to every necessary constitutional measure for the restoration of the Union, which they denounce in language not to be misunderstood, the imbecility and fanaticism which have characterized the rule of the present Republican administration and well-nigh wrought the overthrow of our liberties.

In regard to the candidates put in nomination by the convention whose names we place at the head of our columns this week it is probably necessary to say but little. With the Hon. Mr. Witte, who was content to waive his own claims to the position in order that the Hon. George W. Woodward should be made the standard-bearer of the Democracy during the coming political struggle, we feel that the characters of our candidates stand so high "it would hardly be just to praise them, since that might imply that commendation was necessary." It is surely needless to enlarge upon the merits of Judge Woodward, here in the county of his birth, and among those who have watched his career from boyhood only to find him as true to the cardinal doctrines of Democracy, and as faithful in the discharge of every moral obligation, as the principles—moral and political—which it is his pride to represent and exemplify, are themselves immutable. Once again in the history of our country—and the exception occurs at a time when the unfavorable condition of public affairs gives it a peculiar significance—the office has sought the men; and Judge Woodward and Lowrie will be elevated to positions of honor and trust, not as the result of their own aspirations, but as the unanimous choice of a party who know by their past record that the future interests of the Commonwealth may well be trusted to their hands.

From the Berwick Gazette.
JUDGE WOODWARD.—The Abolition papers of Philadelphia, with one exception, are compelled to speak well of Judge Woodward. The Bulletin thinks his nomination a wise movement, and says "he is an able lawyer and a gentleman." The worst it can say of him is that he is a "bit of a lawyer" with equal force over two hundred thousand voters in this State, we rather think the Judge can survive it. The Inquirer says of Judge Woodward:—"The Democratic State Convention exhibited much more good judgment in the selection of its nominee than in the character of its resolutions. Judge Woodward is a citizen of unimpeachable character, an able jurist, and a patriotic gentleman."

Forney's Press, however, with the falsehood and malignity peculiar to it, attempts to cast a slur upon his legal ability. It says: "He possesses high personal character, and, if a brilliant member of the bar, has at least managed, by many years of silence on the bench, to obtain a reputation for wisdom and sincerity." The Press also says: "Perhaps the most distinguished trait of the gentleman's character is the fact that, under the cover of the ermine, he has been a pertinacious beggar for his nomination."

This is false. Judge Woodward has never, by word or deed, indicated a desire to be Governor. His nomination was entirely unsought by him—it was a voluntary tribute of the Convention to his merits as an honest man, and an enlightened patriot. The office in this case sought the man—not the man the office.

From the Monroe Democrat.
OUR NOMINEES.—We heartily congratulate the Democratic party upon the success of our late State Convention, placing in nomination the gentleman whose name appears at the head of another column, there to remain until after the next October election, having been elected by a rousing and overwhelming majority. The political contest is to be between the Democracy and Law, against the fanatics and force.

Our next Governor does not only require to be a man of irreproachable character and great public experience; but he must also possess stern firmness to insist upon the restoration of the majesty of Law—one who thoroughly comprehends the genius of our institutions, and has studied the "essence of Law."

It will appear to every person, that George W. Woodward, at present one of the Judges of the Supreme Court, possesses all the necessary qualifications for the dreaded time that is before us. Judge Woodward holds a high position as an expounder of the law. He can appear as our Governor, with the Constitution in his hand, and from his brief pages define the platform of the law-abiding Democracy, sworn to perform by him, as the Executive.

In all parts of our State the nominations are hailed with the greatest satisfaction and delight. Judge Woodward is a true Democrat, without a blemish upon his political character, and is unyielding in his attachment to the freedom of speech, the liberty of the press and the rights of all the citizens under the Constitution.

It did not seek the proud position which has been conferred upon him by the Convention. The news of the nomination came to him as unexpectedly as if it had fallen upon the humblest citizen in the State.

The selection by acclamation of Walter H. Lowrie, as the Democratic nominee for the Supreme Bench was equally proper and patriotic. Judge Lowrie was selected to the bench in 1851, and ever since his occupancy of that position he has shown himself to be a true man and a consummate jurist.

With such candidates the Democratic party cannot fail to win a glorious triumph. They will receive a heavier vote than has ever been cast in this Commonwealth for any man of any party for office. The contest will be between the several counties as to who shall give the largest majority for our glorious nominees. From the Selingsgrove Times.

STATE TICKET.—We place to-day at our head the State ticket nominated at Harrisburg by the Democratic State Convention. No better nomination could have been made, nor could any other have produced such harmony and unanimity at this time. Woodward and Lowrie are an embodiment of Law and Order that must command the respect of all law and order loving men. The tremendous enthusiasm of the convention that nominated them betokens the certain election. The people are dissatisfied with the powers that be, and they are fearfully and disgustingly tired of a reign of terror and a rule of ruin. We can assure the people, also, that we enter the campaign with two candidates whose moral characters are free from blemish, and whose abilities are not only not doubted but tested and well known.

CONFEDERATES IN PENNSYLVANIA.
From the Richmond Enquirer, July 2.
General Lee's army has occupied, without resistance, the flourishing town of York, the centre and capital of a great county which is the garden of Pennsylvania, situated on the railroad on which Baltimore depends for its supplies, and within fifty miles of that city, almost due north. The intelligence of the capture of Harrisburg is not confirmed, and was at least premature.

The plans of Lee are still a secret to our enemies, as well as to ourselves; whether he means to strike for Philadelphia, or for Baltimore, and in either case to cut off the railroad communication of Washington with the North, as he has already with the West; whether his intention be to establish himself quietly in the richest part of the Keystone State, and make his fertile valleys support his army, until he can force Hooker to a battle, perhaps in front of the fortifications of Washington. All this remains a matter of conjecture for the present. One thing, however, is certain: General Lee's operations are directed not to indiscriminate plunder and devastation, but to the winning of victory; and victory will leave all Maryland and the best part of Pennsylvania absolutely in his power—to levy regular contributions upon the country—to burn or to ransom the towns and cities at his pleasure—to free Maryland and Baltimore, and to strike a blow right at the enemy's head in Washington.

It is true the enemy's country deserves no consideration at our hands; to leave it all waste like the Stony Arabia would be only fitting retribution; but the natural desire to bring home to
