The Patriot & Union. FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1863. NEW YORK DRAFT RIOTS. Outrages and Incidents.

Our account in yesterday's paper, from the Journal of Commerce, closed at 10 p. m., on Monday. A heavy rain commenced shortly after and nothing of importance occurred during the night. We resume the narrative to-day, copying partly from the Sun and partly from the Journal. The Sun says:

The riot was resumed yesterday (Tuesday) with increased vigor, and at an early hour crowds began to assemble in various parts of the city. At 10 o'clock, word was brought to the police headquarters that buildings were being torn down in the Seventh ward, and a body of U. S. regulars from Governor's Island were sent to disperse them.

In Seventeenth street, near Eighth avenue, they set a school house on fire, but the police extinguished it and set the rioters flying. Previous to this, another mob attacked some buildings on and near the corner of Ridge and Delancy streets, but were driven off by a body of marines, who killed a man, named Patrick Doherty, and fatally wounded another, named Donald, and a boy, named James Stephen.

In Thirty-fourth street a body of police were attacked with a volley of bricks and stones, which they met with their clubs, and routed the rioters. From the top of the building occupied as a porter house, showers of stones were hurled upon the police, but the latter burst open the doors, rushed into and through the house, and clubbed the rioters unmercifully. The military then appeared and fired into the crowd, six or seven of whom were killed and wounded.

Inquests were held by Coroner Bannay upon the bodies of ten dead rioters. Another, Edward M. Devrott, lies dead at 82 Lewis street. A party of about 300 policemen and a large number of citizens, who had volunteered their aid, made an attack at 2 1/2 p. m., upon a large body of rioters who had entered the Union Steam Works, corner of Second avenue and Twenty-second street, for the purpose of carrying off the machinery carried there from an arsenal, which was destroyed on Monday.

Another reporter gives the following account of what he witnessed. Early yesterday morning a number of men congregated around the Fulton and Alleira Iron Works, in the upper part of Cherry street, and demanded that work be suspended and that the men should go out with them. Armed with bludgeons, staves, and such other instruments as they could get, they then marched in a body to the Iron Foundry, which occupies the block from Sheriff to Columbia, in Broome street, and demanded that the workmen should join them, on pain of burning down the premises.

On the corner of Thirtieth street and First avenue the mob brought out two street-sweeping machines, and deliberately set them on fire. Several persons were killed and wounded above Twenty-first street and Second avenue, and in First avenue. About 5 p. m., a policeman, who made his appearance for a moment on the corner of Nineteenth street and First avenue, was immediately shot. The police station in Twenty-second street, between First and Second avenues, was completely gutted and closed up. The windows on the lower floors were generally broken. A detachment of the 6th Mass., who marched up the Second avenue, were fired upon at Twenty-first street, when they returned the fire, and laid to rest a dozen men in combat.

It was reliably reported that Colonel O'Brien of the Eleventh regiment, was shot up in Thirty-fifth street, and having fallen on the sidewalk, was then hung up by the neck until dead. MOVEMENTS OF THE AUTHORITIES. (From the Journal of Commerce.)

Governor Seymour arrived in this city this morning, and stopped at the St. Nicholas Hotel. About 12 o'clock, the Governor proceeded by a carriage to the City Hall for the purpose of consulting with the city authorities, and taking measures to restore peace. As soon as the Governor's presence at the City Hall was known, a large crowd of people assembled in front of the hall and called for the Governor. He responded to their request and made his appearance on the front steps. He was loudly cheered. After order had been restored, the Governor made a very few remarks.

On the Park small groups of men were congregated, here and there giving vent to their opinions concerning the draft. The prevailing objection was the $300 exemption clause; others thought that the government had been furnished with men enough to quell the rebellion three times over, had they been properly used, and were not inclined to submit to a conscription under any circumstances.

A disturbance occurred in West Broadway, near Leonard street, during which a white man in the hands of a negro, who was in return severely beaten by some white men before making good his escape. WHAT WAS DONE IN WALL STREET. Business was partially suspended in Wall street. At an early hour in the morning the deposits were removed from the U. S. Sub-Treasury, and the money from the Clearing House, and transferred to Governor's Island. Notes to the banks also sent off their bullion and coins to the Governor's Island, for safe keeping.

At about seven o'clock a large crowd assembled on Fourth avenue and Eighty-sixth street, and marched down to the Fifth street, Postmaster's office, on Eighty-sixth street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues. The rioters were preceded by about fifty boys, who proceeded very deliberately to light a fire on one of the parlor floors. The inhabitants had previously left. As soon as the fire was started the main body, yelling like demons, rushed through every room in the house, carried away every portable article on the premises, and what could not be carried away was broken into the smallest atoms.

During the evening, a crowd broke into Brook's clothing store, corner of Catherine and Cherry streets and immediately began throwing everything into the street. Large quantities of clothing were carried off, and one or two of the clerks injured, before the arrival of the police, who put a stop to the proceedings. Several of the rioters were arrested, not, however, before having their heads beautifully damaged by the batons of the policemen. One of the latter was seriously injured by a knock on the head from one of the ruffians.
