FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 24, 1863.

WAITING. We are waiting, waiting, waiting for the times of our day, and our ears are very weary with the monotony of wood.

They are falling in their glory as the leaves of Autumn fall! Not by beyond our eaves—but a low voice comes to all—God's great angel treads our camp ground. Are they ready for His call?

Oh! God! the States lie bleeding, waiting for thy mighty arm, Weared out by pain and watching, racked with terror Oh, put forth thy hand and heal us; bid the wrath of man be calm!

THE TOMB OF NAPOLEON.—One cannot enter Paris, (says the correspondent of the Christian Watchman and Reflector,) or move in any direction there, without almost feeling the presence of Napoleon the First.

SHAKESPEARE MONUMENT.—It has at length been decided, in London, to erect a statue or monument to Shakespeare in the centre of the city where he spent half his days and did the work that secured him immortality.

LADY LOVELOCK, Lord Byron's only daughter, who died eleven years ago, was buried in Hooknall Church. A marble monument has just been erected to her memory.

SEPTEMBER.—A man died recently in Liverpool, aged one hundred and one years. The family of which he was a member was remarkable for longevity.

THE WYOMING TROUBLES IN ENGLAND.—Dr. Livingstone lately wrote: "On the river Shire and Lake Nyassa, the great evil we have to contend against is the slave trade."

MR. SEVENSON took occasion, in a sermon delivered in England, recently, to contradict very emphatically the story which has been going the rounds of the papers about his religious views.

LONDON.—London extends at present over more than one hundred and twenty square miles; contains twenty-six hundred miles of streets flanked by three hundred and sixty thousand houses; a population of three millions, and an assessed annual rental of thirteen millions of pounds.

THE EMPRESS EUGENIE DYING.—A London correspondent writes to his paper: "I hear, on excellent authority, that the Empress Eugenie has died her hair perfectly dark, and that the change is anything but becoming."

A FARE IN ONE ACT, entitled "I Got Shaved," has lately been found among the papers of Schiller.

FLYING TO THE NORTH.—Refugees from the South are flocking to Baltimore and taking the oath of allegiance. Shriver, Charles Potter, John Clark, Vincent Newcomb, Robert Hamilton, Benjamin Galt, Sarah Clark, Emily Packer, Susan Wilson, Mary Adams, Robert Gallagher and William S. Sisson.

FROM THE NEGRO AND ENSLAVED THE WHITE MAN.—The doctrine of the Abolition party carried out, would force every negro on the continent and make every white man, who would not ignobly surrender his faith to Abolition keeping, Confiscation, emancipation, separation, contamination, colonization, amalgamation, confederation and damnation are the chief elements of modern Republicanism faith.

GAMBLING FOR A WIFE.—At Irkutsk a strange case in connection with the prevalent passion for gambling came under the notice of Mrs. Atkinson, the authoress of "Recollections of a Tartar Steppes." In one of the magazines of the latter a lady was observed whose history might be briefly summarized in the statement that she was lost and won at cards. Her husband had been a wealthy Siberian, but, like many of his countrymen, he was an inveterate gambler.

CRINOLINA.—Professor W. A. Ayton, reputed editor of Blackwood's Magazine, and son-in-law of John Wilson, (the renowned "Christopher North") is author of the amusing and satirical poem called "Crinolinitis," in the June number of Blackwood. The character of this effusion, which reminds one of English Prud and the American Saxe, may be judged from the concluding stanza:

"To whisper to thee were a joy More coveted than the wealth of kings; But ah! what instant can I employ To baffle those confounded springs? I long to clasp thee to my heart, But all my yearnings are in vain; I sit and sigh two yards apart, And curse the barrier of thy train."

THEY say that Victor Hugo, stimulated by the success of his "Misérables," and the half million of francs (one hundred thousand dollars) it produced, is rapidly progressing with his next work, "Seventeen Hundred and Ninety-three," which will contain a grand sketch of the French Revolution.

He was a native of Dublin, Ireland, educated in Rome, came to the United States in 1821, and settled in the State of Kentucky, where, in 1830, he was consecrated as coadjutor of the Bishop of Philadelphia, whom he succeeded in 1842.

MR. LÖSSING is busily engaged in his quiet home in Poughkeepsie, New York, in collecting and arranging ample materials for his great work on the rebellion. He is continually receiving the most valuable documents relating to the war, not only from the Government of the United States and the Government at Washington, but from private sources in every part of the country.

Mrs. LILLIS DEVEREUX USTED, the authoress of the new novel of "Rockford," (just published by Carleton,) in passing the summer at Wallingford, Connecticut, by penitence and education, this lady is entitled to be the best possible writer of a "social novel," and the critics declare that "her genius has achieved this difficult task."

JUDGE DRUMMOND.—This gentleman, who issued the writ of injunction in the case of the Chicago Times, was appointed U. S. Judge by Mr. Fillmore—a Whig, and of Republican proclivities—but he was educated right, and as an honest man, on habes corpus &c., cannot go astray. He is a native of Maine, and emigrated about 15 years ago.

JUDGE DOOLE.—Among the rebel conscripts who have been taken prisoners by our forces in Arkansas is Judge Doole, of Mississippi, formerly one of the judges of the Supreme Court. He was forced into the rebel ranks for his determined opposition to secession.

The University of the city of New York, at its recent commencement, conferred the doctorate of civil law upon Henry C. Carey, of Philadelphia. Mr. Carey is a distinguished teacher of political economy, and has written several works on that subject.

A NIXON of Oliver Goldsmith is now living in Hoboken, New Jersey, in somewhat reduced circumstances. She is the daughter of his youngest sister, Kate Goldsmith, of whom Washington Irving, in his life of the poet, asks: "What has become of his sister?"

BYRON TAYLOR, who has resigned the office of Secretary of the American Legation at St. Petersburg, has a novel in the press called "The Strong-Minded Woman: A Romance of American Life."

In the late battle of Gettysburg, a son of Mr. Stewart Brown, of the firm of Brown Brothers & Co., of New York city was killed.

Rev. Dr. ELPHALET NOTT, President of Union College, completed his 97th year on Wednesday, the 24th of June.

ARRIVAL OF THE SMALLEST CRAFT THAT EVER CROSSED THE ATLANTIC.—On Thursday afternoon the schooner St. John, commanded by Captain L. Washburn, arrived from Bergen, Norway, which port she left on the 12th of April, arriving in Quebec on the 12th of July, and reaching Chicago on the afternoon of the 16th of July, occupying 94 days. She had a very rough, stormy voyage, but made good sailing time under the circumstances.

The discovery of a tin mine in Missouri is announced by a correspondent of the Scientific American. If the report is true, and the mine workable, no more tin will be discovered in the world. We have heretofore been entirely dependent upon England and the East Indies for our supply of this important metal.
