FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 14, 1863. TRIAL OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN BY THE GREAT STATESMEN OF THE REPUBLIC.

A Council of the Past on the Tyranny of the Present. The Spirit of the Constitution on the Bench—Abraham Lincoln Prisoner at the Bar—His own Counsel.

It was reported some weeks since that the present unworthy successor of Washington, (the Abolition President, Abraham Lincoln) had become a convert to spiritualism.

On looking around the court we beheld a number of distinguished historical characters—men whose faces were rendered familiar from the portraits which we had seen in books and elsewhere.

The spirit of the Constitution announced that the trial of the culprit would now proceed, whereupon the venerable form of the Father of his Country arose in the midst of the spirits of the great men by whom he was surrounded.

1. In having arrested citizens of the United States, and incarcerated them in government bastilles, without process of law.

2. In having suppressed the liberty of speech, thereby denying to the citizen the constitutional right of criticizing the acts of his administration.

3. In having placed the military above the civil power, as shown in the establishment of martial law over portions of the country which were not embraced within the theatre of war.

4. In having overthrown State sovereignty as in the case of Virginia, the integrity of which was violated by the erection of the so-called State of Kanawha within its limits.

right should be guarded and protected by the freedom of this country with a jealous care, unless they are prepared for chains and slavery.

Abraham Lincoln. The great cause of all our trouble is slavery, and we cannot expect to have peace until that institution is abolished.

Henry Clay. Abolitionism! With Abolitionists the rights of property are nothing; the deficiency of the powers of the general government is nothing; the acknowledged and incontestible powers of the States are nothing; the dissolution of the Union and the overthrow of a government in which are concentrated the hopes of the civilized world are nothing; a single idea has taken possession of their minds, and onward they pursue it, overlooking all barriers, reckless and regardless of all consequences.

John Hancock. It is to the last degree a vicious and infamous attempt to support a government which manifestly tends to render the persons and property of the governed insecure.

Patrick Henry. Is the relinquishment of the right of the trial by jury and the liberty of the press necessary for your liberty? Will the abandonment of the most sacred rights tend to the security of your liberty?

Alexander Hamilton. The confidence of the people will easily be gained by a good administration. This is the true touchstone.

John C. Calhoun. The law must be enforced! The imperial edict must be executed! It is under such sophistry, couched in general terms, without looking to the limitations which must ever exist in the practical exercise of power, that the most cruel and despotic acts ever have been covered.

James Madison. The more I reflect on the use of force, the more I doubt the practicability, the justice, and the efficacy of it when applied to a people collectively and not individually.

Alexander Hamilton. How can this force be exerted on the States collectively? It is impossible. It amounts to a war between the parties.

from one State to another for the purpose of invasion. If they do, will not the citizens of invaded States assist one another, until they arise as one man, and shake off what they will denounce as the hated Union altogether?

Abraham Lincoln. There can be no Union unless the State governments sustain the general government to the fullest extent in putting down disobedient and refractory States.

Andrew Jackson. But the Constitution cannot be maintained nor the Union preserved in opposition to the public feeling, by the mere exertion of the coercive powers conferred to the general government; the foundations must be laid in the affections of the people, in the security it gives to life, liberty, character and property in every quarter of the country, and in the fraternal attachment which the citizens can be justly claiming for themselves, as members of one political family mutually contributing to promote the happiness of each other.

Andrew Jackson. The legitimate authority of the Government is abundantly sufficient for all the purposes for which it was created; and its powers being expressly enumerated, there can be no justification for claiming anything beyond them.

John C. Calhoun. The law must be enforced! The imperial edict must be executed! It is under such sophistry, couched in general terms, without looking to the limitations which must ever exist in the practical exercise of power, that the most cruel and despotic acts ever have been covered.

James Madison. The more I reflect on the use of force, the more I doubt the practicability, the justice, and the efficacy of it when applied to a people collectively and not individually.

Alexander Hamilton. How can this force be exerted on the States collectively? It is impossible. It amounts to a war between the parties.

THE "RETRIBUTION" ORDER. The War Department has issued a general order, under the signature of the President, directing "retaliation" upon Rebel soldiers for certain acts specified in the order.
