dered the master, what cares he for the slave? Looking beyond this, the war must at length come to an end, and the negro soldier, coming North, and discharged from service, must, in order to live, enter into competition with white labor, and by cheapening its value, to a certain extent, usurp its place; or, failing in this, commit depredations on society, which will arouse the natural antagonism of race, and result in their destruction.

Gov. Curtin's Promises. Governor Curtin has already practically abandoned the duties of the Executive office, and will devote all his time, from now until the day of election—time which belongs to the Commonwealth and should be spent in the discharge of official duties—in perambulating the State and trying to persuade the people to reelect him.

That we are not speaking at random, we quote the following passage from a special message sent by Governor Curtin to the last Legislature on the day of final adjournment: "To be called a freeman of Pennsylvania is, henceforth, to have a title of honor wherever loyalty, patriotism and the martial virtues are cherished."

Such were the parting words of Gov. Curtin to the Legislature of 1863. He took special pains to impress the Legislature and the people with the conviction that he would not be a candidate for re-election, and gave two reasons for this conclusion—first, his failing health, and second, that he had been tendered and accepted a high position from the President.

That we do not judge Gov. Curtin more harshly than the record warrants in pronouncing his withdrawal an intentional and premeditated piece of deception practiced upon the people of Pennsylvania, as well as upon the adverse leaders in his own party, we point to circumstances so strongly corroborative of this view that they must be conclusive to every impartial mind.

The following is a classification of the regiments and batteries (U. S. regulars and volunteers) raised upon New York to enforce the draft:

After the war? What then? A reckoning! Does the thought that there must surely be a day of reckoning ever occur to the leaders and editors of the so-called "Democratic party"?

Union League Secrets. A correspondent of the New Hampshire State Sentinel, who assumes to have penetrated the odious mysteries of the order, sends the following as a portion of the instructions given to the initiated:

When you first meet a member, present your left hand and say: "How are you, Major?" "Answer—'Comfortably well.'" "Are you a member of our Union League?" "Answer—'Prove me.'" "How shall I prove you?" "Answer—'By positions.'" "Here comes in what might be called a command, for the person asking the question above set forth, says: 'Take positions and I'll sell them.'" "The person who answers the question then raises his left hand perpendicularly over his head, at which time you say, 'Washington.'" "He then drops his arm to a horizontal position, and you say, 'Jefferson.'" "He then drops his left hand on the left thigh and you say, 'Jackson.'" "He then raises his left hand to his breast, and you say, 'Union.'" "He then joins the thumb and third finger of his left hand; at this time you must also join the thumb and third finger, as he does; then both of your hands meet, and you put your thumb and third finger inside his and you say, 'League.'" "All this is done in a shorter time than I can tell you."

Consistency. One of the most curious features of the present campaign is the desperate measures which the friends of our provincial Governor resort to, in their endeavor to secure votes for his reelection.
