The Progress of the Red Men.

Among the tribes located in the territory west of Arkansas and Missouri, set apart by Congress for them, are many evidences of a gratifying advance in civilization.

The Wyandots, who emigrated west from Ohio, have five boarding-schools, the manual-labor school, and the Indian boys' school have made considerable proficiency in most of the useful branches of education.

The young men do wagon-making, blacksmithing, and shoe-making, all in good style. The girls make good woolen and cotton cloth, spinning the yarn themselves.

The government of the Wyandots is purely republican. They have a President, chosen every two years, an executive council, consisting of four members, and a legislature with two branches.

They are farther advanced in civilization than any tribe in their State. They have stores well supplied with all the necessities of life—large farms in a good state of cultivation—commodious houses, neatly carpeted and furnished, and there are many Indian ladies who dress in the English fashion, are clean and nice in their appearance, and well understand how to keep good economies in their houses, politeness and manners.

Some of the wealthiest among the Wyandots own many slaves, who were introduced by the Southern Methodist missionaries. There has been a good deal of excitement among the Indian Churches about slavery.

The Indian Christians did not wish slaveholding missionaries to come among them at all—not teachers that had not clean hands.

The Wyandots and their immediate neighbors, number upwards of 20,000 souls. The great bulk of them are advancing in the arts of civilized life with gratifying rapidity, still a few of them retain their savage habits—go almost naked, paint their faces, and go on warlike and predatory excursions.

The conduct of the general government gives satisfaction to these people. Liberal appropriations are made among them for the purpose of moral and educational improvement.

The Potawatomes, have about twelve hundred members of the Catholic Church and five hundred Protestant communists. There are good farmers among them, who have fine locations of timbered lands and prairie, and raise excellent stock of all descriptions. This nation is destined to a career of rapid improvement.

The Wyandots have had some little excitement about the division of the church. The Missionary from the old Methodist Church was there from Ohio, and the Missionaries of the Southern church and the Government agents tried to get him away.

In regard to the General Council of the Nations, held last fall in the Delaware Nation, not much business was done. The Nations represented on that occasion, were the Delawares, Wyandots, Shawnees, Kickapoos, Miami, Potawatomes, Otowas, Kansaues, Foxes, and Onahaws. They spent better than a week in the preliminaries or in getting ready to meet in general Council, which business fell on the Delawares, Wyandots and Shawnees. The other tribes spent the time in dancing and other amusements.

The main object of the Council was to bring the Prairie Nations to terms in regard to their stealing propensity. It is expected that these general councils will be convened from year to year. One good result will be to bring the wild naked nations of the Prairies in contact with the somewhat civilized Nations, who have emigrated from the States.

Peace and friendship was renewed between all the nations present, and the Compact, the Indian's seal and bond, was deposited with the Delawares.

Sullivan and Hyer. Yankee Sullivan is an Irishman, known in New York as the keeper of a small port-house in Chatham street. He has been long famous as a pugilist, and was the second to Lilly, in the famous prize fight between Lilly and McCoy, which terminated in the death of the latter. In England he fought with the celebrated Champion of the Ring, as it is called, Hammer Lane, and obtained the victory; since which time his name has been "up" as the champion prize fighter of all Christendom. Hyer is a stout and stronger man than his antagonist, but is said not to possess his science and skill. He is an American—a native of New York; and this circumstance, coupled with the fact of Sullivan being an Irishman, tended not a little to foment the bitterness and increase the excitement of this affair. Hyer weighs over 210 lbs., stands 6 feet high in his stockings, and is a fine, strong, well-proportioned man. This gave him a decided advantage over Sullivan, who is a man of ordinary size, and not so remarkable for strength and stamina.

This fight originated in the following manner:—It seems that Tom Hyer had got into his head that Sullivan was not quite so great a man as his friends believed him to be, and felt confident that he, himself, deserved the title of champion, more than Sullivan. A little jealousy between the two was thus created, and in this state of feeling they accidentally met one day at a porter house in Broadway. Thunts and jeers between the two naturally arose, till Hyer, exasperated, and burning to try his powers, threw off his coat, and dared Sullivan, then and there to battle. Sullivan instantly "peeled," and they had a regular "set-to." Hyer caught Sullivan by the head, held him by the neck firmly under his arm, and there kept him, thrashing him at his leisure, till Sullivan was obliged to cry, "hold, enough." From this time, it was open war and hostility between the two, and Sullivan and his friends burned with desire for revenge, and to vindicate the honor of their fallen champion. In this irritated state of feeling, they met again by accident, in one of the flash houses with which New York abounds, and another "set-to" instantly followed—an immense row was kicked up, and Tom Hyer again gave Sullivan a licking, precisely the same way as before, getting his head under his arm, and then battering the poor champion at his leisure. After this, several beligerent cards were published by the parties, a bitter warfare of words was carried on in the public papers, until the present fight, for a stake of ten thousand dollars, was arranged between them by their several friends.

This Fight.—Prevented from the consummation of their purpose by the descent of the Police on Pool's Island, but effecting their escape, the principals in this brutal affair were determined not to be deterred from the sport. They succeeded in making their way to the shore of Kent county, Maryland, and pushing about a mile inland, a ring was formed in a pine knoll, at about 5 o'clock, on Wednesday evening, at which time the fight actually came off; the parties being undisturbed from beginning to end.

We learn from a person who was present on the ground, that the parties met with considerable exhibition of personal animosity, and upon exchanging blows it was with an evident determination to make short work by sharp punishment. In the early stage of the contest Hyer drew the first blood from his antagonist, but was soon afterwards struck a severe blow in the throat and knocked down. The fight then continued in a rapid succession of "rounds," Sullivan receiving at every blow from his tremendous opponent very severe punishment. The intermission between the several onsets was so brief that it seems to have been regarded as a pretty steady fight. In one of the rounds, Sullivan received a severe blow over the left eye, lacerating the scalp and so lifting it from the bone of the forehead that it fell over his eye and obscured his sight. This caused a minute's delay, while it was fastened up with sticking plaster. In a subsequent round Sullivan was struck a blow upon the back of the head with such violence that it was thought his skull was fractured as he dropped apparently lifeless to the ground. Sullivan soon recovered, however, and again came up to the contest, until in the fifteenth round, when he received another severe blow, which threw him heavily and awkwardly to the earth. Upon being picked up and approaching his antagonist to resume the fight, it was observed that he raised his arm to his usual position for defence with much difficulty and great pain. His features were expressive of keen anguish and his arm wavered, and exhibited much weakness. His condition was observed by Hyer, who, rushing to the contest, with little difficulty struck down Sullivan's guard, caught his head under his left arm, and dealt him with his huge right fist a torrent of blows in the face and over the head, until as Hyer released his hold, he dropped senseless and bleeding to the earth. Thus this brutal and disgusting exhibition closed, Hyer being declared the winner.

In the course of the fight one of Sullivan's friends had attempted to pull Hyer from him, by seizing his thumb, and wrenching it violently, and as soon as Sullivan had fallen Hyer turned to this man and was about to beat him for interfering with him, but the friends of the parties mutually persuaded him to discontinue further operations for the present.

Hyer, it seems, was but slightly hurt. One of his eyes was discolored from a blow, and he had a cut over the other, but he was quite fresh when he left the ring. The time occupied by the fight is variously stated at 16, 21 and 30 minutes.

It is certainly due to the outraged laws of the State that they should be vindicated to the full extent of their efficiency in such a case as this. The offence is greatly aggravated in view of the fact that public sentiment has been set at defiance, and the chief official authority of the State grossly insulted.

Officers have been sent from Baltimore to New York to arrest Sullivan, and another officer has been sent to Philadelphia for Hyer, with a requisition from the Governor of Maryland, on the Governor of Pennsylvania for his delivery.

A California Letter. The Washington Union gives the following letter, with the remark that it was received by the Western mail, in an envelope post marked Louisville. The Union further adds that the name of the writer, "H. Patrick," could not be found on any roll in the Adjutant General's office, of troops in California. If true, this letter makes some queer developments, which tend to dissipate, in a great degree, the visions of untold wealth.

MONTEZUMA, November 21st 1848. As Mr. Stockwell and his company of eight try the new route south, down the Arkansas river, this perhaps will reach you at as late a date as any news from the diggings. I want to inform you, and through you my friends, that we have no respect here for law or honor—all is gold; but not all that glitters, for we were all in a perfect rage of disappointment last week, occasioned by an Irish Yankee who has just arrived with his chemical apparatus, and has demonstrated to us all, who had supposed we had our fortunes, that nearly three-fifths of our gold is but a worthless mineral, principally iron, copper, and these compounds; nevertheless, we have gold in greater quantities than it is usually found.

An industrious man can make from five to ten dollars a day by washing, and pass the inspection of the assayer. The country is filled with sickness, principally fevers, from exposure, bad food, and impetent habits in the mines or places, as here called. Every article of necessity is at an enormous price, but falling in consequence of the greater portion of the mineral not proving to be gold. There are many other valuable minerals in this region aside from that of gold. I would not advise those who are coming here, to raise their hopes too high of fortunes quickly made, yet, by prudence and caution, it may be done; but the suffering and privation to do so will be death to many an adventurer not accustomed to rough usage. We are almost totally destitute in the way of provisions. The soil of the valleys of the Sacramento and San Joaquin is better adapted to grazing than anything else, its general character being light and thin. Mechanics are sure to do well here—better than any other class who may come.

We are full to overflow now of speculators, but we have room enough for all. If my mineral had all proved to be gold, I should have taken the new route to Uncle Sam; but out of sixty thousand dollars in mineral, I only got twenty-three thousand in money. I have not time to give you a description of the climate of the country; but you will have that from Mr. Stockwell on his arrival in Kentucky, where he is bound direct. The thermometer ranges from 45 to 80 degrees, extremes. Chilly winds are prevalent here at all seasons of the year since my sojourn here. If the party succeed, this will reach you sixty days from date. Respectfully yours, &c. H. PATRICK, U. S. Army.

Foreign Intelligence. The steamship Niagara arrived at Boston on the 11th instant, with Liverpool dates to the 27th ultimo, two weeks later.

FRANCE.—The motion upon the question as to the dissolution of the National Assembly has been carried by a splendid majority. The reports made by the various committees upon the question were almost all adverse to the dissolution. It is said that whenever the question is pressed, the order of the day will be moved in the Assembly. It will therefore be some days before the reports will be made, and the fates of the Assembly will prevent the question being carried through, so as to allow the election to take place before April.

M. Marrast has again been permitted to retain his seat as President of the Assembly. M. Boulae de la Meurthe has been elected Vice President of the Republic by the Assembly.

The government is still in a state of transition. We had scarcely dispatched our last number when intelligence was received that eleven steamers were preparing at Toulon, with orders to sail without a moment's delay. Fröh Brest and Cherbourg equally active preparations are reported. The rumor naturally ascribes this demonstration as indicative of an armed intervention in favor of the Pope.

The steam vessels were adapted to carry from 7000 to 10,000 men, but up to this moment no orders for sailing have been received, and either a change of counsels has taken place, or more probably the expedition has been altogether abandoned. There is, however, an uneasy feeling, and 400,000 muskets have been ordered from the manufactures at St. Etienne. The main cause of apprehension is, however, the condition of the French finances.

The London Globe of the 25th, contains the latest despatches from Paris, which are dated on Thursday. They say "a public opinion seems to have undergone a great change about the Italian question. Some of the influential men who three or four months since were clamorous for an intervention in Italian affairs, in order, as they said, to redeem the honor of France, have taken alarm at the state of the finances, and do not hesitate to say, that they cannot see why France should lose all chance of ameliorating her condition by rushing into war for the freedom of a people who have no courage to fight for themselves. As for the question of the Pope, the opinion is that the French should abstain from any actual intervention for or against him, but England will throw no obstacle in the way of either Spain or Naples, if one or the other should offer money or men to the Pope. It is said that on this condition Austria would consent to stand aloof.

LOS ANGELES, January 26, 1849. THE MARKET.—Since our last advices of the 12th instant we have had an active demand for most descriptions of colonial and foreign produce, and in many instances advanced prices have been obtained. There has been increased inquiry for export, and higher prices very firm, and transactions limited, as most of the neighboring ports of the Continent have been closed.
