

Col. Benton and Slavery.

As this gentleman's course latterly on the exciting subject of the day is commented upon pretty freely in many quarters, it may be interesting to know what were his sentiments in former years. In February, 1830, now more than twenty years ago, in a debate in the U. S. Senate, Col. Benton uttered the following prophetic language in reference to the agitation of the Slavery question:

"I have, said Col. Benton, been full, I am afraid tedious, on the subject of slavery. My apology must be found in the extraordinary introduction of this topic by the Senator from Massachusetts, (Mr. Webster.) I foresee that this subject is to act a great part in the future politics of this country; that it is to be made one of the instruments of a momentous movement—not for dividing the Union—something more practicable and more damnable than that. The prevention of a world of woe may depend upon the democracy of the non-slaveholding States. The preservation of their own republican liberties may depend upon it. Now, was their steadfast adherence to the principles they profess, and to their natural allies, more necessary than at present. To them I have been speaking; to them I continue to address myself. I beseech and implore them to suffer their feelings against slavery to have no effect upon their political conduct; to join in no combinations against the South for that cause; leave this whole business to ourselves. I think they can well let it alone upon every principle of morals or policy. Are they Christians? Then they can tolerate what Christ and his Apostles could bear. Are they patriots? Then they can endure what the constitution permits. Are they philosophers? Then they can bear the abstract contemplation of the ills which afflict others, not them. Are they friends and sympathizers? Then they must know that the wearer of the shoe knows best where it pinches, and is most concerned to get it off. Are they republicans? Then they must see the downfall of their adversaries, in the success of a crusade, under federal banners, against their natural allies in the South and West.

Let the Democracy of the North remember, that it is the tendency of all confederacies to degenerate into a sub-confederacy among the powerful, for the government and oppression of the weaker members. Let them recollect that ambition is the root of these sub-confederacies; religion, avarice, and geographical antipathies the instruments of dominations; oppression, civil wars, pillage and tyranny, their end. So says the history of all confederacies. Look at them. The Amphion league—the Germanic confederation—the seven United Provinces—the thirteen Swiss Cantons. Let the Democracy of the North remember these things, and then eschew, as they would fly from the incantations of the serpent, the siren songs of ancient foes who would enlist their feelings in a concert of action which is to end in arraying one-half of the States of this Union against the other."

"Rappings" in Newark.

In the upper part of this city, on the outskirts, stands a detached house, the occupants of which have been much alarmed by repeated and long-continued rappings. Persons coming into the house as boarders, have left it on account of the unpleasantness of these strange and unaccountable noises. We have not heard that any communication was held or attempted with the author of the "rappings" by the people occupying the house—only that they were much disturbed. The noises were sometimes very loud—as if a person came into the room, lifted up a bustard, and suddenly let it fall to the floor. The children of the family finally became so terrified that it was found necessary to leave the place, and the house has now been locked up and untenanted some three or four weeks.

On Saturday evening last three persons in search of truth, knowing of these "rappings," determined to pass the night in the house. Without apprising any one else of their intention, they provided themselves with bedding, and forced their entrance, into the building through one of the windows. They made a thorough search of the house, and satisfied themselves that no person was in or about it. Having done this, they went to bed, and slept until about two o'clock in the morning. Hearing no "rappings," it was proposed that they start for home; when, suddenly, a manifest noise was heard below, and distinct footsteps, as of a person coming up the stairs and into the room. Of course the party were much excited. A series of questions was then proposed and answered, continuing for about two hours. The first question asked was, "Are you a spirit?"—the answer, if so, to be indicated affirmatively by a rap. A distinct rap followed. The name of the person who had lived in the house was requested, and given, the letters of the name being indicated by running through the alphabet—and rappings also given to the letters that did not compose the name. A question whether a murder had ever been committed in the house was answered in the negative. The age of the "spirit," when it left this world, was asked—the ten to be marked by slow raps, and the odd years by quick and faint ones. Three slow and four quick raps were made, denoting the age to be 31 years. Many other questions were put and answered, of the nature of which we are not fully informed—one being relative to Swedenborg—as to whether his doctrines were true—which was answered both ways—meaning, we suppose, that they were partly true and partly false.

These rappings were heard in different parts of the room, and nothing was seen by the party to show how they were produced. No one, we are assured, who would be disposed to deceive them, knew of their intended adventure. They adopted every means they then thought of to reach the cause and solve the mystery, and they found nothing satisfactory; but further investigation is, we understand, determined on by competent persons. The responses to the queries were direct and unhesitating, and if any deception were intended and used, there must have been an acuteness of perception and a gift of cunning combined that are not often met with.

Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad.

We find the following gratifying information in the Pittsburg Gazette:—

On the 6th of May, the line through Columbiana county, Ohio, is to be let at Salem, including the grading and masonry to the intersection of the Cleveland Railroad. The work between the mouth of Big Beaver and the State line, is in rapid progress, and the claims for damages which retarded the work at the crossing of the Beaver river, have been amicably adjusted. It is expected the locomotives and cars will be running from Pittsburg to Beaver and New Brighton in July of next year.

Arrangements have been made to urge forward the work as rapidly as possible on the whole eighty miles of the Eastern Division, from Pittsburg to the connection with the Cleveland Road. The means now provided for that part of the work in Pennsylvania, are sufficient to complete the grading and bridging to the State line, and to leave a surplus of about one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, applicable to the superstructure and equipment. The amount required for the grading and bridging between the State line and Salem, has been raised by the citizens of that town and its vicinity, and a subscription is now in progress in this city for the construction of the remaining thirteen miles west of Salem to Alliance near Mount Union. This last link of the Eastern Division runs through a corner of Mahoning county, and the means for making it will have to come from Pittsburg. The amount will not be large, and the Directors are determined to adhere to the policy of incurring no indebtedness, except for superstructure and equipment. This is essentially necessary, in order to enable the Company to obtain its iron on favorable terms. But few of our citizens are fully aware of the importance of the speedy completion of the Eastern Division of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad. As soon as it can be completed, the Railroads in Ohio, with which it will connect, will be ready for use, and railroad cars will be able to run from Pittsburg to Cincinnati, through Cleveland and Columbus. The route, it is true, will be three hundred and ninety miles long, and will be somewhat circuitous, but it can be run readily in from eighteen to twenty hours, and will be nearly a hundred miles shorter than the present river route. The completion of the whole of our Western road will shorten this distance from fifty to sixty miles, but the opening of the Eastern division will be one of the brightest days that ever dawned upon Pittsburg. It will give us a continuous railroad communication, all the year round, with the heart of Ohio. By a united and vigorous effort this may be accomplished next year, and the cars from Cincinnati may be rattling in our streets before those from Philadelphia. Let us hope that both roads may be ready to be opened at the same time, and as early next year as it can be achieved.

Marriage with the St. John Indians.
The Eastport (Me.) Sentinel publishes the following under the head of "Linkings of a recent trip to the St. John River."
Perhaps all of my readers are not aware of the peculiar custom of this tribe, in regard to marriage. On passing through their village, near Fredericton, I learned that their manner of wooing (or rather no-wooing) and wedding, was in this wise:—When a young Indian wishes to take a wife—at which time he has no idea who his copper-colored companion will be—he makes his wish known to his parents. The old couple then consult with the chiefs and matrons of the village, who discuss the matter and decide upon the bride. Feasting and "powwows" now commence, during which the candidates for matrimony are brought together, the bride so veiled, that neither she nor her husband recognize each other. After marriage, which is attended with great ceremony, the couple are separated for the space of five days—when the feasting, &c. being over, they unite as man and wife, and for the first time, each knows to whom he or she has been linked by the fates. I believe this custom approximates very much that of the Chinese. Frequently in both cases, I believe, the parents of the bridegroom are obliged to pay a price, as per bargain to the parents who furnish the bride.

The Napoleon—not the Louis Napoleon

—but the genuine Napoleon of the art of clothing—is none other than Shepherd, whose imperial abode is in Chestnut street above Third. Nobody has ever yet equalled him in the perfection of the garments he furnishes, and in all the requisition of taste and economy, none but himself can be his parallel.

FRAUDS ON THE PUBLIC.—Since the virtues of the Gargling Oil have become so extensively and favorably known to the Farmers of the United States and Canada, as a curative oil in diseases of animals, and as a consequence, its demand becoming great—there has not been wanting those whose cupidity has suggested to them that if they could concoct something as nearly resembling in appearance as they could guess, with anything for a name, they might urge it upon unsuspecting customers as a substitute for the true Gargling Oil. The proprietor would therefore caution those who purchase, to be sure the name of G. F. Merchant is blown on the side of the bottle, and in his hand writing over the cork. All others are an attempt at imitation, and are therefore an imposition.

See advertisement in this paper. A pamphlet of description may be had gratis of the agent.

The New York Store in the Field! THE PEOPLE

Know their Interests, and knowing will maintain them.

Hence when they want goods at uniform prices, and as low as can be bought within the county of Lehigh they go to

Kern and Kline,
because every man, woman and child in the county of Lehigh, by this time knows that no one can sell lower and live. They have just returned from Philadelphia with a large assortment of

NEW SPRING GOODS,
Such as Brage de Laines, an entire new article, Mourning Lawns, Foulard Dress Silks figured and plain, and piles of other Goods, which they opened to the gaze of admiring thousands, while most of their competitors were sleeping over the piles of Calicoes, Ginghams, and a hundred other articles remaining unsold from last year's purchases. These goods were all selected with an eye to Beauty, Fineness and Durability, and bought at prices that throw twenty per cent. men into the shades of oblivion. We therefore invite our old customers and about

Five Thousand New Ones,
(being all that we have room for at present) to give us a call, and we are sure to please ninety-nine out of every hundred in

CHEAP AND ELEGANT GOODS.
There is no need of recapitulating what we have, either in the

DRY GOODS, GROCERY, OR ANY OTHER LINE, as it is well known that we have everything any body else has, and a considerable sprinkling of neat, useful and pretty matters that

OTHERS HAVE NOT.
So let there be no delay among those who want the first pick—we are

Armed and Equipped with elegant yardsticks which measure true, and in conjunction with our accommodating clerks, are ready to wait on all the ladies and gentlemen, whether old or young, ugly or handsome, and make them look better than they ever did before after being rigged out in the splendid goods we have provided for their gratification.

TO FARMERS.
Bring on your Butter, Eggs, Ham, Lard, Soap, Potatoes, &c., and we will give you in exchange the Goods of your own selection in our Store, at the very lowest retail prices.

Assignee Sale, A Valuable Storestand

NEAR THE ALLENTOWN FURNACE, OFFERED At Public Sale.

Will be sold at Public Sale, on Saturday the 15th of May next, at one o'clock, in the afternoon, the following valuable property.

That Well Known Store Stand,
And Lot of Ground, lately occupied by William Meendens & Co., at the "Allentown Furnace," in Northampton township, Lehigh county, fronting two public roads, and adjoining lot of Isaac Laros. The improvements thereon are a very large and roomy

Two Story Brick Dwelling House
36 by 40 feet in dimensions, besides a large Frame Shed, and other necessary outbuildings, the whole of which is covered with slate. There is also an excellent Well with water, and a large Cistern, in both of which are good Pumps.

The above Store Stand is believed to be one of the best in the county, and as the buildings have but lately been put up, are in a very good condition, and as an opportunity of this kind is but seldom offered, it is worthy the attention of capitalists.

Possession can be given immediately after the sale, if desired.

The conditions will be made known on the day of sale and due attendance given by
