

A Story for the Credulous.

The Stamford Mystery.—The "Stamford Mystery" appears to be just now in full flower in Connecticut; exciting the wonder of the credulous, and ministering to the general love of the marvellous. The wonderful things told of it exceed even the marvels of the Rochester spirits. The story of the Cock Lane Ghost, that Dr. Johnson claimed the credit of exercising, is verified, and all the mysteries of mesmerism and clairvoyance stand confirmed and established—if we may credit the testimony of "many people of the highest respectability!" Then the character of the family in which these wonderful scenes are enacted—that of the Rev. Dr. Phelps, Secretary of the American Education Society—is said to preclude the suspicion of its being a party to the fraud.

Yet we are required to credit stories that exceed in incredibility the wildest visions of delirium tremens, and of which the least incredible, perhaps, is the story that nine female ghosts appeared in a room of the haunted house, kneeling over Bibles, each open at some text, indicated by a turned-down leaf or slip of paper, Divine authority for all other impossible things. These fair intangibles, we are gravely told, were clothed in dresses belonging to the ladies of the family; and it is argued, that because those dresses were "hanging up in closets within a short time before the discovery" of the figures, they could not, therefore, have been adjusted with that precision in which they were found by any other than supernatural means.

The Derby Journal, published in the vicinity of these marvellous doings, appears to have been brought by habitual observation to a full belief in their supernatural origin, and carefully chronicles the incidents as they occur from day to day with historic solemnity. We give an extract from the latest and least marvellous of its reports:

"In yesterday's paper, we were speaking about the brushes that were thrown around the room; and apparently at us, and the gentleman who was with us.—Without further comment, we proceed:

"After these brushes had been thrown, and every effort made on our part to detect the source from whence they came, we proposed to our companion to go out of the room, and in our stocking feet to listen at the hall door, and see if we could not hear a rustling of the bed clothes, or some trivial circumstance whereby we could fasten the trick on the young lady. Just as we turned our backs, down came another brush; soon after, a large comb fell near one of the ladies' heads; a piece of soap was found on the floor, and loud rappings heard.—We picked up the brushes and put them in our pocket, and took our place near the door in the hall—our friend being at this time on the garret stairs, with his eye skinned, attentively listening to the sound. The rappings were now very loud and boisterous—so much so, that two gentlemen who came with us, sleeping in a room 30 feet distant, (perhaps more,) were aroused and came where we were. Here then, were four individuals, with sound minds, listening to the most horrible rappings ever heard, tacking their brains to ascertain whence they emanated. We had not been in this position but a moment, when something came against the door with great violence, and making a loud noise. Instantly every man sprang into the room, and fastened his eyes on the persons in the bed—the writer grasping the hands of the young lady, that he might not be deceived that she was not the cause. We found her in a very nervous state, and she told us that her cheek had been struck, which, upon examination, we perceived was very red. The cause of the noise was a large white pitcher that stood some four feet from the bed, near the foot, and nearly in one corner of the room, and which had been flung with a force which no delicate female could possibly possess, against the door, breaking off the handle, and leaving an indentation in the clapboards of not quite a quarter of an inch deep. This last staggered our senses—we could not believe it, and entered into a discussion on the spot. To show how unreasonable it is to suppose that the ladies threw it, we would state that to have done it, they must have got out of bed. How the moment it was done, we were beside the bed, and the ladies hands were under the clothes. No stirring of the hands were visible—nothing whereby we could arrive at the conclusion that the females were the actors.

"Let us also state that if the pitcher came in a straight line from where it stood, it would, according to the natural law of gravity, have struck in a corner of the room; and if it went directly across the room, it would have struck the bureau; but it did neither, and must have taken a semi-circular course to have reached the place it did. This appears foolish, absurd and ridiculous; but we are stating facts, as they took place in the presence of four individuals. Our readers can form their own opinions.

"But we find that our article is growing too long. Many will probably laugh at us for even giving publicity to what we have seen; we shall never shut our senses out of doors, when we are in a right mind. These things may be produced by the family—may be the workings of mesmerism—may be accounted for on the laws of electricity—may be the power of a clairvoyant—may be invisible demons but we have nothing to convince us that it is the young lady, the lad, or any of the family—nothing. Still it may be they. We are open for conviction, and when proof is brought to upset what we have seen, then we are willing to admit that we have been most beautifully humbugged—and by a mere lad!"

"Strangers in the City are advised in their walks in search of clothing, to go to Shepherd's in Chestnut street above Third. Resident citizens are so well aware of the great superiority of his garments, their fashionable style, and durability, and their extraordinary cheapness, that it is scarcely necessary for us to remind them of it.

More Gold Dust from California.

(From the New York Tribune.)
The Steamship Empire City, which left Chagres at 10 o'clock P. M. on the 27th ult. arrived off Port-Royal, Jamaica, at 12 o'clock, M. on the 29th ult. and left at 5 o'clock P. M. on the following day. She reached this port this morning, in about 63 days from Kingston, or 84 days from Chagres. On her passage out the Empire City reached Chagres on the morning of the 21st ult. in 83 days from New-York.

The steamship California, which left San Francisco on the 1st of April, reached Panama on the 23d, with about $1,700,000 in gold dust on freight. Her mails will be brought by the Georgia, which left Chagres at 11 A. M. on the 27th, two hours before the Empire City. The steamship Cherokee was to leave Chagres at 3 P. M. on the same day. We are indebted to Mr. E. H. Hull, the gentlemanly Purser of the Empire City, for our Panama Correspondence, and San Francisco papers of April 30, in advance of the mail.

From our complete files of San Francisco papers, to the 1st of April, we have collected for the Weekly Tribune the following intelligence, in addition to our correspondence.

The subject of first importance—the gold—shows no diminution, either in the size of the lumps or the aggregate yield. The stories of the new placers on Trinity River must be received with considerable allowance, but from the Stockton and Sacramento Region we have authentic reports of the most satisfactory character. The most remarkable lump is that dug near the Sonoran Camp on the Stanislaus River, which is to be brought to the Atlantic States for exhibition. It weighs 23 pounds and contains only 3 pounds of quartz, its intrinsic value being nearly $3,000. In one of the gulches on Col. Fremont's Rancho, on the Mariposa, a piece was lately found weighing 8 pounds 4 ounces. The 93 pound lump, picked up on Carson's Creek, proves to have been nearly all quartz. It has been broken up and distributed for specimens. On the Mokelumne, the miners are said to average an ounce per day all round, while the price of supplies has materially fallen.

The diggings on the American Fork Feather River and Deer Creek, have yielded a good return throughout the winter, and nearly all the mining population intended remaining in the mountains until June, to take advantage of the rich deposits left by the rains. Further South, at the head of the San Joaquin Valley, very rich placers are said to have been discovered, and the population of Los Angeles were, at the last dates, in a great excitement on this account. Parties coming into California by the Old Spanish Trail from Santa Fee, having discovered gold on the Eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada, about 200 miles from Los Angeles.

The new inland towns—especially Vernon, Yuba and San Joaquin City, are flourishing remarkably, and bid fair to become large and important points. Sacramento City is progressing with an enterprise scarcely second to San Francisco. A levee is to be built this season at a cost of $200,000, the half of which has already been subscribed. The Placer Times publishes a description of a theatre in the course of erection, 100 feet deep, and modeled after the Astor-place Opera House. Henri Herz has reached San Francisco, and had advertised his first concert, boxes $5, pit $1. In addition to this there are two theatres in the city, a circus, and innumerable Ethiopian concerts.

The Legislature is working along slowly, though somewhat embarrassed in its movements by the uncertain position of California. The chief object to be attained at the first session, is the organization of the State Government and the enactment of those general laws which are absolutely essential to the proper administration of justice. In this, the Legislature has been as fully successful as could have been anticipated. The injunction of the Constitution that the Legislature should prohibit the creation and circulation of paper money, remains unexecuted, and may possibly be defeated. The Judiciary Committee has been instructed to report a bill preventing immigration from the penal settlements of Europe. San Francisco, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara, have been incorporated as cities.

Some disturbances have occurred in the Indian districts, the causes of which appear to rest almost entirely on the imprudence or brutality of the American Emigrants. The peaceable Indians of the Napa and Sonoma valleys have been attacked and driven into the mountains, with great slaughter. A number of the wretches who perpetrated this outrage have been arrested and placed on board a man-of-war at Benicia. On the Upper Stanislaus, a man named Hunter shot an Indian on suspicion of his having stolen some mules and vowed he would have the price of them in Indian scalps. Shortly afterwards he, his brother and ten others, started on a prospecting tour. The party divided, three remaining with the Hunters and seven taking another route. Both companies were attacked by the Indians, Hunter and his brother killed and two or three others wounded.

Sufferings of the Jews.

The Rev. Dr. Dowling, on the 28th ult. delivered the Anniversary Sermon before the New York Society for the amelioration of the condition of the Jews, in the course of which he referred to the many prophecies concerning the Jews, and their being scattered over all lands, while their own lands should lie desolate. He said it was remarkable how these prophecies had been fulfilled, and this people rooted out of their own land. In the siege of Jerusalem alone, said he, one million one hundred thousand of them died, 98,000 were taken and sold for slaves, 100,000 were carried captives to Rome, to adorn the triumph of the conqueror, and the others became wanderers over all the face of the earth. Their sufferings did not end here; they were continued from generation to generation. In the time of the Emperor

Adrian, a false Messiah arose among them, who called himself Ben Cophagus, Son of the Star in the East. They then made a great struggle to regain their lost country, which was most disastrous in its results for them; they were banished from Judaea by an imperial edict; no Jew was suffered to put his foot on the Holy land, and the figure of a swine was set over the gate of Bethlehem, that they might not turn their eyes even towards the Holy City. From that time till now, the poor Jew has been a wanderer all over the world. Wherever we go, in whatever land, we find the Jew, who is there before us. In Poland, in Holland, in Russia, in Turkey, in Germany, in Tartary, in Spain, in Prussia, in China, on the Ganges, in Liberia, in Zahara, in Africa—there is no part of the inhabited earth where the Jew is not scattered.

He then proceeded to describe how they had suffered and been made a taunt and by-word in the long course of ages; how Constantine, the first Christian Emperor, had multitudes of them slain, and others had their ears cut off; how in the sixth century they were persecuted under Justinian, under Probus in the seventh century; how Mahomet joined the hue and cry against them, and slaughtered them, and made them pay heavy tributes. Hallam describes their sufferings in the middle ages; how they were subjected to popular insult and general massacre. It is incredible what they suffered. Sir Walter Scott gives descriptions of the same things. The conduct of King John is well known, who had the teeth of a Jew pulled out daily, one by one, till he consented to make a sacrifice of his money. In 1159, the Jews of England being persecuted by the people, fled for refuge to York Castle; a priest led on the people against them, calling on them to destroy the enemies of Christ. They offered to buy their lives, but it was scornfully rejected. An old rabbi got up in their midst, and recommended that they should kill themselves rather than fall into the hands of the infuriated mob. Then he sat down, and wept bitterly. They then killed their wives and children first, and themselves afterwards, having set fire to their goods and property. The people next day, rushed in, and massacred the few who still survived. Again, under Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain, they were cruelly persecuted, and driven from the country.

SOMETHING WORTH KNOWING.—Dear Sir: I have prescribed your Gargling oil in various cases of PRACTICAL SURGERY, as a liniment, with marked success; and would commend it to physicians generally for external use in all contusions, tumors, sprains, white swellings, and all rheumatic affections, where external means are necessary. As a discutient it is harmless where the febrile symptoms have been reduced by general treatment. In such cases it is the most efficient remedy within the circle of means now in use.

I would also recommend it to community at large as a safe and powerful remedy where there is no general fever, in all the above diseases to be used freely—it counteracts inflammation in a remarkable manner. In bruised wounds it prevents swelling and consequent soreness in hot weather.

Yours truly,
JARET PARKER, M. D.
