The Delegates elected to the Democratic State Convention, assembled at the Courthouse in Williamsport, May 29, 1850. Gen. A. P. Wilson, of Huntingdon county, was unanimously chosen President, protein, and William Jack, of Westmoreland, William F. Fagen, of Philadelphia, and William F. Grayson, of Washington, Secretaries.

The names of the Delegates were called of, when it appeared that two setts were in attendance from Blair county. The Convention adjourned until 2 o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION. - A motion to admit both sets of delegates from Blair county, was made, and after some discussion, was indefinitely postponed. A resolution was then adopted, requiring the delegates from the several Senatorial districts to choose tion took a recess of half an hour.

AFTERNOON SESSION-Seven ballots were taken during the afternoon, without effecting a nomination, making in all 21 ballots. The last smod: Hubbey 59, Strickland 32, Vansant 37, Morrison 11. After this ballot the Convention again adjourned to meet at So'clock in the evening.

Evening Session. - Mr. Hickman, of Chester, made a statement to the Convention, in reference to the qualifications and claims of Judge Strickland for the office of Canal Commissioner, and thanked the delegates who had supported him, for their votes, but declined wethdrawing his name us a camildate.

Mr. Johnson, of Lancaster, then rose and Stated to the convention, that bribes had been privileges that were enjoyed by no other offered to delegates to obtain their votes, and charged that corruption of the grossect kind could be proved against certain individuals whom he did not name. A corresponding committee of three, was also appointed by the delegates, for each county of the State. The convention then adjourned until 2 P. M.

AFTERNOON, SESSION, -- The committee appointed last night to investigate the bribery and corruption charges, made report in writing, fully exonerating all the candidates from any improper conduct or interference with the delegates, but denouncing, in the severest terms, two persons, Messis. Rankin and Ovenshine, of Philadelphia, who, it was proved, had attempted to corrupt delegates, by paying them money to influence their votes .- The report, after a warm debate, was adopted unanimously. The Convention then proceeded to vote for a candidate for Canal Commissioner, as follows:

The President announced that W. T. Morrison, of Montgomery county, was duly nominated the Democratic candidate for Canal-Commissioner, and on motion, his nomination was ununimously confirmed. After making nominations for Surveyor Cieneral, the convention took a recess of one hour, before proceeding to ballot for a candidate for that office.

Evening Session .- The Convention met and proceeded to ballot for a candidate for Surveyor General, which resulted on the 6th ballot as follows:

Brawley, 71, Carpenter, 56, the other candidates were withdrawn on the 2d 3d 4th 5th and 6th Ballots, .

The Nashville Convention.

The convention of delegates from some of the Southern States, so long talked of and so generally condemned, even at the South, is to meet to-day at Nashville. There have been a number of delegates appointed to it, some by county meetings, and some in other ways, but who will be members of it, where they will come from, and by what authority they will pretend to act, is altogether as doubtful as what they will do or recommend to be done. This is tolerably certain, -the Convention, which was started on the idea that it was to represent the fifteen Southern States of the Union, will not have members from near all of them, and will in no sense, either for the men who compose it or from the manner of their appointment, be authorized to speak for the Southern portion of the confederacy. Many delegates, indeed, who have been formally appointed, will not attend. We have already noticed many declinations of this character, from men whose presence it might be presumed would give some character at least to the body; and the last papers from Richmond mow bring us letters from James Lyons and Robert G. Scott, Esqs., who had been appointed delegates from the Richmond Congressional district, in which, though still approving the object of the Convention, they decline to go to Nashville under present circum-The Hon. Andrew Stevenson, apstauces. pointed a Delegate from the Albemarke disrict, had previously indicated his intention not to be present at the Convention, and wo find in the Union a letter from him favoring the plan of adjustment reported by the Meriweather, who had been declared efected a delegate from the 7th congressionel district of Georgia, declining to attend. He thinks that though legally elected, he is not rightly thosen to represent the people of the district in such a convention, from the fact that out of nine counties in the district, two only opened polls to vote for delegates; the others refusing; and in these two only 139 votes were polled out of 1,700, while in

He says his intercourse with the people satisfies him that they condemn and distrust the convention throughout; that he has been assured by many that they voted on the county, he was declared by the President, question solely from personal considerations, and he argues that by studiously withholding their assent, they have virtually condemned the movement. We do not, therefore, in view of such facts as these, attach much importance to the convention in any aspect. -The indifference not to say disapprobation, with which the proposition to hold the convention, has been received by the large body of those whose interests it was of the project altogether. But some who of Easton, would announce to the citizens committed to it, that it was easier to go on. than to go back-and, therefore, they kept on, though they had no one to follow them.

Justice in California.

A correspondent of the Fournal of Commerce gives a long and interesting description of a scene he witnessed in California in the administration of justice in that country. Two persons, a white and colored man. were accused of having stolen some provisions from a man named Dobleman, and they were both convicted, and each sentenced to receive seventy-five lashes and ordered to leave the mines. The following scene is graphically described:

The crowd followed on, and after crossng a wide ravine, the sheriff paused on the bank, beneath a guarled oak tree. Here the negro was stripped to the waist. He was a perfect Hercules in size and strength, over six feet, full bodied, brawny arms, and broad shest, with a skin, below the neck. whiter than many a white man could boast of, his face only being of a light yellow or inulatto color. His hands were firmly tied logether, and then drawn high above his head, and the rope tied strongly around the

The sheriff, who is a butcher, prepared to administer, with a large raw-hide, the first ten blows. Every stroke raised its ridge, as big as the rod which inflicted ft, and the negro writhed like a serpent tortured by flames. The next ten strokes were given by a southerner, and the raw flesh covered the end of the weapon. The which succeeded the fall of this empire, third round by a blackleg, whose heart, like the polar regions, knows no melting. The negro raved; he roared and groaned under teenth century. This gave every man a "Oh God! have mercy! Oh Christ! have mercy! Oh men! have you no mercy! I cannot bear it! Oh! how many lashes have you given me?" But no voice replied, except the loud jeer of some drunken brute, making mockery of his appeals. But for the honor of humanity be it spoken, I saw some tears of pity tumbling from manly eyes here, as big as the drops of agony which coursed down the cheek of that tortured negro. The fourth round being finished, Dobleman, the prosecuter, advanced and took the weapon to administer the fifth; and never can forget the look, and the soulstirring appeal of that helpless negro: "Oh, Mr. Dobleman, don't! don't! don't strike ordered the sheriff to administer the rest of re-settle the said account, if necessary, and the punishment, in person. This being make distribution according to law, and redone, the prisoner was set at liberty, and ravine, where his flannel waistcoat was dipped in the cool stream, and put on his lacerated and burning back, and he departed on his way, an outcast.

When I returned, the white man was already stripped and tied, and the punishment had commenced. His little bony frame weighed about one hundred and ter pounds, and I trembled for him, for I knew the deep prejudice existing towards him: and I saw vengeance in many eyes. And he too saw it; he felt there was no mercy, no relenting in any heart, and he seemed as if nerving himself up to meet his fate. Oh! how they whipped him. It was too painful to witness, and I turned my head away, sick at heart. I heard him beg a drink of water, but they laughed at his request and paid no heed to his cries. "Clive it to him"-"Give him another for good measure"-"Hit him again," &c., were the sounds which greeted his ears, entil the seventy-fifth blow set him free; and he was hardly loosed, before a drunkard fell upon, and but for the hystanders would have nesaulted him; and the crowd rushed on, not vet satiated, come recling, come quarrelling, some crazy with hquor.

To The Invaders of Cuba are scarcely daily to Shepherd-s great clothing store, in Chestnut above Third street Philadelphia. They go there without any fear of being troubled by either the government of Havana or Uncle Sam, and come away well satisfied with their good bargains, Counterfeit .- Spurious of altered notes of the lenominations of $5s, $10s, and $20s, purporting to be issued by the Bank of Delaware County, are in circulation. The Chester Republican says that the vignette represents Mercury offering a bag of coin to a female, who holds a key in her hand. At her side is a winged lion, on an iron chest. On the left end is a female holding a pair of scales; and on the right, two females. The fraud is easily detected by any one the least conversant with the appearance of the genuine notes of the Bank, the plate of which has not been changed for the last thirteen years, and differs in every respect from the counterfeit.

The Compromise.-Hon. Andrew Stevenson of Virginia, and Hon. Richard M. Johnson, of Kenth 5th and 6th Ballots, one of these, the only poll opened was in a tucky, have both written letters in favor of .Col. J. P. Stave Cutting Machine. This valuable Machine was exhibited by Horse-power in the yard of Col. Eli Steckel's Eagle Hotel, in Allentown on the 27th and Seh of May Post, and operated to the enire satisfaction of all present. It was proven by said operation, that from 1500 to 1000 perfect shingles can be manufactured from one cord of Wood, at a cost not execeding One Dollar per Thousand.

The Machine is capable of cutting from 2 to 4,000 shingles per hour, and if permenently located in the county, it would not only prove advantagous to the operator and consumer, but would add greatly to the value of timber land in Leftigh county.

Oak, Poplar and Chestnut chingles and taves have been manufactured with this Machine, under my own knowledge in the counties of Bucks, Delaware, Chester and Berks, by large quantities, and used to perfect satisfaction.
