JACOB DILLINGER, Assignee.

Major Cass in Rome.

Col. Webb writes home under date of Rome, the 15th June, the following incident and compliment to Major Cass:

It is Rome of the Nineteenth Century and get events are of daily occurrence here, which vividly remind you of Rome of the Twelfth Century. Take the following facts as an illustration:

An Englishman, of very eccentric character, has resided several years at Rome, in the Rossi Palace, near the Vatican. He is far advanced in life, and it is the general represented to have been one scene of misery, awing to the treatment she has experienced from her husband. A week or two since, upon some pretext or other, he induced her to accompany him into the subimmured her in one of the dark, loathsome and noxious reptiles that infest mouldering ruins. The servants of the palace, after a diligent search, at length discovered the place of confinement, and immediately condiplomatic relations with the Holy See; Americans and Englishmen are very often indiscriminately confounded by the lower classes of Rome, and under the impression that Major Cass was the English Minister, two of the servants of the Palace Rossi repaired to his residence and implored assistance for the liberation of their mistress, whom they believed to be at the point of death. It was impossible, of course, to resist such an appeal, and Major Cass very properly gave immediate information of the circumstance to the police authorities. In less than an hour, the lady, I understand, was borne from the dungeon in a state of insensibility. A few days afterwards her husband had her conveyed to an obscure convent, accusing her of an intention to elope with three different individuals, of whom Major Cass, to whom she is a stranger, was named as one. As soon as this fact came to the knowledge of the ecclesiastical authorities, an investigation was commenced, at the instance of the Austrian Ambassador, which resulted in her immediate liberation. Her husband has left Rome, denouncing Vongeance against the Government, Major Cass, and all who have rendered assistance to his wife. She, I understand, has gone to Naples. It is due to Major Cass, to say, that in no Court in Europe, is our country more faithfully represented than at this; and it is a matter of history at all the Courts of Europe, and the Pope has caused it to be made matter of record here, that to Major Cass, the American Charge d'Affaires, the civilized world is indebted for the preservation of St. Peter's, and others of the monuments of Imperial Rome, from threatened destruction vernment in Rome, at a period when sever-

by a reckless and infuriated mob. Major Cass reached here after the flight of the Pope and his Court. He was, consequently, the only representative of a foreign Goal of the leaders of the Revolution, finding that further resistance to the French was impracticable, resolved to destroy the monuments of Rome and leave for their conquerers but a barren victory. Major Cass was a roused from his bed at two o'clock one night, and informed that several of the leaders, then in conclave, had just given orders to undermine and blow up St. Peter's the proudest monument of human skill the world has ever seen. Without loss of time, he presented himself before the assembled vandals, and by appeals, remonstrances and threats, in the name of his country, and in behalf of the civilized world, he compelled them to abandon their fiendish purpose.

His services have been duly appreciated by the Pope, and at his request, for the first time in the history of Rome, Protestant worship is now permitted in the Eternal city.

Rochester Knockings. We present to our readers the following very interesting communication from the pen-Wm. Ross Wallace, Esq. The facts there stated rest on an authority that cannot be questioned, and no evidence could be more direct and satisfactory. Similar statements, on this subject, are made to us by those who have experienced the same results, and who from their general intelligence, good judgment and a strict regard for truth, are worthy of all confidence. Since receiving the letter of Mr. Wallace, we have passed two hours in communing with "the spirits," who, it was remarked by those present, were very chatty with us, and seemed to honor us with an unusual share of their favor and regard. · We were accompanied by an intelligent lady, well known in the circles of this $3,00 and those having legal claims against the city and Philadelphia. Indeed it seemed to extend to some things that could, by no possibility, be arrived at by any human being but ourselves. Names, dates, events, relating to subjects connected with our thoughts, were detailed with a sort of intuitive perception. We cannot undertake to enlighten our friend Wallace or our readers with any explanation of what we experienced or observed. These manifestations are, to us, involved in impenetrable mystery. They cannot as we conceive, be opinion that he is deranged. Certainly his referred to any of the causes or principles conduct warrants this belief. That very night at a considerable distance from the city, where my mother resides, we heard, at my request, three distinct raps of precisely the same kind as to sound and force that I heard at Barnum's during my conversation with "the spirit." Now, if there is machinery at Barnum's, it was not at my mother's residence. It seems to be acknowledged pretty generally that the raps are not produced by electricity, or magnetism, or ventriloquism.
