he would lecture on a particular evening. On arriving he put up at a tavern. At the supper table he asked the landlord "if there was anything new going on at which a stranger would be amused.

"No, nothing in particular," was the reply, "unless it be a rascally temperance lec-turer, named Hunt, is to hold forth on that subject to-night.'

"Ah, you intend to go of course-don't pose the falschood of Hunt's statements."

"I am no public speaker; but if I was, nothing would be easier than to refute him." "Well, then, come along, and let us hear what he has to say. If you don't feel able to give Hunt a tug, I'll try him myself! I shall like the fun of such an entertainment for the evening!" The landlord had conceived a great admiration for the guest's, tongue, and readily embraced the proposition to go to the temperance meeting with his champion.

The temperance men were in great trepidation at the non-appearance of Mr. Hunt, no one suspecting the diminutive stranger in the least. At last the president of the society arose, and apologizing for the disappointment, made a speech, the edge of which was no doubt a little sharpened from the known presence of the landlord. After this he gave out an invitation to any one in the house to advocate or oppose, temperance. "Now is your time," said the landlord, giving his hump-backed friend a jog, "give t to them roundly !"

Forthwith he arose, and everybody looked at him with surprise and painful expec-tations. He said in the blandest tones, that his friend the landlord had invited him over to hear Hunt, and had expressed a desire that he should say a word or two on the question. He hoped the audience would indulge him, although a stranger, and introduced by a liquor seller.

The very way in which he pronounced the word "liquor-seller," a very favorite phrase with him, made both the laudlord and all the rest start as if a red hot bolt had dropt among them. This was settled however, by his quiet way of setting forth the advantage a rum-dealer confers on the community.

The calm was a very delusive one for our poor landlord, as his advocate's tones deepened into sharpest irony, and set forth a multitude of horrid facts issuing from the levelopment of the Mechanics' Arts and bar-room. The effect was increased by his Manufactures of our country. The charac- peculiar intonations in repeating the word ·liquor-seller," in which he seems to conknown throughout the country to require a centrate more contempt and horror than any Being the Real Estate of John Romig cussed through its columns. #### The Secret of Success in Life.

In no department of life do men rise to eminence who have not undergone a long and dilligent preparation; for whatever be the difference in the mental power of individuals, it is the cultivation of the mind alone that leads to distinction. John Hunter was as remarkable for his industry as for his talents, of which his museum alone forms a most extraordinary proof and if you look around and contemplate the history of those men whose talents and acquirements we most esteem, we find that their superiority of knowledge has been the result of great labour and dilligence. It is an ill-lounded notion to say that merit in the long run is neglected. It is sometimes joined to circuinstances that may have a little influence in counteracting it, as an unfortunate manner and temper ; but generally it meets with its due reward. The world are not fools ; every person of merit has the best chance of success; and who would be ambitious of public approbation, if it had not the flower of discriminating ?

A "Perfect" Joke-"What is the reason of a blow leaving a blue mark after it ?" asked an inquiring young gentlemen. "It's casily accounted lor," answered a medical student, who was reading Bell's Life, "for you know that blow in the perfect makes blew."

IF"As winds the ivy around the tree; the office of the "Lehigh Register" by the as to the crag the most roots-so clings my constant soul to thee ! my own, my benutiful my boots."
