

Slave Emigration.

The Buffalo Republic has the following paragraph:

Yesterday a party of fifty-one colored men, women and children, from Pittsburgh, under the command of B. G. Sampson, a mulatto of every considerable ability, crossed the ferry at Black Rock into Canada. They were all armed "to the teeth," and on their way to Toronto. When in the middle of the river they made the well-known signal of the British flag, they landed on the British side, they paraded on the beach and again swung their hats and gave shouts of joy, mingled with song. It is said that one hundred left Pittsburgh of this party, but forty-nine dropped off and remained in the States for the present. It is also stated that fifteen hundred have already organized and are on their way to Canada from the States. In this party were seven females and four children.

The singular spectacle is here presented of a race of enslaved people, fleeing for freedom to a government which first riveted their chains upon them by establishing slavery in the colonies of the U. S. Senseless of the wrong she has done the colored race, the British Government has now become their friend and offers them an asylum on her shores. There is a moral in this which will not be lost to the people of the United States.

Negotiator of Marriages.

There is in Paris a celebrated personage, who calls himself M. Henri Charles Napoleon de Foy, who is, it appears, a licensed negotiator of marriage and he is celebrated in La Belle France, for his successes in this line.

Having, at the request of the father, negotiated a marriage for the son of M. Desgaigne with a noble lady, an heiress worth three hundred and fifty thousand francs, it was agreed on the consummation thereof, that the negotiator should receive ten thousand francs; but the parties refused to pay, and M. Henri-Charles Napoleon de Foy brought suit for the amount and recovered it.

This reminds one of the story told of the celebrated Foote, the wit and mimic. A noble friend of his, whose purse was not half as long as his lineage, told him that if he would aid him in the obtaining of a certain heiress, whom he named, that he would give him ten thousand francs. Foote agreed; and knowing that the lady was superstitious, he contrived to have it arranged, without his apparently taking any part in it, that she, with other ladies, should visit a certain notoriously successful fortune-teller's on a certain day.

Foote in the mean while bribed the fortune-teller to let him take her place for the nonce. He did so, and the heiress learned precisely the looks, dress, color of the eyes, &c., of the nobleman who was to address her, and even the very words he would say and whom she was inevitably to marry. The lady left quite impressed with the earnestness and precision of the prophecy, and soon after meeting the nobleman, she yielded to her fate and married him. He was more true to his promise than was M. Desgaigne to M. Henri-Charles Napoleon de Foy, for he paid the money willingly, and Foote spent it as easily as he made it.

Pumping A Lake Dry.

Dr. J. V. C. Smith, the editor of the Boston Medical Surgical Journal, who is now on a visit to Europe, gives an interesting description, in his editorial correspondence from Holland, of the manner in which the Lake of Harlem is being drained by steam engines and its water sent to the sea.

"Six miles from Amsterdam is the inland lake of Harlem, 21 miles long by 11 in width, which, three hundred years ago was found to be perceptibly increasing by slooping its waters further and further, and covering up the land, threatening the first commercial port of the realm with destruction, by flowing in upon its back. Various schemes, at that remote epoch, were devised by able councillors to stay the threatening danger. Three Dutch engineers, of acknowledged ability, proposed draining off the water, first raising it by wind-mills. They are entitled to remembrance from having suggested the plan adopted in 1814 for averting an impending calamity.

Seven years since, delay being no longer safe, a canal was dug around the whole circumference of the lake, averaging 200 feet in width by 10 deep. Three monster engines are housed on the sides of the lake some six or eight miles apart, each moving eight monstrous pumps. All the pistons are raised at once, at every revolution of the machinery, raising 15,000 gallons of water, which is emptied into the canal, whence it is hastened on by a fourth engine to the Zuyder Zee, and thus it reaches the sea 15 miles distant. In April, 1819, the pumps, worked by three of the most powerful steam engines perhaps ever constructed, were set in motion; and up to this date, July 25th, 1850, have lowered the contents of the lake seven feet. By next April, it is anticipated that the bottom will be fairly exposed, and all the water conveyed away from this ancient basin. All this is executed at the expense of the government."

The Election in Mexico.

An intelligent gentleman residing in Brownsville, Texas, writes as follows concerning the Mexican election:

"The election appears to be hotly contested between Arista and Almonte. The election of either is sure to bring about a revolution. If Almonte, or either of the other candidates, is elected, Arista will proclaim the independence of the Republic of the Sierra Madre. If Arista is elected his opponents will pronounce against him, under the pretext that he has made a free use of gold and force to procure his election."

The House of Bishops has refused to restore Bishop Onderdonk, of New York, the petition to that effect being rejected by a vote of nine to one.

A Relative of Gen. Washington.

One circumstance I ought not to omit. When dining at the great table d'hotel, at Augsburg, I was introduced to a handsome young officer by the name and title of the "Baron Washington," and afterwards to his two accomplished brothers. On enquiry, to my great surprise I found they were the sons of a very distinguished General (in the Bavarian army)—and that he was of English origin—his ancestors having emigrated from England to Holland on the death of Cromwell; that the late king, 'Maximilian,' finding General Washington a distinguished Major in the service of Holland, had induced him to accept a command in the army, and that afterwards being distinguished in seven campaigns, he gradually rose to the highest rank in the Bavarian army. The Baron informed me, his father, during the life time of President Washington, had received letters from him, and that no doubt existed that the ancestor of our Gen. Washington, was the brother of the grand-father of the Bavarian general. The Baron kindly promised to furnish me with a genealogy of his family, and copies of the letter referred to, which I expect to receive before I return to the United States.—Correspondence of the N. Y. Evening Post.

Cupidity Exposed.—When I first brought my Gargling Oil into notice, about fourteen years since, and for several successive years, nothing for a similar purpose, was before the public.—But no sooner was it discovered by "those who live by other's wits," that the Gargling Oil was making such strides in the cure of horses, and all other flesh, than they not only attempted to steal the reputation of my Oil, but copied verbatim my pamphlet of directions. And one of those miscreants actually stole one of my horse cuts (which I had made at considerable expense) from the printer in order to complete his nefarious designs.

The following respectable testimony given eleven years since will satisfy any one who is the original proprietor is—George W. Merchant:
From Asher Turrance, Esq., Com. of the Lockport and Niagara Falls Rail Road: To whom it may concern.—This is to certify that I have been acquainted with the properties of G. W. Merchant's Gargling Oil for many years, and have made much use of it myself with remarkable success. I would therefore recommend its use to the public, as the best horse medicine with which I am acquainted.

The Bounty Land Law.

In the following letter from the Secretary of the Interior, there is a very important question decided, which has been raised under the Bounty Land Law, approved the 28th September. According to the Secretary's construction of it, no person, it will be seen, can receive more than one warrant, although he may have served a dozen tours of service, which, if rendered by several individuals, would entitle each to a warrant.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR.
Oct. 11th, 1850.
Sir:—I have received your letter of the 8th inst., inquiring, "whether, under the act approved the 28th September, 1850, the same person can receive more than one warrant, provided he shows that he has performed more than one tour of service entitling him to the land?"
Although not expressly provided by this terms of the law, I am clearly of the opinion that its tenor throughout contemplates that the same person shall not receive more than one warrant; although he may have performed service which, if rendered by several individuals, would entitle each to a warrant.
I am respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
ALEX. H. H. STUART, Secretary.

MARRIED.
