The Woman's Rights-Convention.

This body closed its labors in Worcester on Thursday evening. We give the following from the report of that day's proceedings in the Boston Chronotype, the editor of which it will be seen is favorably disposed towards the Convention:

Mrs. Dr. Harriet K. Hunt, of Boston, read an earnestly written address on the Medical Education of Woman and kindred topics.

Mr. W. H. Channing introduced a resolution, in effect as follows:—That as woman alone can learn by experience, and prove by works, what is their rightful sphere of duty, we recommend as next steps that they demand and secure—1. Education—in all schools, colleges, and Universities, and Professions. 2. Partnership—in the labor, gains, risks and remuneration of productive industry. 3. Coequal Share—in the administration of law, government, &c. 4. Such Social and Spiritual Unions as will enable them to be the guardians of pure and honorable manners, &c.

Resolved, That a Central Committee should be appointed by the Convention, with four sub-committees, empowered to enlarge their numbers. 1. On Education. 2. Industrial Avocations. 3. Civil and political rights and regulations. 4. Social position and spiritual functions—who shall correspond with each other, and with the Central Committee, hold meetings in their respective neighborhoods, gather statistics, funds, facts and illustrations, and through the press, tracts and books, guide public opinion upward and onward in this grand social reform of establishing woman's sovereignty with man.

(The above mentioned Committee met and organized immediately after the morning session.)

Mr. Wendell Phillips introduced a series of resolutions, an abstract of which we give:

1. That every effort to educate woman, until you accord to her her rights, and arouse her conscience by the weight of her responsibilities, is futile and a waste of labor.

2. Advocating a reversal of the laws of property as affecting married parties.

3. That the cause we are met to advocate binds us to remember the million and a half of slave sisters at the South, and we will omit no effort to raise them to a share of the rights we claim for ourselves.

By Rev. W. H. Channing, for Business Committee.

Whereas, The great fundamental law of truth that moral intelligent beings are bound to obey God rather than man, is as much binding on woman as on men; therefore,

Resolved, That it is the imperious duty of every woman to obey the dictates of her own enlightened conscience in all matters of religion and benevolence, without asking the consent of her father or husband.

Mrs. Ball of Worcester objected to the idea (if it is to be carried out in full) that woman should receive the same rate of wages with man, and introduced some common sense illustrations of the evils that would arise, &c., &c.

Miss Brown (a clerical lady) of Oberlin, advocated the orthodox view of woman's rights, showing a commendable knowledge of Scriptures, and political economy. She said a goodly number of sensible things which were highly approved by her auditors. She called the spinning wheel the hygiene (?) harp, which is no longer, and partly lamented and partly gloried in the progress of improvements in manufactures. Lamented, because they threw serving women and others out of employment; meanwhile glorifying because woman would then seek, demand and obtain other and more lucrative and agreeable employments.

Chas. C. Burleigh indulged in a general review of woman as she is, and an exposition of woman as she should be, demonstrating the common sense views of Mrs. Ball to be inconsistent with human progress.

The convention then voted an adjournment until 2 o'clock. Vocal, auditorial and intellectual labors were suspended, while gastronomic exercises were the order of the hour. After an artistic and irreproachable dinner at the American Hotel, we assembled for the AFTERNOON SESSION.

Dr. Wm. A. Alcott addressed the convention on the physiology of woman, with dietetic and gymnastic directions for her physical development. Dr. A. warmly favored the education of woman to the medical profession, and to the art of training the sick.

Mrs. Rose, of New York, followed at length. She advised women to act, talk, try, demand, and obtain all things that can be obtained and executed by human beings. Women can, in any vocation, be equal, and in many, superior to man. In invention, for instance, you have one man-inventor in ten thousand; you have in ten thousand women but one who is not. Take an empty house, said the fair speaker, and the man therein is lost—can do nothing. Put a woman in, and she invents furniture, appointments, paper-hangings, &c., until the room begins to blossom like the rose, and becomes as fair as the garden of Eden. We shall, in the "good time coming," think it wonderful, and look upon that epoch filled with horror, when woman was the slave of man the tyrant.

So Journer Truth a slave of yore, though not a fugitive—blacker than the ace of shovels. She said, in the peculiar accent of the Palmetto State, that she had no larnings, could not read a word, but I hear and think, and that's all. Yes, I do speak some time. She blew up man, then knocked him down, and continued the same process until there wasn't a bit of her left. My little mind, she continued, though it holds but a drop, is full—fuller than yours who have a quart mind. Her speech was unartificial, but showed more native eloquence than any other of the afternoon. She warmly advocated the Reform movement.

Miss Brown—the beautiful orthodox Oberlin priestess, then took the stand, and expounded in an ingenious manner, the text of St. Paul, "Let your women keep silence in the churches for it is not permitted unto them to speak." She proved conclusively that St. Paul didn't mean to exclude women—except when others "have the floor."

That part of Miss Brown's speech, in which she pictured what woman might be contrasted with what she is, was really affecting. Her eloquence and manner was unaffected and graceful.

Mrs. Mott, eulogized Miss Brown's remarks, thought they were happy and appropriate, but disapproved of her orthodoxy.

Interesting Letter from Texas.

EARLE PASS, TEXAS, August 10, 1850.

To the Editors of the Sun: All the male residents of this section of the country are organizing a secret expedition to the Guila, in search of diamonds. Harry Love, the Express rider, who is as famous for his close investigations in the capabilities of the country he explores, as for his daring enterprises, has sent some specimens of what he took to be very fine quartz crystallized, to some of the U. S. officers, and they are despatching all the men they can thrust to gather in the harvest, which there is no doubt in my mind are diamonds. This field is at the foot of a sterile range of mountains which recede from the Guila towards the north, and leave a barren, waterless plain between them and the river, this side the juncture of the Guila and Colorado. The overland emigrants to California by either of the Texas routes strike the diamonds at its extreme western edge, or pass beyond it altogether, as they keep on the south or Mexican side of the river Guila, as there only has our most sapient and patriotic government exploring parties pointed out the way. Fremont, and all the rest of our government officers, employed in these surveys, kept their reports out of the tract of the gold and diamond regions for a year or two, and then consoling the country, for all its exploring expeditions, with the delightful assurance that the chiefs of these expeditions were worth millions. It is true that their services were of no value to the people who had paid for them in generous confidence, as their published accounts did not light the way at all to our own emigrants, as they were in effect on Mexican soil; but what would you have if they had marched straight through on U. States ground, the whole force with them would have learned the existence and whereabouts of these treasures, and our whole population, put on the secret.

Earle Pass is the gateway to the New Chihuahua trade route, opened by Gen. Canineau, and his house are building extensively; but with all its undoubted advantages of healthy climate and thriving business, does not please me, and I am putting my interest here in selling order. Mechanics are making $5 a day, and hard to get at that; lumber is 80 dollars a thousand, as it has all to be done by whip saw. A small steam saw-mill would coin gold. There is no kind of light fancy goods in the markets of any of the towns but; the staple goods, calico, linens, &c., are in surplus for two years to come on all the upper Rio Grande.

The Rights of Women are being agitated extensively just now, as they ought to be in this free country, where every one has a right to do as he or she pleases, so far as they do not come in conflict with the laws. Among the certain inalienable rights of the people of this country, is the right to purchase articles where they please, and in this country every body avails himself of this right, when they visit Philadelphia, by going to Shepherd's clothing store, in Chestnut above Third st, for supplies of gentlemen's clothing. There one may always be sure of getting the best articles at the lowest price.
