George W. Hammersly, Esq., editor of the "Lancaster Union and Tribune," has been appointed Postmaster of that city.
Ice was formed at Pittsburg on Sunday, an inch thick.

The population of Juniata county is 12,973. In 1840 it was 11,085—increase 1888.—Mortality within the last year 86.

The Democratic majority in Delaware, in the newly elected Legislature, will be one in the Senate and seven in the House.
Prices at the Tehema Theatre, Sacramento city, California, are Dress Circle $4, Boxes $9, Pit $2.
"That's what I call capital punishment," as the boy said when his mother shut him up in the closet among the preserves.
The New York Mirror says, there was a private meeting of distinguished Democrats in that city last week, in favor of pressing Gen. Houston for the Presidency in 1852.
A Bear Fight.—We have often recorded stories relative to bear fights, but have come to the conclusion that the following account of a recent conflict with Brown, at Batesville, Ark., as detailed in the Eagle, rather "caps the climax." That paper gives an account of an attack by a bear, which has been domesticated, and became enraged from hunger, on two men, one of them the owner. The bear had got loose, and while the men were trying to confine him, he turned upon the master, named Gibbs, and tore one side of his head, with an ear off. The other man came to Gibbs's assistance, and struck the bear with an axe, when the animal seized him and threw him on the ground, apparently lifeless. Gibbs, though seriously wounded, then managed to kill the bear with an axe. Hopes are entertained of the recovery of both the wounded men.
American Antiquities.—The War Department is getting up a history of the Indian tribes, which is in progress under the pen of Mr. Schoolcraft, the well known Indian archaeologist, with illustrations by Capt. Eastman, of the army. The captain has recently been engaged in the examination of the Indian antiquities on the Soudish islands, near Detroit, and he has discovered a perfect writing in hieroglyphics, upon a large rectangular stone, about two feet thick, and dressed to a smooth face.
To Restore the Color of the Hair.—The following remedy is said to have been discovered by Gen. Twigg, who applied it to a wound on the head, and found it not only to promote the growth of the hair, but to restore the natural color. It has since been tried by other persons, who have pronounced it the very thing to make the old head look young. The prescription is as follows:
1 drachm Lac Sulphur,
1 do. Sugar of Lead,
4 oz. Rose Water.
Mix well in a phial, and apply to the hair a week or longer.
A California School.—The first public school in San Francisco already numbers 150 pupils, from 4 to 16 years of age. Of this whole number, only 2 were born in California; the remainder date their birth place as follows—Scotland 4, England 5, Ireland 5, Germany 1, France 1, Chili 20, Peru 1, Australia 20, New Zealand 15, Sandwich Islands 3—making 76 born in foreign countries. Seventy two are of American parentage, 12 Scotch, 21 English, 18 Irish, 4 French, 5 German, 4 Chilian, 1 Spanish, 1 Italian, and 1 Peruvian.
Lucky.—The Cincinnati Commercial says that Henry —, who left for California with a company from that city, returned a few days ago, with about fifteen thousand dollars, which he saved. He was a poor laborer previous to leaving, and worked at $5 per week at Niles's foundry. He may congratulate himself on being one in a thousand—where one has done as well as he, a thousand have failed to return without loss.
Stage Accident.—The Wilkesbarr stage was upset last Monday morning, about 3 o'clock, a short distance north of Hazleton. It contained seven passengers inside, four of whom were severely injured, viz: T. O. Garrison, of Tanamunga, John Horn, Jr., and lady, of Port Carbon, and Miss Bergner, of Hazleton.
New York Election.—The whole number of votes polled in New York State, at the late election, was larger than usual, except at a Presidential election, namely, about 427,000. Last year, for State officers, about 404,000 votes were taken. The whig majority of 268 on Governor, is equal to one vote in each 1593 votes polled.
New Party.—The prospectus of a new daily paper has been issued in Washington city by Farnham & Co., to be called the "Constitution," to sustain the Union party irrespective of Whigs or Democrats.
Bank of Delaware.—The New York Bank Note List says that they have already twenty-five descriptions of counterfeiters upon that victimized institution, and really cannot devote more space. We advise the public to refuse all bills upon that Bank until the directors issue new plates.
Dreadful to think of.—The Columbus (Ga.) Sentinel regales itself with the following pleasant language:
"We frankly tell you that so far as we are concerned, we despise the Union and hate the North as we do hell itself."

Speech of Col. Benton at St. Louis.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 15.
At St. Louis, on Saturday night, crowds assembled to hear the Hon. Thomas H. Benton's great speech. Hundreds were unable to obtain admission into the Hall.
Mr. Benton commenced by saying he left Missouri under a pledge to renew in the Senate the discussion of the modification of the resolutions of the last General Assembly. He never redeemed that pledge for this reason; he found Mr. Calhoun sinking into the grave. He had no heart to raise a controversy with a dying man; and after his death he would not attack him. He suffered the time to pass without opening the discussion, and thus there was no occasion for it. The object he had in view was accomplished in a manner more agreeable to him. The object of opening the discussion in Missouri, was to awaken the people of the United States to a scheme, having in view the dissolution of the Union. In the Senate, the labor of carrying on the discussion was taken off his hands by the disunionists themselves, who avowed their intention on the floor of Congress. His incredulity in the disunion scheme then vanished. He knew the people would take care of themselves. He saw Taylor and Clay standing upon the platform of common sense, reason and justice; viz: that every measure should rest upon its own merit. General Taylor kept on the track until he died. Henry Clay bolted—an operation easy to him—for he had served an apprenticeship at the business, but managing which, he had all the bills bungled together.
Mr. Benton then alluded to the struggle and final separation of the bills, and their passage separately. The long session of Congress was entirely occasioned by Mr. Clay's changing ground on the vital point of separate or congregate consideration of the different measures. He then reviewed the proceedings of Congress on the slavery question, and alleged that the expenditure of public money consequent upon this protracted discussion was to be attributed to the Omnibus bill. The session opened violently for disunion. The speeches made asserted that not the Omnibus, but the breaking down of that vehicle, caused this change. Many Southern members, under the influence of disunionists, were deluded into the belief that the North had determined to abolish slavery. The daily speeches, the votes, and their intercourse with northern members—curdled that delusion and quieted the Southern members—and all good citizens would likewise be quieted, if they could go to Congress and there meet the Northern members face to face. The exposition of the Mexican laws showed the northern men that the proviso was unnecessary, and they therefore abandoned it.
After reviewing the Omnibus bill, he gave his reason for voting for and against the measure when separately presented. He then alluded to the action of the most prominent members. He gave the Southern Senators entire credit for saving California. They wanted her divided—wanted her defeated, but would not sell their votes to the omnibus for the purpose. If they had so voted, California would have been sacrificed—for that would have followed. We were saved by the high honor of the Southern Senators, and to them let the honor be ascribed; not to him who would have brought their votes and sold the state. A large portion of this part of the speech is devoted to Mr. Clay. Mr. Benton then alluded to the meeting held in St. Louis to celebrate the passage of the peace measures, which not only bestowed praise, but censure. He did not allude to himself—that came, of course, from the composition of Whigs and nullifiers—but they censured General Taylor, by implication, in resolutions which applauded Mr. Fillmore and his Cabinet for giving influence to the support of the Omnibus bill.
He felt it his duty to defend General Taylor. He had been just and kind to him, and by his appointing Colonel Fremont, he was as much as said that he disapproved of the proceedings of that Court Martial. He also did General Taylor justice on another point. He believed General Taylor was sincere in his declaration that he would not remove any one from office for opinion's sake, and whenever a case was brought fair; before him, he acted up to that noble declaration. Such removals doubtless were made—but a President must act upon information, and is liable to be misled. He cited as proof the case of Dr. Heap, Consul at Turin, and reassured that General Taylor refused to remove him on political grounds, and did what all American Presidents ought to do. He then alluded to his absence from the Senate on the passage of the Fugitive Slave Bill, and gave his reasons for not voting. He believed the bill injudicious, but was willing to let his friends try it. He voted with them, to make it suitable to them. There was no constitutional objection, and he did not wish any drawbacks from his opinions of it, and such would have been the case, but for the silly attacks made upon him for missing one vote, by those who were so indifferent to others who missed nearly every vote.
Col. Benton then reviewed the rise and progress of nullification in Missouri, commencing as far back as 1832, under heads of plots one, two and three—the latter is the present, and the most bold and dangerous of the three. Its object is the separation of the North from the South, under pretext of Northern aggression—himself the object of attack. He appealed to the people, and that appeal decided the August election against the Nullifiers, of whom, although they nominally counted thirty odd in the assembly, there is but little more than one-third of that number who are in favor of nullification and secession as remedies for political evils. The rest are Union Democrats, who are now deceived, and will come right of themselves. Of the thirty odd nominally elected as anti-Benton men, not one was elected by anti-Benton democratic strength. He made this declaration without fear of contradiction. He examined the case of Jefferson city; and in every case where an anti-Benton man was elected, it was done by a combination, of Whig and anti-Benton votes, under the pledge to go with the majority, of the Democracy. Further, there was not a county in the State, where an anti-Benton man can now be elected on the anti-Benton Democratic ticket. He stated that his six months speaking in Missouri stirred up the people for the Union, and prevented a separation of States. It also prevented Missouri from sending delegates to the Nashville Convention.

He dwelled on the anti-Benton party. He characterized their course as mean, diabolical and infernal—neither Whigs nor Democrats should affiliate with them. There were twelve in the last Assembly, and about the same number in this. Most of the others are in banks, or on benches, and in nullifications. There are few besides, and between them and me there are now, and forever, high walls and deep ditches. No fellowship, or communion, or compromise was the watchword of the anti-Bentons. Now they will compromise upon any man but Benton—that is, having failed to destroy them, they will buy him—give office—all the offices in Missouri as purchase money. The Devil was a compromiser, when he offered to compromise with Christ, offering all the land in the world, he (the devil) not owning a foot of it. So of the anti-Bentons—they have not an office in Missouri at their disposal, yet offer all. To again allude to the Union meeting in St. Louis, and brought in Henry Clay, whom he handled without gloves; and concluded his speech by referring to the various bills that had already, and would hereafter be presented to Congress for the advancement of Western interests.
Nashville Convention.
This famous body of disunionists is now in session, but its proceedings, as Mr. Toombs would say, are of no consequence—not the slightest. On Saturday a series of resolutions were presented by Mr. Clay of Alabama. They are very lengthy and of the most ultra character—denounce the Compromise adopted by Congress, declare the right of secession as inalienable, intimate its necessity, and wind up by recommending a general Southern Convention to take measures of redress. The resolutions were referred to a committee.
The Convention is composed of about 60 individuals, we will not call them delegates, for they represent nobody. They hail from the States of Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia and Florida. It is a very paltry affair at the best—only calculated to excite ridicule and contempt.—Reading Journal.
Nashville, November 18.
The Convention assembled this morning at 9 o'clock. After a stormy debate on the report of the Committee, it was finally recommitted.
The Committee being in session, the Convention took a recess of an hour, when on re-assembling.
The Chairman of the Committee reported the original preamble, but striking out all the resolutions, and substituting a series, declaring the attachment of the Southern States to the Constitution and the Union; that it was the purpose of the Convention to preserve it unimpaired, believing that the Union of States was the union of independent sovereignties—that all anticipated evils had been realized, finally recommending not to go into national convention of States, leaving Congress to deliberate and act with a view of arresting further aggression and restore the rights of the South. The reading of the report being concluded, the previous question was called, and all discussion cut off.
The vote was taken on the previous question, which was sustained, and the question recurring on the report as amended was adopted.
Mr. Donaldson then moved for a reconsideration of the vote on the adoption of the report. His motion was not sustained. He took occasion to pronounce the proceedings of the Convention as unhalloved, and expressed his determination of separating himself from such unworthy proceedings.
A scene of indescribable confusion followed this tirade. In the utmost confusion the Convention adjourned sine die.
ANOTHER SCIENTIFIC WONDER.—Peppin, an artificial Digestive Fluid, or Gastric Juice. A great Dyspepsia Curer, prepared from Rennet, or the fourth stomach of the Ox, after directions of Baron Liebig, the great Physiologist Chemist, by J. S. Houghton, M. D., No. 11, North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa. This is a truly wonderful remedy for Indigestion, dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Constipation, and Debility, curing after Nature's own method, by Nature's own agent, the Gastric Juice. See advertisement in another column.
SPRING.—Whoever in his rambles in Philadelphia, enters Shepherd's splendid Clothing establishment, in Chestnut street, above third, is sure to be struck with amazement at the immense stock of gentlemen's Clothing which fill some five or six stories. It is not only the quantity, however, that strikes one; for his garments are quite as remarkable for their excellent quality, their fashionable style and their extraordinary low prices. Now is the time to see Shepherd's store in its greatest glory.
BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.—You that have suffered and have failed to obtain relief from the use of all other remedies for Rheumatism, read what Betsey A. Ranney, of Ebridge, Michigan, says about Merchant's celebrated Gargling Oil: "I have used your Gargling Oil for inflammatory rheumatism, and found immediate and perfect relief from a painful attack by a few applications. I had previously used other remedies without any benefit, and the relief which I received from the use of your oil was too apparent to admit of a doubt of its value as a remedy for that painful disease." Get a pamphlet of the agent, and read more about this wonderful remedy. See also advertisement in this paper.
