One of the best modes of improving in the art of thinking, is to think over some subject before you read upon it; and then to observe after what manner it has occurred to the mind of some great master; you will then observe whether you have been too rash or too timid; what you have omitted, and what you have exceeded; and by world to come. this process you will insensibly catch a great manner of viewing a question. It is right to carried out as above expressed, I do hereby study, not only to think when any extraordinary incident provokes you to think, but from time to sience to review what has passed; to dwell upon the West, the sum of Twenty Thousand it, and to see what trains of thought voluntarii Dollars to each of said schools; and to pre-By present themselves to your mind. Some men stways read with a pen in their hand, and commit to paper any new chought which strikes them; others trust to shance for its re-appearance. Which of these is the best method in the conduct of the understanding, must, I should suppose, depend a great deal upon the particular understanding in question.
