Hydrophobia.

We find the following among the miscellaneous selections of the Charleston (S. C.) Mercury. It is an authentic statement, and M. Buisson is a person worthy of credence, the information which it discloses is of grave importance, not only to the medical faculty, but to the whole human family. That the Academy of Sciences should have treated it with disregard so long is, perhaps, attributable to its having been anonymously communicated:

"M. Buisson has written to the Paris Academy of Sciences, to claim as his small treatise on hydrophobia, addressed to the Academy so far back as 1835, and signed with a single initial. The case referred to in that treatise was his own. The particulars and the mode of cure adopted were as follows: He had been called to visit a woman who, for three days, was said to be suffering under this disease. She had the usual symptoms, constriction of the throat, inability to swallow, abundant secretion of saliva, and foaming at the mouth. Her neighbors said she had been bitten by a mad dog, about forty days before. At her own urgent entreaties she was bled, and died a few hours after, as was expected.

"Mr. Buisson, who had his hands covered with blood, incautiously cleaned them with a towel which had been used to wipe the mouth of the patient. He then had an ulceration upon one of his fingers, yet thought it sufficient to wipe off the saliva that adhered with a little water. The ninth day, after being in his cabinet, he was suddenly seized with a pain in his throat, and one still greater in his eyes. The saliva was continually pouring into his mouth; the impression of a current of air, the sight of brilliant bodies, gave him a painful sensation; his body appeared to him so light that he felt as though he could leap to a prodigious height. He experienced, he said, a wish to run and bite, not men, but animals and inanimate bodies. Finally, he drank with difficulty, and the sight of water was still more distressing to him than the pain in the throat. These symptoms recurred every five minutes, and it appeared to him as though the pain commenced in the affected finger and extended thence to the shoulder.

"From the whole of the symptoms, he judged himself afflicted with hydrophobia, and resolved to terminate his life by striding himself in a vapor bath. Having entered one for this purpose, he caused the heat to be raised to one hundred and seventy degrees thirty-six minutes Fahrenheit, when he was equally surprised and delighted to find himself free of all complaint. He left the bathing-room well, dined heartily, and drank more than usual. Since that time, he says, he has treated in the same manner more than eighty persons bitten, in four of whom the symptoms had declared themselves; and in no case has he failed, except in that of one child, seven years old, who died in the bath. The mode of treatment he recommends is, that the person bit should take a certain number of vapor baths, (commonly called Russian,) and should induce every night a violent perspiration, by wrapping himself in flannels, and covering himself with a feather bed; the perspiration is favored by drinking freely of a warm decoction of sarsaparilla. He declares, he has witnessed in him of the efficacy of his mode of treatment, that he will suffer himself to be inoculated with the disease. As a proof of the utility of copious and continual perspiration, he relates the following anecdote: A relative of the musician Gretry was bitten by a mad dog, at the same time with many other persons, who all died of hydrophobia. For his part, feeling the first symptoms of the disease, he took to dancing night and day, saying that he wished to die gaily. He recovered. M. Buisson also cites the old story of dancing being a remedy for the bite of a tarantula; and draws attention to the fact that the animals in which this madness is most frequently found to develop itself spontaneously are dogs, wolves, and foxes, which never perspire."

Oxygen and Hydrogen.

It has generally been allowed that water is a compound of two simple substances, oxygen and hydrogen. The late discoveries alleged to have been made by Mr. Paine, go to prove that water is not composed of these two gases; or, as asserted by Mr. Paine, oxygen is composed of one gas and positive electricity, and the same gas is hydrogen when combined with negative electricity. So far as the catalyzing of the hydrogen is concerned, to enable it to produce a white light, by simply passing through turpentine, the communication on another page, from Dr. Foster, confirms all that has been said about it, as being perfectly correct. Mr. Nasmith, at a meeting of the British Association, stated that he believed carbon to be a metal, but he has never heard a single hint relative to hydrogen being one. Nitrogen is called one of the simple bodies, but Davy believed that it was a compound. Oxygen is held to be a simple gas, but Mr. Nelson, in 1848, in a series of articles, entitled "New Chemical Law," published in Vol. 4, Sci Am., uses the following language—"Oxygen must be chemical compound; some future attempt at its decomposition may prove effectual; it is at least worthy of a trial, for it plays an important part in nature; a true knowledge of its composition is therefore much to be desired." It also held fluorine to be a chemical compound. We wish to call attention to these things because we conceive that there is much in the articles of which we speak that is worthy of attention. The article from which we take the above extract will be found on page 112, Vol. 4, Sci. Am.

Bear Hunting in Sweden.

In some parts of Sweden great depredations are committed by bears, which issue from their haunts and destroy the stock and herds of the farmhouses and villages. When such depredations fall severally on any particular locality, the peasantry assemble together in which the "grisly monsters" are supposed to be. The bears, aroused by the shouts and firing with which these proceedings are accompanied, collect themselves together sometimes to the number of twenty, and the hunters then combine their forces, and make a simultaneous attack on the general enemy. Hunted in this manner the bear soon pays the penalty of his misdoings; but when attacked by a single hunter, he often meets with better fortune; for should the latter miss his aim, or strike any other part of the bear but the head, the enraged beast rushes on him, and he betide him if he but get him in his grip. In the northern part of Sweden, however, the peasant issues forth undaunted in pursuit of the bear. Sometimes he takes with him two or three small dogs, which, when the bear is found, divert his attention by barking around him, and the hunter is enabled to obtain an opportunity of having a steady and certain aim at him. In this manner often-times a peasant will destroy six or eight of these animals. The peasants of Norway exhibit equal intrepidity, and will single-handedly attack a bear with whatever instrument may be at command.

Victim of Circumstantial Evidence.

We mentioned a few days ago the execution of a man named Hicks, who was hung in Lawrence county, Miss., for the murder of one Allen. Hicks died protesting to his last breath his innocence of the horrid crime. The Natchez Courier, from which we take the following facts, says that the evidence against him was entirely circumstantial. Allen, it was proved, was shot in the back of the head, the ball passing under the eye. The last statement of the accused, made to a clergyman who attended him the night previous to his execution, was that he, his wife and Allen were travelling together with a team, camping out at night, and that while he was away from the camp on the morning of Allen's death, he heard his wife scream, and on running back found Allen apparently lifeless. He had been drinking, and went up to Mrs. Hicks with the intention of insulting her. She told him several times to go away, and when he persisted, she struck him upon the head with the wagon hammer, which she had in her hand, pounding coffee, and from this blow alone, without any further violence he died. Notwithstanding his protestations of entire innocence, Hicks, as we have said, was hung for shooting Allen in the head with a rifle, and that, too, upon circumstantial evidence entirely valueless, unless that mode of death had been considered as proved. And now comes the strange after-development! The denial of Hicks had made such an impression that it was thought necessary to examine the murdered body, in order to do away with any idea of Hicks' innocence, by showing that Allen was indeed killed by a rifle ball! Accordingly, three days after the execution, a committee of respectable citizens disinterred Allen's remains. The result of their investigation proved beyond a reasonable doubt, that Allen was never shot! His skull, upon examination, appeared to have been forced in by a blow upon the back of the head, immediately where it joined the neck. Pieces of the bone were hanging to the orifice in the skull, which were driven in from the effects of the blow. The bone running below the left eye was slightly fractured, but the sockets of the eyes, and the bones in the face bore no marks of a bullet having touched them.

In all probability the story Hicks told was true, and he is another victim to circumstantial testimony.

Panther Shot.

The well known hunter, Mr. Charles Parmer, of this town, who has been out in the woods the last two months deer-hunting, killed, a few days since, in the town of Belmont, in Franklin County, a large panther or catamount, measuring nine feet in extreme length, and weighing 247 pounds. Mr. Parmer came upon the track while hunting, and the next day, with a dog, started with the determination to hunt him up. After a short distance he struck the trail and soon came to where, with a single bound, he had killed and split entirely open a huge buck, apparently carried the same about twenty rods and partly buried the carcass. Following him in pursuit, Mr. P. soon came to a mountain ridge with huge shelving rocks, in a chasm under one of which he found the panther's den. His dog, with hair erect and exhibiting extreme fear, refused to enter, when Mr. P., tying a rope around the dog's neck, entered himself dragging the dog after him. The panther fled by another entrance and took to a very tall spruce tree near by. Mr. P. now climbed the ledge of rocks overhead and thus found himself on a level with the tree top and distant about fifty feet from the same. The panther was almost hid in the dense top, but catching a glimpse of him he fired in quick succession two balls in his body. The panther had now placed himself with eyes fixed on Mr. P., in the attitude of springing, when Mr. P., having quickly reloaded both barrels of his gun, fired one in the back of his neck, and the other through his body, the fourth shot brought him to the ground. The dog now having regained courage, rushed upon him, but one bite of the dying panther sent him back howling with pain, when springing to his feet the ferocious animal ran some twenty rods and fell dead. Mr. P., to make sure, put two additional balls into him and then ventured to approach him.

Mr. P. intends to bring him down in a few days and give our citizens a chance to see this rarely found animal.—Potsdam (N. Y.) Mercury.

MARRIED.

On the 14th of January, by the Rev. Mr. Schindel, Mr. Reuben Guth, senior editor of the "Lehigh Patriot," to Miss Maria Rhoads, daughter of Josiah Rhoads, Esq., both of Allentown.

The happy couple have complimented us with a delicious slice of "Wedding Cake." For this liberal testimonial of remembrance, we tender the fair couple—particularly as the bridegroom is one of the "black craft"—a long life of prosperity, hoping they may be blessed with an abundance, to make them happy—

Long, long, will Cupid shoot his darts
"Ere, he transfix more loving hearts—
And longer Juno hail the hour,
When these more constant own their power.

Here then's the wishes of a friend,
That heaven's blessings may attend—
And all the happy future tell,
May love forever with you dwell.

On Sunday last, by the Rev. Richard Walker, Mr. Moffin Hannum editor of the "Allentown Democrat," to Miss Matilda Gangerwer, daughter of Mr. Solomon Gangerwer, both of Allentown.

"Deal gently with her; thou art dear,
Beyond what vestal lips have told,
And, like a lamb from fountains clear,
She turns confiding to thy fold;

She, round thy sweet domestic bower
The wreath of changeless love shall twine.
Watch for thy step at vesper hour,
And blend her holiest prayer with thine."

On Sunday last, by the Rev. Joseph Dubs, Mr. William Roth, to Miss Susan Jamison, both of South Whitehall.

On the 31st of December, by the Rev. Mr. Strasburger, Mr. Hiram Yeckel, of Upper Millford, Lehigh county, to Miss Elizabeth Albright, of Hilltown, Bucks county.
