ALLENTOWN Livery Establishment.

THE subscribers take this method to inform their customers and the public in general, that they have lately purchased of Mr. George Beissel, his extensive Livery establishment, consisting in part of Horses, Carriages, &c.

and continuing the business at the old stand on William street, in the Borough of Allentown.

They will always be prepared to furnish their customers at the shortest possible notice with sure and gentle horses and splendid fashionable vehicles.
Pleasure parties or societies, will be furnished with gentle horses, good carriages and careful drivers, if requested. Families can be suited at all times with vehicles to their particular tastes.

Their charges are reasonable, and in order to continue the high credit it has heretofore gained of being the "best livery establishment in Allentown," they will leave nothing undone to keep on hand the best and safest horses, the neatest and most splendid carriages, and sober and careful drivers.
They return their sincere thanks for the liberal patronage thus far bestowed, and trust that they will be able further to merit a continuance of their support.

LOOK HERE! A Certain and Effectual Cure.

The subscriber, Druggist in the Borough of Bethlehem, Northampton county, adopts this method to inform sufferers of a Rheumatic complaint, be it Inflammatory, Chronic or Acute, that he prepares an article of medicine, that will effect a certain cure of this wide spread and painful disease. It is put up in Quart bottles, each bottle accompanied by a box of Ointment. The liquid to be taken internally, and the ointment externally. The genuine article can be had only by the undersigned, a practical Druggist and Chemist, and originator of the medicine.

Price two dollars per bottle, or six bottles for ten dollars—which will be sent to invalids in any part of the county, free of charge. All orders must be accompanied with the Cash, or they will receive no attention.

This medicine needs no puffing, it speaks for itself, while perfectly harmless in its operation it eradicates the system from the effects produced by unskillful treatment. It has already produced some astonishing cures, and of cases where the patient has been confined to the house for years, and those that got abroad only with the use of Crutches, were set at liberty by the use of from one to six Bottles. Certificates of cures can be shown from the most respectable citizens.

None is genuine without his written signature in blue ink.

A Brilliant Pictorial and Miscellaneous.

Gleason's Pictorial Drawing Room Companion.
A Record of the beautiful and useful in Art.

The object of this paper is to present, in the most elegant and available form, a weekly literary mélange of notable events of the day. Its columns are devoted to original tales, sketches and poems, by the Best American Authors,

and the cream of the domestic and foreign news; the whole well spiced with wit and humor. Each paper is beautifully illustrated with a number of accurate engravings, by eminent artists, of notable objects, and current events in all parts of the world, and of men and manners, altogether making a paper entirely original in its design in this country. It is printed on the finest of paper, and with a font of copper faced brevier type, of the most modern style, manufactured expressly for it, presenting in its mechanical execution an elegant specimen of art. It will form the best family paper, inasmuch as its aim is constantly, in connection with the fund of amusement it affords, and the rich array of original miscellany it presents to inculcate the strictest and highest tone of morality, and to encourage virtue by holding up to view all that is good and pure, and avoiding all that is evil in its tendency. In short, the object is to make the paper loved, respected and sought after, for its combined excellence.

Terms, invariably in advance. 1 subscriber 1 year $3, 2 do. 1 year $5, 4 do. 1 year $9, 8 do. 1 year $16, and 16 do. $25.

One copy of the Pictorial Drawing Room Companion, and one copy of the Flag of our Union, for one year, for 4 dollars.

Though these two journals emanate from the same establishment, still not one line will appear in one that has been published in the other, thus affording to those persons who take both papers, an immense variety of entertaining and instructive reading.

Poetical Department.

The Poor Man to his Son.

Work, work, my boy, be not afraid,
Look labor boldly in the face,
Take up the hammer or the spade,
And blush not for your humble place.

Hold up your brow in honest pride,
Though rough and hard your hands may be,
Such hands are sap veins that provide
The life-blood of the nation's tree.

There's honor in the toiling part,
That find us in the furrowed fields,
It stamps a crest upon the heart,
Worth more than all your quartered shields.

Work, work, my boy, and murmur not,
Thy fustian garb betrays no shame;
The grim forge-soot leaves no foul blot,
And labor gilds the meaneast name.

And man is never have so blest
As when the busy day is spent,
So as to make his evening rest
A holiday of glad content.

God grant thee but a due reward,
A pardon portion fair and just,
And then ne'er think thy station hard,
But work my boy and hope and trust.

The Coming of the Spring.

I am looking for the coming,
The coming of the spring;
Oh! my heart with joy is swelling,
And gladness, in it dwelling;

While I'm waiting for the coming,
The coming of the spring.
I've been weary too with waiting,
Waiting for the spring;

When the birds shall tell their praises,
And with heavenly rapture sing
Of the presence of earth's fairest child,
The lovely blooming spring.

Oh! how long must I be waiting,
For the coming of the spring,
When the flowers smile with tearful eye
At their awakening!

And the brooks shall dance so gaily,
To welcome back the spring.
Cease, cease my heart thy pining,
Thy pining for the spring!

For soon shall I come, and over all
Her fairest beauties fling—
So I'm looking for the coming,
The coming of the spring!

Miscellaneous Selections.

The Widow.

It was a bitter night. The snow had been falling in fleecy flights during the greater portion of the day, and the cold was so intense that little business of any kind had been prosecuted by the industrious and enterprising citizens of the village. Night had succeeded day. The snow and sleet were still descending and the spirit of the storm seemed to howl around the house, and through the fields and orchards and forests, among the distant mountains.

Mr. Rowland had returned from his counting house at an earlier hour than usual. Supper had been served, and the family had been gathered to the sparkling fire. The children had been put to bed in an adjoining apartment, and the infant was sleeping in the cradle under the immediate notice of its mother. Mr. Rowland was reading a newspaper, and as the fitful blast moaned around his commodious dwelling he would make some remark relative to the severity of the weather. Mrs. Rowland was parting the flaxen curls upon the head of the sleeping babe, and occasionally she imparted the warm kiss of maternal affection upon its ruddy cheek.

Suddenly some one rapped at the door. It was opened, when a little girl, about seven years of age, was admitted. Her scanty dress was tattered and torn, a ragged quilt thrown around her shoulders, and a pair of miserable old shoes upon her feet.

"She was almost frozen."
"You are the widow Watkin's daughter?"
"Yes, Mrs. Rowland inquiringly.

"The little girl answered in the affirmative, and added that her ma was sick, and wished Mr. Rowland to step over and see her, for she thought she would surely die."

Mr. Rowland owned the place on which the sick woman resided. She was very indigent, and but poorly able to pay the extravagant rent which the unfeeling owner exacted. The property was once her husband's, or rather her own; being a gift from her father on the day of her wedding.

Mr. Watkins was wealthy when a young man, was educated for the bar, and no one seemed more likely to be successful in his profession. He and Mr. Rowland were early associates. The latter, a few years before the period at which we now find him had commenced the nefarious and contemptible traffic in ardent spirits—had grown rich—had induced Watkins to drink—made him drunk, and by degrees, a drunkard; and when the poor besotted victim was unable to pay his debts contracted for rum, and partly by neglecting his professional

The Fandanggo.

This favorite dance, so much in vogue amongst the Spaniards and their descendants, but which is in fact of Moorish origin, is designed to represent, as is well known, the different stages or shades in the progress of the tender passion—love, desire, hope, proud disdain, and relenting tenderness. Cold refusal and warm confession are vividly represented by means of the modulations of the music and the voluptuous movements of the dancers. Temperament and custom have rendered the Fandanggo Bolero (the last of which is but a continuation of or sequel to the former,) expressive of the intoxicating joy of successful love, the especial favorites of the Spaniard, and usually form the finale of all social pleasure. The reserved and characteristic hauteur of the Spaniard instantly quit the field when the light tinkling of the guitar calls him to the wanton Fandanggo.

It is recorded that the Roman clergy, shocked at the immoral nature of the Fandanggo, resolved in solemn assembly upon its suppression. A consistory was commissioned to make it the subject of enquiry; and after due deliberation, when they were about to pronounce sentence upon and banish the dance, one of the cardinals, actuated by sentiments of right and justice, and acting upon the principle that no defendant should be condemned unheard, urged that the Fandanggo, the accused, be brought before the bar of the court in propria persona. The justness of the benevolent cardinal's views were at once acknowledged; and accordingly two of the most noted Spanish dancers were summoned to appear before the court, by way of counsel for the defendant; or in other words to introduce the Fandanggo before the august tribunal.

The dance commenced; the holy fathers, with contracted brows, looked for a while unmoved; at length the seductive charms and irresistible loveliness of the dance exhibited their effects in chasing away the wrinkles from the foreheads of his austere judges. Hostile indications and bellicose intentions with reference to a dance by imperceptible degrees merged into lively interest and fixed attentions; now as its charms more fully developed themselves, one of the reverend gentlemen so far forgot himself and his position, as to be guilty of the manifest impropriety of beating time to the movement of the music.

The dance went on, becoming more and more seductive, when one of the worthy elders suddenly hopped from his seat, and commenced executing the movement of the dance. Another and another followed; the juar became general; the judge's bench became empty—and all were whirling in the dance; and what was late a clerical court was suddenly metamorphosed into a dancing saloon. It is needless to record the verdict; the Fandanggo was reinstated with all its former rights and privileges, and its glorious triumph has proved its security against all similar attempts on the part of the clergy.

Escape of Wild Beasts.
The neighborhood of St. George's hall, Liverpool, was alarmed at an early hour yesterday morning. It seems that two bears, forming part of Bolton's menagerie, contrived to break from confinement about 6 o'clock, and forthwith exhibited their awkward erratic propensities, to the dismay of a vast number of persons who were proceeding to business. The carmen who ply in the vicinity of St. John's market immediately congregated in great strength, and headed by the bears' keepers, gave chase; the animals, however, were not to be taken without trouble. One "adjured about" up and down the streets in the neighborhood, and finally set off at full speed up Mount-pleasant, but was finally captured in the Prince's park. The first exploit of the second bear was to kill and partially devour an unfortunate dog which he espied within a few yards of the caravan. The pause in his career occasioned by the act led to his speedy capture. Beyond that of the dog no life was lost, nor have we heard of any personal injury having been sustained by this untoward incident.—Liverpool Standard.

SAVING TIME.—A Clergyman, who had considerable of a farm, as was generally the case in our forefathers' days, went out to see one of his laborers, who was ploughing in the field, and he found him sitting upon the plough, resting his team.

"John," said he, "would it not be a good plan for you to have a stubby the lera, and be lubbing a few bushes while the oxen are resting?"

John, with a countenance which might well have become the Clergyman himself, instantly replied—

"Would it not be well, sir, for you to have a swingling-board in the pulpit, and when they are singing, to swingle a little flax?"

The reverend gentleman turned on his heel, laughed heartily, and said no more about lubbing bushes.

Sensible men show their sense by saying much in few words.

Better live well than long.

They say a woman's tongue is harder to hold than a hot smothering iron.

Tooth-pulling illustrated.—Before the days of chloroform there was a quack who advertised tooth-drawing without pain. The patient was placed in the chair, and the instrument applied to his tooth with a wrench, followed by a roar from the unpleasantly surprised sufferer. "Stop," cried the dentist, "compose yourself, I told you I would give you no pain, but I only just gave you that twinge as a specimen to show you Cartright's method of operating."

Again the instrument was applied, another roar, another roar. "Now don't be impatient, that is Dumerge's way; be seated and calm, you will now be sensible of the superiority of my method." "Now pray be quiet, that is Parkinson's mod", and you don't like it, and no wonder." By this time the tooth hung by a thread; and whipping it out, the operator exultingly exclaimed, "That is my method of tooth-drawing without pain, and you are now enabled to compare it with the operations of Cartright, Dumerge and Parkinson."

Papa! what a nice man Mr. Jenks is. He was here to-day. He kissed us all round—mother twice.
