Young Mechanics-The Way To Rise.

We stated last week that few of our mechanics rose direct from the workshop to important places of trust in the Republic, and we also stated that but a few of the great many were qualified to fill important situations even in connection with the trades they learned. Why is this? Is it not possible for men to be as well educated in the workshop as anywhere else? Do mechanics not possess the same abilities as those who follow the professions ? Yes. Well then, why is it they are not in general fit to march out from the workshop to fill the highest and most honorable offices in our country ?

The answer is, they do not in general try to qualify themselves to fulfill their , proper duties, as citizens of this great Republic. We suppose that our mechanics themselves would be planetstruck, if it was proposed to run one of their number for President, but it is not our object, except in an angular directions, to point to political situations-w hope the point, however, will not be lost.

We have alluded to the absence of a taste for sound and solid reading among our mechanics, and we have now to complain of the absence of a pure and lofty conversation. The majority of our young men belong to fire or military companies, and during their spare moments, their conversations consists more in what this and that engine can do, &c., and not about how it can be done. Idle vain and frivolous conversation has a very injurious tendency, like reading bad books. A pure conversation and gentlemanly discussion of useful questions, has a very elevating tendency Young mechanics, we speak to you, in all earnestness; if you wish to rise, you must be enthusiastic about ledge connected with it. In your spare moments endeavor to seek enjoyment in talking about the principles of your trades, seek all your might. Do not be eye servants, do not use profane language, and give yourselves the best education you possibly can. Every machinist should learn to draw, so tent until you fully understand, and can construct every machine, apparatus or what ever it may be, and can take charge of and superintend every branch of business con- forts of life. nected with your trades. Men posssesing such qualifications are sure to rise. And what is to hinder you from possessing such qualities, along with a character for honesty, fidelity, and ability ? Let every one put this question to his own heart.-Scientific American.

A Phenomenon.

The editor of the Cortland Democrat, in a formal valedictory taken leave of that print for another field of labor, under circumstances which we shall not venture to state. We copy his own account of the matter :

•We will now give our readers an idea of our reasons for leaving them, and an account of our future occupation. You recollect, perhaps, that we gave a notice a few weeks since, of investigating the spiritual manifestations, or commonly termed 'spirit rap pings,' and that we stated our belief in regard to the 'phenomena.' We have been in Auburn since then ; and upon a thorough and careful investigation of the subject, we have come to the further conclusion, that the manifestations are not only produced by spirits out of the flesh, but that they are permitted and delegated to communicate with mor tals ny Gon, for the vast and inconceivably exalted purpose of redeeming the world

her to know. About four months after they arrived, their house was visited early one morning by two police officers, for the pur pose of arresting Mr. H. for forgery. In court the case was made plain against him, and he was sent to the penitentiary.

"The misfortune had such an effect upon after. Yesterday was seen ascending the landing a hearse, containing a coffin, and carriage following it, in which were a lady and gentleman, the father and mother."

An important Decision.

Judge Coulter, in the Supreme Court, on Monday delivered an opinion in Summer's appeal from Lancaster, to the effect, that under the act of 15th April, 1849, judgment or other liens upon property given to evade the act of 1843, entitle "an act to prevent preferences in assignments," are void. That knowledge of insolvency at the time of the judgment, &c., shall itself be evidence of an intent to evade the act. But if the debtor be actually insolvent at the time of giving the judgement, but did not know it until afterwards, it shall hold good ; so that the validity hangs upon the scienter of the debtor as to solvency. The knowledge of the creditor is not important. Decree refrom bondage and corruption of sin. And Charles Stuber to I as one of the feeble instruments of God in both of Allentown, this great work, we engage our weak talents, our time and our all, henceforth and forever. till the object be accomplished.

PAUL, the Apostolic Messenger, directed us, by means of the 'RAPPINGS,' to leave our business in this place, and remove to Auburn, there to commence and continue the publication of a paper, to be devoted wholly and exclusively to this cause. Accordingly we have disposed of our interest in the Democrat, and have purchased in the name of Peleg S. Cottrell, & Co., a printing office located in Auburn, where, in a few weeks, will be issued the first number of the paper alluded to, under the title (given also by the "RAPPINGS') of 'SPIRITUAL AND MORAL IN-STRUCTOR.' The paper will contain accounts of conversations with spirits, the history, defence and advocacy of the manifestations, and articles composed and given entirely by spirits in another state of existence. It will be issued semi-monthy, for one dollar per year.'

That the writer is entirely serious in all he says-strange though it may seem-is as obvious as that he is laboring under a halluncination, bordering on something more fearful. He goes on to say that he has been converted from Infidelity to Christianity, and from a state of doubt to one of full belief in the immortality of the soul, by means of the spirit's rapping."

End of a Runaway Match.

Runaway matches do not usually produce those happy consequences the party gene-rally expect. The very opposite is almost plways the case, notwithstanding the nonsense upon the subject which is common in the sentimental novels of the day. Every parent wishes to see his daughter properly mated, and when objections is made, it is generally from some good cause to be found in the conduct, habits or principles of the person objected to. The following instance which we take from a Cincinnal paper, is full of warning :---

"Less than a year ago, a young lady whose name we need not mention, marri-ed a young gentleman living in Vicksburg, named Harrington, and she did so, decidedly against the will of her parents, who refused to let the wedding take place in their house. The happy pair left immediately for home, where they spert the time for a while very agreeably.
