San Francisco in Ashes.

The steamship Albatross arrived at New Orleans, June 13th, she brings the lamentable and astonishing intelligence that the city of San Francisco has been almost entirely destroyed by one of the most destructive conflagration ever known in this or any other continent. The particulars of this terrible disaster are too long for the narrow limits of our paper, or to be given in detail. Property to the amount of fifteen million of dollars, is believed to have been destroyed.

Among the buildings destroyed are the Custom House, the Union, Parkere's, the National, the New World, the City, Delmonico's and the Exchange hotels; also Rose's buildings and the offices of the Steamship Company. The fire spread to the shipping, consuming a large number of vessels, which were lying at the wharves. It was first discovered in Clay street and ran through one dozen blocks, quickly spreading to other parts of the city-a great part of which now lies a heap of ruins. Hunter, George, Maine, Centre and El Dorado streets are completely gutted. The utmost consternation prevailed during the fire, and thousands were turned out of house and home, having lost their all.

Measures were about being adopted to relieve the distress of the sufferers. It is feared a number of lives have been lost. Business was entirely lost sight of.

Nearly every auction house in the city has been consumed. The largest, that of John Middleton, (ex- Alderman.) was nearly filled with goods for their Monday's sale, it being their custom to take in all the goods merchandise consumed therein, is stated at over $60,000. Besides this, Middleton was on horseback. part owner and proprietor of the large brick His loss was immense; but, not discouraged, he has already erected a large building, and has advertised his sale for to-day as usual! Such is California enterprise. Only one week has elapsed since the fire, and now one hundred wooden tenements have been crected, and stores opened with stocks of goods displayed as though no great thing had happened unto them.

Mr. King, the Collector made application to a wealthy firin for their new fire-proof building until the new Custom House could be erected offering $1000 per month or day $18000 per annum for a five years' lease. $50,000 per annum The result was that and leased for two years a brick gambling house on the "plaza," called the . Nociedad," for about $25,000 per annum. In the interim the firm got wind of what was going on and sent a messenger to the Collector, proflering him the building sought at even less than the original offer, but it was to late.

Quite a number of magnificent building (supposed to be fire proof) were cesumed, and their contents entirely destroyed. That of "Starkey Brothers & Co.," was built of English fire brick and cast iron, a massive structure, and supposed impregnable : but the raging element "licked it up" as though it were tinder. Their loss is computed by hundreds of thousands.

We are happy to be able to state that Gen. James Wilson, of New Hampshire, who was severely burnt during the late fire, is improving dally. His recovery promises to be as rapid as his friends could expect. The same remarks are applicable to Mr. of Dr. Cott, who is very assiduous and con-

of Lehigh county, have expressed a desire to pay their taxes during the month of July, in order to secure the 5th per cent discount provided for by the several acts of assembly of this Commonwealth, and in order to maintain the honor and credit of the county, the Commissioners have Resolued, That the respective collectors of the County, State and Militia Taxes, levied and assessed on the property and things in the different townships and boroughs in the county of Lehigh, be and they are hereby respectively authorized and directed to make an abatement of 5 per cent. on the amount of State tax to each and every person named in their respective Duplicates. who, on or before the 24th day of July next pays the whole amount of County, State and Militia Taxes to them respectively charged for the year A. The brick buildings burned amounted to sixty-two. The manner in which they were built induced many to think that generally they were fire-proof. Although they constitute but a small part, comparatively, of the immense loss by the fire, yet they were erected with such an outlay of time, and were furnished with such a degree of elegance, that perhaps nothing ex--cept the deaths which occurred was so generally and sincerely regretted as their struction. The character of the soil in this country issuch that the manufacture of brick isrendered almost impossible. Hence improvements in brick are erected at a very great outlay of capital and time, compared with those of other materials. The bricks which have been used here have mostly made a voyage almost equal in length to the distance around the world, having doubled Cape Horn. It is, however, a source of very great gratification to see that there are many good, substantial brick buildings which still stand and ornament the city, both in and out of the burnt district. And it is still more gratifying to see that preparations are being made by many to erect more substantial, and in every respect better buildings of this materials on the foundations of those lately destroyed.

San Francisco presents a sorrowing and heartsickening picture. The means of arresting the flames, in possession of the authorities, proved of little avail before their tremendous power, and so extensive was the field of labor of the fire department, that little effect was produced by their efforts.

A destructive fire also occurred at Stockton on the 12th of May, which destroyed the greater portion of the business part of that town. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

The news from the mines continue to be of a cheering character. New discoveries were daily being made, and the prospect of the miners were highly favorable.

The quartz crushing machines were reaping a rich reward, in some instances the average per man was from $20 to $50 per day.

Lynch law is still in force, and several new examples have been made.

for life before some infuriated animal; there a buffalo stands at bay. Altogether, the scene produces an excitement which those only whe have felt can conceive. The passion for this chase increases with time, and few professed buffalo hunters leave it before age disables them. "There are many apparent dangers in buffalo hunting. The prairies are full of holes, dug by dadgers and other burrowing animals, in which the horse may stumble, and there is some risk from the horns of the chose. Nevertheless, it is seldom that any serious accident occurs.

"Another mode of taking the buffalo was formerly in use among the Mississippians. Two rows of stakes were planted in the prairie, gradually converging, till at their extremity they barely left a passage into an enclosure of a few yards in area. These rows were a league or more in length, and on the top of each stake was placed a piece of turf, which frightened the cattle, and prevented them from attempting to escape in a lateral direction. The herd, being pursued by horsemen to the entrance of this artificial defile, were driven onward till they reached the pond, when the entrance was closed, and the work of destruction began. Few ever escape, for the buffalo has little sagacity, and, being thus shut up, will run round and round, without attempting to break through the barriers which enclose hem. This mode of hunting is still -prac-The Exemption Law.
